CROWDS FLOCK TO PARLEY; IT'S MOLOTOV'S DAY

Presides with Aid of Interpreter

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 28—The allied security conference today worked rapidly down the alphabetical list of nations, from Czechoslovakia thru Uruguay, listening to statements from chairmen or delegates of 11 nations in two plenary sessions, morning and afternoon.

The double barreled program gave an opportunity for the first two of the four rotating conference presidents—T. V. Soong of China and V. M. Molotov of the soviet union—to preside. The others are Secretary Stettinius of the American delegation, who is also temporary chairman, and Anthony Eden of the United Kingdom. Their turn at command of the San Francisco Opera house will come in alphabetical order, next week.

Come to See Molotov

The afternoon program, which started off at 3:50 p. m., 20 minutes late, was the day's big attraction with galleries, balconies and boxes of the big theater packed by those who came to see how Comrade Molotov would conduct the meeting. The morning session, presided over by Soong, attracted a relatively sparse crowd.

Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, Abdel Hamid Badawi Pasha of Egypt, Julian R. Caceres of Honduras, A. Ramaswami Mudaliar of India, Mostafa Adl of Iran, Charles Habib Malik of Lebanon, and Eelco N. van Kleffens of the Netherlands addressed the two hour morning session.

This afternoon, with Molotov, whose name means "the hammer," wielding the gavel, the delegates heard Hector David Castro of El Salvador, John Sofianopolous of Greece, Carlos Romulo of the Philippines, and Jose Serrato of Uruguay. To the relief of visiting San Franciscans, most of the proceedings were in English. Adl of Iran spoke in French which was not translated because it is one of the two official plenary session languages, and Serrato of Uruguay used Spanish, translated by an interpreter into English.

Big Hand for Romulo

The dynamic little Filipino, Romulo, who laid aside his brigadier general's uniform for the formal coat and striped trousers of diplomacy, drew a terrific round of applause when introduced and all thru his speech. It was easily the most stirring and best delivered address so far in the conference, and the galleryites sat forward eagerly until the last word.

The opera house was well filled by the appointed hour of 3:30 and Stettinius paced in the wings of the big stage, to the left of the set of four pillars, representing the four sponsoring powers, and closely spaced flags of the 46 nations, which form the backdrop of all conference plenary sessions. Alger Hiss, conference secretary general, started out onto the stage, but Stettinius called him back. It was 20 minutes before Molotov, flanked by an aid and interpreter, arrived and took his place in a golden chair behind the main rostrum.

Speaks in Russian

He opened the session with three hearty gavel strokes and launched into a brief address in Russian. His interpreter then stepped forward to translate into English. Molotov thanked the conference for his election as one of the four presidents of the conference and expressed satisfaction that "Russian speech will be heard from this high rostrum." He then called upon Castro of El Salvador.

Many of the delegates' seats in the orchestra were vacant despite the crowds in the upper tiers. Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa and Foreign Secretary Eden of England were not present. Whole rows thruout the front part of the house remained untenanted. Van Kleffens of Holland stopped to visit with Comdr. Stassen, an American delegate, and later strolled over to

Parley Social Front Rings with Gaiety

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

At an Advanced Social Outpost, San Francisco, Cal., April 28—A thirty and hungry army of diplomats swept up Nob hill tonight and fanned out thru the fashionable residence district, completely encircling vast quantities of food and liquidating stores of champagne and brandy.

Battered hostesses fell back before the inexorable advance. Patton's 3d army never raced more swiftly in pursuit of an objective than the several thousand emissaries of 46 nations attending the world security conference as they crashed forward in search of provender.

Mourning Rules Forgotten

Forgotten was the polite rule of social warfare laid down by the state department—that a 20 guest maximum should be maintained for dinner and receptions until the national period of mourning for President Roosevelt expired May 13.

Scores of cocktail parties and dinners for foreign representatives had been arranged in hotels, clubs, and homes by local society women. All San Franciscans who wanted to entertain the visitors had made applications, listing their preferences in nationalities and numbers.

Slip Past Secrecy

Dispatches, transmitted despite the state department ban for "security reasons" on printing the names of guests until after the function is over, revealed the following activities:

Ambassador Pedro Beltran of Peru was the guest at the exclusive Burlingame club of Mrs. Ambrose Diehl, one of the city's most assiduous hostesses. Other guests included Lt. George Vanderbilt, Mrs. Vincente Pardo, member of a distinguished Peruvian family, and Capt. John Bolton of the navy.

Adm. and Mrs. Richard McCullough were top guests at a dinner given by Mrs. Edward Erle Brownell. Mrs. Ferdinand Theriot entertained at Burlingame club in honor of Rep. Bloom [D., N. Y.] of the American delegation and his daughter, Vera. Mr. and Mrs. Richard von Warton gave a party for Archduke Felix of Austria, and he was also the guest of Mrs. James Jackman at cocktails.

100 at Buffet Supper

Mrs. Stanhope Nixon gave a dinner party for Mrs. Ogden Mills of New York. Mr. and Mrs. George Creel invited nearly a hundred guests, including all the Big Four leaders, to a buffet supper.

The France-Amerique group held the first of a series of parties for the French delegation, headed by Ambassador Henri Bonnet, at the home of Baron and Baroness James Baeyans. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roos entertained Pedro Laeo Velloso, chairman of the Brazilian delegation. Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of the American delegation was the guest of Mrs. Eugene Prince, Mrs. Paul Eliel, and Mrs. Charles B. Porter.

Elsa Maxwell, celebrated party thrower, gave one for Mrs. Thomas H. Shevlin and Mrs. Edward Warburg who are here with the inter-American affairs committee. Among the guests were Mrs. Cimou Diamantopolous, wife of the Greek ambassador, and Mrs. Carlos Martins, wife of the Brazilian ambassador.

Wall of U. S. Tanks Rolls Within 22 Miles of Munich

PARIS, April 29 [Sunday]—(AP)—American armies crushed down today on Germany's last major stronghold, rolling an unstoppable wall of tanks to within 22 miles of Munich, cradle of Nazidom.

Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army's breakthru into Austria knocked out the western end of Hitler's crumbling redoubt.

Gen. Patton's 3d army, which bagged 28,434 prisoners in a day, was driving on Munich from the north.

This came at a time when the reich was split into two traps by the linkup of American and Russian armies. One trap on the north was barely the size of Indiana [36,291 square miles] and the one on the south was little larger than Colorado [104,247 square miles].

Seventh Seizes Augsburg

Munich was being deeply outflanked by the 7th army, which seized 23,000 prisoners and with a lightning blow captured Augsburg [population 185,000], the third largest city of Bavaria, 35 miles northwest of Munich.

Tenth armored division tanks in a 20 mile dash drove up to Fuessen on the Austrian frontier, 50 miles southwest of Munich, and then poured on across.

Here, 37 miles northwest of Innsbruck — northern gateway to the Brenner pass leading down to Italy — the Americans stood at the entrance to the Austrian Tyrol, thru which pass all the main east-west communications in the Alpine redoubt.

Seven miles to the west, the 44th infantry division began pouring across into Austria at Berg after an 18 mile southward push.

French Clean Up Pockets

While the 10th armored division cleaned up in the Landsberg area, 25 miles west of Munich, the 45th infantry division captured Haag and entered Tandern, 22 miles from Munich.

Other 7th army forces were closing the pincers from the south and were in Schongau, 40 miles southwest of Munich.

The French 1st army, crushing what remained of the Black Forest pocket and another south of Stuttgart, took more than 7,000 prisoners.

The 86th infantry division reached Hirnkirchen, 27 miles north of Munich and 22 miles from Dachau, site of the most notorious of all Nazi concentration camps.

On South Bank of Danube

The 13th armored division, a newcomer to the 3d army, rumbled 13 miles along the south bank of the Danube into the outskirts of Alterhofen, 25 miles southeast of the fallen city of Regensburg.

The German army was caught in a vise from which there was no escape and was surrendering in almost unprecedented numbers.

In the north, the British drove the last German from the dock area of the great port of Bremen and pushed on as much as three miles up the Cuxhaven peninsula to the north toward the North sea port of Bremerhaven.

The Germans were falling back slowly behind blown bridges over small waterways.

The Canadian 1st army west of Bremen in steady gains around Oldenburg was about 24 miles from the naval port of Wilhelmshaven.

FRANCE TO HOLD ELECTION TODAY; WOMEN TO VOTE

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 28—For the first time in nine years, elections will be held thruout France tomorrow in which 23 million French men and women will choose 600,000 municipal councilors in 30,000 districts or communes. Women, who represent about 60 per cent of the electorate, will vote for the first time.

The voting will be watched closely to see if it shows any swing toward communism as a result of the German occupation. Some spokesmen think Gen. De Gaulle might make cabinet shifts if the elections show some political parties in the country are not adequately represented.

The elections compaign, however, has shown that programs do not vary much from the government's declared policy, so it is said the results of the voting may not lead to any far reaching conclusions.

V-E PEACE FETE GAY, BUT BRIEF

Crowds Disappointed by Denial of Rumor

(Picture on page 8)

The Chicago loop enjoyed a brief and enthusiastic celebration of V-E day last night, predicated on a report that Germany had surrendered unconditionally.

The great bell of the Holy Name cathedral and the chimes of Chicago Temple began ringing the news, but those who heard these signals remained skeptical because the report lacked official confirmation.

Crowds in the loop surged around newsstands to read about Germany's reported capitulation. Many dashed into taverns for a last drink before the bars were scheduled to close for 24 hours after the announcement of V-E.

Policemen Summoned to Duty

Chief John C. Prendergast of Chicago's uniformed police force summoned all policemen to duty at 7:50 p. m. More than 400 patrolmen were hurried to the loop district. The order alerting the police force, canceling days off and making other arrangements for handling crowds, remained effective until midnight.

At Chief Prendergast's request, Willard W. Cole, president of the State Street council, had President Truman's announcement broadcast every few minutes over the State st. loud speaker system to keep crowds entering the loop apprised that the report was false.

Order to Sailors Canceled

The surrender report was followed by a report in the Auditorium service men's center that all sailors in the Chicago area outside of Great Lakes had been ordered by the shore patrol to return to their bases. Many had complied with the order before it was canceled as unauthorized. The navy explained its shore patrol merely had been mobilized.

Miss Anne Garrow, chief operator, said Tribune switchboards handled approximately 20,000 calls between 7 and 9 p. m.

Police stations thruout the city reported a sudden volume of calls from tavern keepers and bartenders asking whether the report had been confirmed.

Cops Restore Static Quo; Halt Boy's Storm Machine

Portland, Ore., April 28 (AP) — Neighbors failed to appreciate the electrical genius of a 13 year old lad, so police stepped in. The budding electrical wizard built a gigantic experimental machine which produced thunder and lightning effects—only to have the police order him to dismantle it. No one in the neighborhood had been able to hear a radio program because of the static the machine stored up.

TRUMAN DENIES GERMANY QUITS; HERE'S FULL STORY OF DAY'S EVENTS

Surrender Believed an Imminent Possibility

A false report that Germany had brought the war in Europe to an end by surrendering unconditionally to the allies spread from San Francisco thruout the nation last night and held general credence for an hour and 45 minutes until denied officially by President Truman.

During this tumultuous hour and three-quarters — ironically reminiscent in historical parallel with the famous false armistice report of 1918—even the President was unable to confirm or deny the authenticity of the surrender report. He did not issue the denial until he had Adm. Leahy talk with Gen. Eisenhower on the trans-Atlantic telephone and been assured by the supreme European allied commander that there was no foundation to the report.

Report from San Francisco

The false report was flashed to the world from San Francisco over the wires of the Associated Press at 6:55 p. m., Chicago time, and the Presidential denial was made public at 8:36 p. m., Chicago time. During this interval, confusion over the actual status of the war in Europe existed thruout the nation. Whistles blew in most cities, crowds gathered, and celebrations got under way.

Altho the original San Francisco report was promptly followed by statements from Washington that there was no official confirmation of the surrender, officials in both Washington and San Francisco indicated that an announcement of momentous import was anticipated at any minute. There were no denials and reporters who trooped into President Truman's office saw on his desk a proclamation of the end of the war in Europe which the Chief Executive was holding in readiness.

President Tells of Call

The Presidential denial of the surrender was brief and left grounds for speculation that altho surrender has not yet taken place, it might still be regarded as an imminent possibility. For direct quotation, the President authorized:

"Well, I was over here [at the White House] as you can see, doing a little work, and the rumor got started. I had a call from San Francisco and the state department called me. I just got in touch with Adm. Leahy and had him call our headquarters—commander in chief in Europe [Eisenhower]—and there is no foundation for the rumor. That is all I have to say."

The chain of events which touched off the false report began when Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee and vice chairman of the American delegation to the allied nations conference in San Francisco, had a talk shortly after 4:30 p. m. [6:30 p. m. Chicago time] with a reporter for the Associated Press.

The Associated Press explained later that Connally told the reporter that Germany's surrender had

5TH ARMY WINS BERGAMO; TURIN FREED, REPORT

ROME, April 28 (AP)—United States tank troops racing across northwestern Italy captured Brescia and Bergamo at the foot of the Alps today, blocking the last two German escape routes to the Brenner Pass into Austria.

An unofficial Milan radio report said they already had reached the Swiss frontier at Como, 30 miles beyond Bergamo.

[The Swiss radio said that the Germans had agreed to surrender in the provinces of Lombardy and Piedmont, which border on southern Switzerland and embrace northwest and north central Italy. This report was without confirmation.]

The last German troops were cleared from Genoa, last big west coast port held by the enemy, and 6,000 prisoners were taken, a special allied war bulletin said.

Cross Adige River

German troops in the north-central and northeastern parts of Italy were trying desperately to rally their smashed forces on the north bank of the Adige river, or so-called Venetian line, but the bulletin said both the American 5th and British 8th army forces were across that barrier in strength.

The fall of Brescia and Bergamo was accomplished by overwhelming American forces spearheaded by veteran tankmen of the 1st armored division. They took Brescia and rolled on 30 miles northwest thru Bergamo, outflanking the big Italian city of Milan, 26 miles southwest of Bergamo.

Milan itself was reported freed of German troops by Italian patriot forces, and so was the big industrial city of Turin.

French Over Border

French forces, smashing over the northwestern Italian border in the Maritime Alps on a 50 mile front were inside Italy to a depth of five to 10 miles, putting a gigantic pincers into operation against the Germans.

A patriot-controled radio station at Busto-Arsizio in northern Italy declared that patriot forces had "linked up" with allied troops north of the Po river and that all roads leading to the Brenner Pass had been "barred," and about "70,000 prisoners have been captured."

Near the Ligurian coast 5th army troops entered Pontremoli, 20 miles inland from captured La Spezia on the road to fallen Parma.

Troops of the 34th infantry mopped up pockets around Piacenza, and southwest of Parma allied units cut route 62, a main enemy escape artery from the Ligurian coast.

Gen. Clark, 15th army group commander, in a message to northern Italy patriots said "news of a simultaneous attack by the forces of liberty at Turin and Milan came as a consolation to all who are taking part in the final campaign."

Clark urged the patriots in the towns they have liberated to "keep order, to see to the distribution of victuals, to look after the sick . . . and to police the areas under your control. . . ."

Russians Hammer Last Pocket of Foe in Capital

(Maps on pages 2 and 3)

LONDON, April 29 [Sunday]—(AP) — Soviet armies, taking a final stranglehold on dying Berlin, hurled its defenders back into a 25 square mile pocket in the city's center yesterday while thousands of German troops gave up the suicidal struggle and surrendered to the Red army.

The Russians turned hundreds of searchlights on the city last night as they hurled tons of mortar and artillery shells and thousands of rockets into the German positions.

German resistance was fanatical, but it was tottering. Almost all the city but the central pocket, which was forged by a Red army inner ring of encirclement, was in Russian hands.

The Paris radio said that the Russians had occupied the reichstag in the center of Berlin, adding, "It is believed that the end of German resistance in the capital is imminent." By Moscow's account, however, the Russians were two miles from the reichstag. The Paris radio said tremendous events are impending.

Capture Five Towns

Soviet forces north of the capital smashed out across the Mecklenburg plains on an expanding 81 mile front and gained up to 22 miles toward Rostock and Hamburg in a clean-up of the isolated northern half of the reich.

These forces captured five major towns including Pasewalk, where Hitler, blinded by gas in November, 1918, resolved in a military hospital to become a politician, rebuild Germany's military power and avenge the Versailles treaty.

Three major Berlin city districts and parts of three others were captured by the 1st White Russian and 1st Ukrainian armies as they battled up to three miles thru blazing streets and linked up in western Berlin, Moscow disclosed.

More than 13,000 enemy troops straggled thru clouds of dust to surrender, while southeast of Berlin another 14,000 enemy troops were taken prisoner in a giant trap which had been forced several days ago. In two days more than 32,000 enemy troops have been killed or captured.

Army Chiefs Give Up

Front dispatches to Moscow afternoon newspapers yesterday reported wholesale German efforts to escape the holocaust in the heart of the capital, where only fanatical Nazi Elite Guards were forcing a prolongation of the battle.

German army officers and commanders of entire battalions, unable to persuade the Nazi overlords to end the struggle, were going over to Red army lines and all German resistance appeared to be disintegrating.

The German radio itself admitted that the final battle for Berlin had begun and announced that the Russians had broken into the city's inner defense ring as they plunged toward Hitler's underground headquarters in the Tiergarten.

Slashing thru streets obstructed by overturned buses, trolleys, cars and carts and furniture from wrecked stores, Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian tanks and tommy gunners hammered within pistol range of the Tiergarten, Moscow said.

Zhukov's troops captured the western half of the northwestern city district of Moabit on the north bank of the Spree river across the Tiergarten.

Drive Over Spree River

At the same time, they lunged across the Spree and seized the northwestern part of the western district of Charlottenburg, reaching Bismarchstrasse after engulfing Adolf Hitlerplatz and many important buildings. In this area they were three miles west of Berlin's famed, bricked-up Brandenburg gate and were rolling westward toward Unter den Linden on the broad east-west axis.

In the southern part of the city, Zhukov's troops smashed thru the Fleet Taken—in Mid-Germany

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY ON THE ELBE RIVER, April 28 (AP)—American doughboys on this topsy-turvy front have now seen almost everything.

The ultimate was reached last night when a German "fleet" sailed up the Elbe and surrendered. It had come from Berlin by way of inland waterways.

The fleet consisted of six tug boats, 10 river barges, three house boats, and 11 assorted escorts loaded with wounded and marked with red crosses. It surrendered to Lt. Andrew Gadek, Woodbridge, N. J.

Tells Fear of Russians

A German major, who was in charge, said they feared the approach of the Russians because of their "inhumanity."

Not far from the scene of surrender the Nazis are said to have burned 1,100 prisoners to death in a barn. An English speaking German nurse with the fleet, reminded of the incident, commented, "O, that's different."

Colonel Forced Back

A few miles downstream, a German colonel came over and said he wanted to surrender his whole regiment, but when the time came for him to go back to get his regiment he refused to go. He said he was certain some of his officers would shoot him and he decided to surrender just himself.

This was too much for the Yanks of the fighting division on the river front. They told him "You go back and get the rest of your regiment. We don't want you."

Then they put him in a boat and rowed him across the river and left him. When last seen the colonel was trudging fearfully inland.

eastern part of blazing Schoeneberg west of the captured Tempelhof airdrome, and the Nazi high command said the Russians had smashed a mile and a half north of the airport and reached Hallesches tor [gate].

Hallesches tor is less than a mile from Hitler's reichs-chancellery and Potsdamer platz and stands at the southern end of Friedrichstrasse whose intersection with Unter den Linden marks the city's true center. The Germans also said that fighting was swirling around Alexander platz, where the Russians were in the heart of one of Berlin's old commercial centers and were less than a half mile from the eastern end of Unter den Linden.

Push Thru Grunewald

In southwestern Berlin, meanwhile, Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainians captured the city district of Friedenau, and at the same time pushed three miles north thru Grunewald to join Zhukov's army on the south bank of the Spree at Ruhleben.

The Nazi high command claimed that reënforcements and supplies were being dropped by air. The enemy also asserted that German troops west of Berlin had withdrawn from the American 9th army front on the Elbe river, and were fighting eastward in an effort to relieve the city. The Hamburg radio claimed that spearheads of these forces already had reached the area of Ferch, eight miles southwest of captured Potsdam.

Meanwhile, Premier Stalin announced that Marshal Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian army tanks and cavalry north of Berlin were plunging westward toward the last enemy held Baltic ports and captured the towns of Eggesin, Torgelow, Pasewalk, Strasburg, and Templin.

Battle Nearer British

Templin was taken in a 22 mile surge from Angermuende and it carried Rokossovsky's men within 72 miles of Field Marshal Montgomery's British 2d army on the Elbe river bend near Wittenberg.

Far to the south, Marshal Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian army dug deeper in Moravia, capturing 11 places on a 35 mile front between Bruenn [Brno] and the Morava river.

Soviet war correspondent Nikolai Asanov said that the Nazis in Berlin were breaking into apartments hunting for civilian clothes and that the "quantity of abandoned uniforms scattered in back yards and entrances of houses is amazing."

Amid the giant piles of ruins and dead, Asanov said, an underground war has broken out in sewers and subways, which not only are being used as centers of fighting, but also as hiding places.

More complicated than the battle of the subways, was the sewer war, Asanov said. Donning rubber coats, soviet troops went underground to block Berlin's shattered sewage system and halt German attempts to penetrate soviet rear positions.

Blow Up Sewers

"There are deafening explosions from beneath the ground, shaking the streets and splitting the asphalt," he said.

In one area, he said, he was walking down a street and "I saw a long, dirty bare arm extend like a snake from the lid of a manhole. It held a white flag. A group of Germans slinked out, blinking in the light, afraid of their conquerors."

The sun was never seen in Berlin, he said. It was shut out by billowing clouds of dust and smoke. "There is no shelter for man or pigeon in this place," Asanov said. "Birds fly on their tender wings thru sheets of fire. They are burned and plummet to the ground, dying among the Germans."

"The city's reservoirs, canals, and the bed of the Spree river are choked with bodies and with the wrecks of machines, tanks, automobiles, and guns," Asanov said. "I leave this sickening city," he said at the conclusion of his graphic eye witness report.

BEVIN SAYS END OF REICH RAISES HUGE PROBLEMS

BRISTOL, England, April 28 [Reuters]—The passing of Germany will raise enormous problems for the rest of the world, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said here tonight.

The men meeting at San Francisco, he said, "are legislating not for now, not for you, not for me, but for the generations yet unborn.

"If they fail, because of difficulties at the moment, to lay the right foundation who can say what our children or our children's children may have to face. We can never again wait behind the walls of the navy to build up an army and expect to keep the enemy at bay if war starts again. My obsession is that a right conclusion will be arrived at so that the security of our people may be assured."

BOMB DAMAGE TO ST. PAUL'S PUT AT $400,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 28—Experts assessing the cost of repairing bomb damage to St. Paul's cathedral today were reported to have fixed $400,000 as the minimum cost, which may be raised by an empire-wide appeal for funds.

The main damage was to the high altar, which was destroyed. Many incendiaries also burned the remains of the altar and the great organ, which was damaged when a bomb penetrated the church's northwest transept. This missile also plunged into the crypt, in which some larger organ pipes had been hidden for safety earlier in the war.

The organ also is damaged by heavy layers of dust. The cost of restoring the organ alone probably will be $60,000. Its case was designed by Percival Wren and its carvings by Grinling Gibbons.

DENMARK WAITS TO STRIKE OFF NAZI SHACKLES

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 28 (AP)—"Fortress Denmark" looms today as the weakest of all Nazi strongholds.

The task of clearing the enemy from the little homeland of nearly 4,000,000 Nazi-hating Danes falls upon Gen. Eisenhower's allied supreme command. The tactical leadership will be supplied by Field Marshal Montgomery.

There is no indication it will be an operation undertaken jointly with the Red army. Just as overlapping offensive zones were carefully avoided in the Balkans, the same policy apparently has been formulated for Scandinavia.

The Danes proudly expect their internal resistance movement, in which communists and conservatives are arrayed side by side, will prove as effective as the French maquis when the hour strikes.

6,000 Patriots Wait

It is only a short ferry ride to Copenhagen for 6,000 members of the Free Danish "police and relief corps" who have been concentrating in southwestern Sweden. Their commander, Maj. Gen. K. Knudtzon, former commander of the Danish royal guard and the Jutland division, awaits further allied orders.

The German garrison in Denmark is commanded by an old time cavalryman, Col. Gen. George Lindeman, who arrived in February to prepare his troops for the bitter days ahead.

He publicly has spoken of resistance "to the last man," but rumor says he has released his officers from the obligation to obey SS [elite guard] commands unless they are countersigned by the wehrmacht.

Among his troops, variously estimated from 50,000 to 120,000 men, morale is extremely shaky.

Underground Defies SS

At Lindeman's back stands a ruthless figure, SS Gen. Guenther Pancke, whose big staff of Gestapo veterans boasts of executing two patriots for every Danish informer's death. [The allied controled Luxemburg radio reports Pancke has committed suicide.]

Regardless of the SS terror, the Danish underground furnishes a steady flow of intelligence reports to allied headquarters. No German move goes unnoticed. When Lindeman recently commandeered a large villa at Nykobing on the Island of Falster, comfortably closer to Sweden, this was discovered almost immediately.

The fate of 300,000 German civilian refugees and 60,000 wehrmacht wounded in Denmark may finally weigh upon the conscience of the German command. It is certain to be a pressing point if Sweden uses its nuetral good offices to obtain an end of German resistance there.

REPORT REVOLT IN SALZBURG, LED BY FUNK

Believed Suppressed; SS Battles Troops

ON THE GERMAN-SWISS FRONTIER, April 28 (AP)—An effort to establish a new German government under leadership of Walther Funk, president of the reichsbank, at Salzburg failed last Tuesday, it was learned reliably tonight.

Heavy fighting between German army troops and SS men was reported in Salzburg—12 miles north of Berchtesgaden—and the situation was said still to be chaotic.

Funk has served as minister of economics and as a member of the war time ministerial council.

Five Meet with Funk

Reports from across the frontier from sources usually reliable said that Funk and five other members of the old reich government met at Salzburg on April 24 and issued a proclamation that said "the government has ceased to exist," and urged Germans to stop all resistance.

The proclamation said "local authorities are requested to act as they see fit to avoid any further bloodshed. The German army is capitulating, and any further resistance will only worsen the future of the German people."

The reports said the proclamation was signed by Funk as provisional Reich's chancellor," and by Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch as "minister of war."

The Gestapo intervened, suppressed the new self-constituted government, and arrested two members, these reports continued.

Four others, including Funk and Von Brauchitsch, were said to have escaped under German army protection. Fighting broke out in Salzburg, and so far as could be learned tonight, still continued.

Soldiers Revolt in Munich

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—German soldiers revolted today in Munich, birthplace of Naziism and scene of another revolt in 1923—the Hitler beer cellar push.

Anti-Nazi troops, attempting to seize the Bavarian government in the waning hours of Hitler's power, won control of the city's radio station long enough to broadcast a call to German troops to lay down their arms.

Leaders of the attempted coup declared in their broadcast that Gen. Ritter von Epp, long a stanch Nazi and governor of Bavaria, had decided to break off the fight against the allies as senseless.

Paul Giesler, gauleiter of Munich, broadcasting personally after the revolt apparently was almost stifled, declared "a party of deserters who are still calling themselves soldiers, I am sorry to say, tried to arrest me and use me for their dirty business."

The "traitorous element," under a Capt. Wernecke" has been made harmless," Geisler said.

Giesler declared "these traitors wanted to stab us in the back in this most difficult of all hours. We can only survive if we remain faithful to our Fuehrer."

A parade of Nazi officials came to German microphones denouncing the attempted coup.

Giesler exhorted Germans to "not let yourselves be disturbed during the next hours, days, and weeks by misuse of broadcasts."

The insurrectionists' broadcast their appeal earlier under the name of the "free Bavarian movement."

American troops driving on the Bavarian capital heard the anti-Nazi broadcast calling on the allies to bomb Field Marshal Kesselring's headquarters at Pullach, six miles south of Munich.

Urged to Stop Fighting

A field dispatch from a correspondent with the 3d army, quoted the Munich radio as saying the revolt started with Von Epp seizing power.

"The hour of freedom has struck," the broadcast said, asking calm faith in the new leadership, exhorting Germans to stop fighting, and French prisoners to leave work.

There was no word from Von Epp himself. He once ordered death for hundreds of workers in Bavaria to stamp out a Socialist movement.

Ernest Roehm, Brown Shirt captain slain by Hitler's purge at Munich over a decade ago, was a protege of Van Epp

The Munich station broadcast a proclamation accusing Capt. Wernecke of perpetrating the "hoax."

CIVILIANS REBEL, AUGSBURG FALLS IN 'BREEZE' PUSH

Citizens Guard Spans; Nazi Kills Self

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

AUGSBURG, Germany, April 28—The assistance of civilians rebelling against the Nazis today aided the 3d infantry division in occupying Augsburg and led to the dramatic capture of the German general commanding, the area. His staff of 14 was taken with him and one of his officers committed suicide in the presence of the Americans.

Late last night the 3d battalion of the division's 15th regiment broke thru a lineup of 88 millimeter guns to reach the outskirts of Augsburg. An Augsburg citizen, who said that the represented the burgomeister and a faction anxious to have the city spared by surrendering it, came thru the lines and met Maj. John O'Connell, the Bronx, N. Y., commander of the battalion.

Vows to Board Bridges

The emissary promised his fellows would be stationed at bridges across the Lech river, which flows thru the town, and would resist any German military trying to destroy the spans.

Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the 3d division, was willing to accept such aid, having in mind the experience of Nuernberg, where fanatic resistance cost him casualties and forced the destruction of the city.

So just as daybreak Maj. O'Connell, Lt. William C. Leipold, Ottawa, Ill., and Lt. James Morris, Philadelphia, Pa., came up to one bridge in a jeep with several tanks behind them. Sure enough, the civilians were there, and the German soldiers in the vicinity were so surprised that they were quickly seized.

"A Breeze," Says Chicagoan

Capt. Warren Stuart, 10943 Longwood dr., Chicago, coming up right behind the tanks, described the affair as a "breeze."

"We whizzed up so fast to that bridge and the next one that most of the German soldiers did not know what was going on," Stuart said.

About 9 a. m. the civilians led O'Connell's party to an underground air shelter in the center of town. The Americans shoved aside the iron doors and burst in on the German commander, Brig. Gen. Franz Fehn, and his staff officers. Lt. Col. Munster, dashed into another room and shot himself thru the head.

No explanation was forthcoming why Munster had killed himself. Gen. Fehn, unperturbed, ordered some of his litter bearers to remove the corpse.

YANKS RECOVERING GREAT AMMUNITION STORES IN AACHEN

Rich stores of ammunition which the Germans had concealed for house to house fighting have been uncovered by army ordnance crews in Aachen, Col. John Slezak, chief of the Chicago ordnance district, reported yesterday. He said the information was received from 1st army headquarters in Germany.

Highly trained army ordnance men are scouring Aachen, digging into rubble, cellars, back yards, and public buildings, the colonel added. Similar searches are being made in other communities all the way from the Rhine river to Berlin.

All of the ammunition, grenades, mines, and other stores are being preserved and placed under guard in open streets until they can be put into supply lines for use against the enemy. In one residence were found three tons of bullets and shells. A hotel gave up 16 tons and in a 100 foot square plot of ground were screened 10 S mines and 44 teller mines. Grenades wrapped in clothing were found in houses.

BRITISH PAPERS SENT BY AIR TO TROOPS ABROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 28—While some American newspapers are experiencing difficulty in obtaining permission of foreign governments to print their overseas editions in centers close to United States forces, the British air ministry tonight announced that British Sunday newspapers are being flown to troops in all distant overseas commands.

Nearly half of the 85,000 which are sent each week are dispatched to men in India and southeast Asia.

All Sunday newspapers are sent in packages of 500 papers each to a London rail terminal by noon Sunday for forwarding to an airport whence they are flown, never later than Monday, to the various theaters for distribution by welfare officers.

NEED FOR WHOLE BLOOD CITED BY EX-JAP PRISONER

When Mrs. E. C. Rider, 25, of Nyack, N. Y., passed thru Chicago yesterday on her way to Washington, D. C., to see her husband, a commander in the navy, after she had been three years in a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines, she stopped at the Red Cross blood bank, 5 N. Wabash av., to assure 200 sailors from Great Lakes naval training center that the "O" type whole blood which they donated is urgently needed on the Pacific fighting fronts.

Last week, Chicago joined the Pacific area whole blood service, and blood now donated here reaches Guam in three days on its way to Okinawa. Mrs. Rider told of American prisoners kept from dying of malnutrition by plasma transfusions in prison camps from a carefully hoarded supply.

The Red Cross said blood is needed more urgently now than ever before and urged donors to call the Red Cross blood bank, WAB. 7950, for an appointment.

BARRINGTON ROW CAUSES OIL FIRM TO HOLD OFF LAB

Henry M. Dawes, president of the Pure Oil company, said last night that the company will not proceed with the construction of a proposed laboratory in Barrington "unless it is acceptable to the neighbors it would have." He made his statement following the voicing of vigorous protests at a zoning hearing Friday in the Atkins hotel in Barrington, in which C. Kenneth Hunter, vice president of Hogan & Farwell, real estate firm, was reported to have been struck in the eye. The hearing was adjourned until May 19.

GERMANS GREET ADVANCING G. I.s AS LIBERATORS

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, April 28—On the front and behind the front today were imponderables and incongruities—big words meaning "What's cooking?" Armor and infantry moved south on a 75 mile front from the Danube without encountering resistance where it might be expected if the Nazis had any remaining strength to match our forces.

Lt. Gen. Patton's army was advancing toward the Isar river, 25 miles southeast of the Danube crossings, the last remaining barrier before the Alps, real or mythical Nazi stronghold for the final holdout.

Front line American troops found themselves greeted in the villages as liberators rather than as conquerors, with women and children waving and cheering.

Nazi Fawning Suggested

Some civilians said they were happy to be freed from the Nazi reign of terrorism. Some said they welcomed escape from Russian capture. Some G. I.s suspected the Germans were merely fawning for favor, like the children smile and beg for chewing gum and chocolate from the columns of tanks and trucks.

In Eichstatt two Catholic priests told of seeing an incident similar to the Regensburg hanging of two leaders of a peace demonstration. Fearing bombardment of the town as retaliation, two guardsmen cut the demolition cable to save the bridge and were hanged in the village square for 25 hours by SS [elite guard] Hitler fanatics.

Patton's divisions in their march down the Danube valley have spared towns that capitulate and virtually razing those that resist. News of these tactics has spread ahead of the army.

An Army Headache

In villages that were the front lines only three or four days ago men, women, and children are acting toward the soldiers as if the war is over, extending invitations that cannot be accepted under rules against fraternization. The inevitable romantic incidents are an army headache. Along the streams in the wooded hills, French, Russian, and Polish liberated prisoners of war seem content to catch the bountiful trout and live at hospitable and well stocked farms.

In Bayreuth, in the heatless Wagner Memorial theater, seat of the annual Wagner festival since 1872, Wallys Nims played an accordion where Toscanini once directed the orchestra and a G. I. audience yelled "Take it off!" at Jeanne Frances of Hollywood, doing a contortionist dance under an unused loft of operatic scenery.

13 Receive Citizenship

Also at Bayreuth, which was the front only a week ago, 13 United States combat soldiers received American citizenship after renouncing their native lands of Mexico, Poland, Canada, Italy, and Germany.

Among them was Pvt. Roger Turcan, 5257 Agatite av., Chicago, holder of the silver star and the Purple Heart, who previously had been denied citizenship owing to his illegal entry into the United States from Canada, where his parents settled after moving from Poland when he was a baby.

Interviews with generals of the 3d army brought no more enlightenment about the outlook of the war than did the wave of the little blonde girl at the tanks passing her hereditary mortar and rock farmhouse.

250 YANK CAPTIVES SEE 3 FRENCH GIRLS BEATEN TO DEATH

PARIS, April 28 (AP)—Three French girls were stripped and whipped to death in the presence of 250 American soldiers in a German prison camp, M. E. Walter, managing editor of the Houston Chronicle and a member of the editors' party investigating German camps, said today.

Walter quoted Sgt. William Sandler, a Kentuckian who said he witnessed the murders, and later saw the whips.

"The sergeant said the Germans had discovered the French women and the Americans were mutually helping each other in the camp," Walter related. "The prisoners were assembled, and the young women were lined up in front of them and forced to undress. German guards then took cat-o'-nine-tails and beat them until they died."

Chicagoan on Freed List

OTTAWA, Ont., April 28 (AP)—Three United States soldiers were included in a list of Canadian prisoners of war liberated by allied armies, released last night by defense headquarters.

The men are Corp. Thomas John Copeland, son of Mrs. Grace Copeland, 5250 N. Kenmore av., Chicago; Sgt. Bruce George Hamilton, whose wife lives in Nashville, Tenn., and Pvt. Thomas Harold Edwards, whose wife lives in New York City.

SPOTTER PLANE MAKES SURPRISE LINK WITH REDS

Invited to Land for Hand Shakes

WITH AN INFANTRY DIVISION IN GERMANY, April 28 (AP)—An artillery Cub observation plane has made an unorthodox linkup between soviet troops and this veteran infantry division.

Flying in the tiny aircraft ahead of advancing American patrols yesterday, Lts. Donald "Mike" Young, Fort Collins, Colo., and Joseph William Kilkenny, Brooklyn, N. Y., were fired upon. They veered southward along the Elbe river and spotted an unfamiliar troop formation.

Circle to Learn Identity

Circling to try to establish the identity of this force, they saw ground troops start to shoot at them and then hold fire at the sight of the gleaming white stars on the wings.

They flew down and "buzzed" the column and Russians began wildly waving white handkerchiefs as a signal that they wanted the Americans to land. The flyers found a small field northwest of the Elbe and set down at 7:20 p. m.

Swap Some Souvenirs

Jubilant Russians immediately surrounded the plane and began shaking hands all around with the two Yanks and swapping souvenirs.

"They said they were looking forward happily to tomorrow when they link up with American ground forces in our area," said Young.

"They wanted to take us back to their division headquarters," said Kilkenny, "but it was getting late. We just shook hands again and flew back, to our command post."

FIND NAZIS USED CAMP TO KILL OFF FOES' THINKERS

U. S. Board of Inquiry Tells of Buchenwald

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 28—The mission of the Nazis' Buchenwald concentration camp for men near Weimar was to serve as an "extermination factory" because mere death was "not bad enough for anti-Nazis," according to an official report submitted to allied supreme headquarters by American investigators.

The camp was inspected after its liberation by the United States army Brig. Gen. Eric F. Wood, Lt. Col. Charles H. Ott, and Chief Warrant Officer S. M. Dye. They were guided by a French commandant, Renee L'Hospital, once aide to the late Marshal Foch, who had been a prisoner in the camp for two months. Allied headquarters published the report today.

The French commandant normally weighed 175 pounds but he was down to 95.

Starvation, Work, Beatings

Buchenwald had been in operation since 1933, when the Nazi party came into power, the report said, and the Nazis deliberately exterminated their enemies thru "starvation complicated by hard work, abuse, beatings and torture, and incredibly crowded sleeping conditions."

"By these means, tens of thousands of the best leadership personnel in Europe, including German democrats and anti-Nazis, have been exterminated," the report added, mentioning that six out of the nine French generals originally committed to the camp died there.

The recent death rate was estimated at 200 daily, 5,700 dying or being killed in February, 5,900 in March, and 2,000 in the first 10 days of April.

The survivors, among whom "any one was of outstanding intellectual or moral qualifications," Gen Wood reported, numbered about 20,000. Four thousand were Jews.

One thousand boys less than 14 years old were in the prison.

Many Distinguished Captives

Among the French prisoners were four anti-Vichy members of parliament, eight high ranking generals, professors at the University of Paris, the Pasteur institute, and the University of Caen, and many lawyers, engineers, doctors, and editors.

The report described the camp installations, such as the little camp where the recent death rate was between 2 and 4 per cent daily; a barracks that was so crowded each person had less than 40 cubic feet [the United States army requires 600]; the hospital, where the death rate ran from 5 to 20 per cent daily; the medical experimentation building, "used for medical experiments and vivisections .... where few who entered came out alive," and the body disposal plant.

The report confirmed the story that tattooed human skin was converted into souvenirs at the camp.

Massacre Victims Buried

WAR PRISONERS PUT UNDER MORE STRINGENT RULE

Precautions Taken Against Coddling

Less meat and more beans and fish were decreed by the 6th service command yesterday for enemy prisoners of war under its jurisdiction.

Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding general, said the edict places more stringent regulations on food for prisoners whose menus have been progressively curtailed in line with growing shortages of meat and other food items.

No Starvation Here

Nevertheless, he added, three substantial meals a day will be provided and no enemy prisoner of war will suffer any type of malnutrition or starvation so common in German and Japanese prison camps.

The new regulations call for more meatless meals, with such substitutions as "cheap grades of fish, macaroni, spaghetti, beans, and other similar entrees."

Delicacies like butter, cheese, jellies, canned fruit, and juices were marked off the list long ago. Rendered fats were substituted for lard. Canned milk and sugar have been cut to the minimum.

Ban Nazi Salute

At the same time, Gen. Reynolds said, steps have been taken to enforce the war department order banning use of the nazi salute by prisoners.

Under these restrictions, all German and Italian soldiers are compelled to use the right hand salute with bent elbow. Confiscation of all German flags marked with the nazi swastika was ordered. Prisoners who die will be accorded full military honors, but without nazi flags and nazi ceremonies.

As another precaution against coddling, the 6th service command is using as many as possible of returned overseas veterans as guards in prisoner of war camps. It was explained these men are familiar with the provisions of the Geneva convention and the need for firm but fair treatment.

Mrs. Berenice Diddington, 6523 May st., reported to police yesterday that a man held her up in back of her home and robbed her of $20.

DRAFT DIRECTOR WANTS V-E DAY TO BE HOLY DAY

Col. Paul G. Armstrong, state director of selective service, coined the slogan yesterday in a letter to members of draft boards asking them to carry on their jobs when victory in Europe is announced.

"We know, better than most people in civilian life, that the men we sent into battle will find little reason for hilarious celebration when V-E day is proclaimed and we should set an example to the rest of the civilian world by continuing our loyal and our grave and important duties on V-E day," he said.

"V-E day—make it a holy day—not a holiday," the state director concluded.

EYEWITNESS TELLS CAPTURE OF MUSSOLINI

Recognized by Italians in Flight to Redoubt

BY P. E. BRIQUET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, April 28—The circumstances of Benito Mussolini's foiled attempt to flee from Italy yesterday and his seizure by Italian partisans were described to this correspondent today by an eye witness.

"I saw Mussolini speed past Cernobbio, along the northern shore of Lake Como," he said. "He was in a closed car in the center of a motorized German column armed with machine guns. He was dressed in his Italian uniform but was attempting to disguise himself. under a German military cloak.

"The caravan was rushing northward apparently in an effort to deliver their nervous passenger to Stelvio, Germany, in the Alpine redoubt. Mussolini appeared to be keeping his head down for fear of being recognized.

He Looked Frightened

"At Cernobbio I heard that he attempted to get permission to enter a neutral country. When this was denied him he renewed his flight.

"A bystander remarked that he looked frightened, and another said, 'Yes, he even pretended to be a German.' 'No,' said the other, 'he always was one.'"

At a town farther along Como's shores Mussolini was recognized by Partisans, my informant said, adding:

"He was identified by guards and a customs officer who phoned ahead to the town of Dongo. There the Partisans halted the party and surrounded the motorized column. The German escort put up no fight, and Mussolini was seized along with them."

In a Cell at Como

The eyewitness did not know what had become of the captured dictator, but I learned later that he was in a cell at the Sandannino prison in Como.

[A Swiss radio broadcast said that Mussolini had been taken to Milan last night by Italian patriots and turned over to a court martial of the Italian liberation committee, an Associated Press dispatch from London said. Cardinal Schuster, archbishop of Milan, appealed to the populace in a pastoral letter to refrain from violence and leave judgment to the proper authorities, the broadcast said.]

Apparently none of his neo-Fascist followers were with Mussolini when he was arrested. He had motored from Milan the day before, and remained at Como all night in spite of the Partisan revolt there, departing early yesterday with his Nazi guard.

IRANIAN EDITORS TO TOUR U. S. AS GUESTS OF OWI

Coast to Coast Trip Arranged

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—Four Iranian journalists will start a coast to coast tour from New York next week.

Their visit to this country, as unofficial guests of the state department and the office of war information, is a direct result of new Iranian interest in American products and ways of doing things. Department officials said this interest springs from the presence in Iran of American forces manning supply lines to Russia.

Teheran Editors in Group

The guests are:

Abol G. Hassem Amini, editor and publisher of a Teheran weekly, deputy in parliament, and a pioneer in the introduction of modern agricultural methods to his country; Abbas Massoudi, member of parliament and influential publisher; Dr. Mustapha Mesbahzadeh, editor and head of the state propaganda and press service, and Majid Movaqar, publisher and business man who has built modern industrial plants in Teheran.

The Iranians are interested chiefly in American methods in irrigation, flood control, power generation, sheep raising, and flour milling—all important in Iran's economy.

Will Visit TVA

The group will leave New York Wednesday, May 2, and visit the Tennessee valley authority area, farmers coöperatives around Asheville, N. C., and see malaria control methods near Chattanooga, Tenn. After a day at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama they will spend three days in New Orleans, La., and then fly to New Mexico by way of El Paso, Tex.

At Albuquerque they will visit Indian reservations, irrigation projects, and inspect sheep raising methods at Gallup. After four days in southern California they will go to San Francisco May 20 to attend the allied conference. On their return trip they will visit Provo, Utah; Minneapolis, Minn.; Chicago, and Niagara Falls, N. Y.

GRAZIANI SEIZED AND FARINACCI REPORTED SHOT

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—Allied headquarters at Rome announced Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Mussolini's No. 1 assistant and "heir," also has been captured.

The Milan radio reported Roberto Farinacci, Mussolini's delegate to the German command, had been captured, tried and executed by the patriot council.

Reported Shot to Death

Graziani has been a stalwart in the Fascist government, and was minister of war for Mussolini's puppet government in north Italy. Italians generally recognized him as the man who would succeed Mussolini.

The Milan broadcast said Farinacci had been tried by a patriot court and shot to death. The execution was carried out before a crowd gathered in the square at Vimercate in northern Italy, the report said.

Another Milan broadcast said Lt.

Gen. Achille Starace, former chief of staff of the Fascist militia and former secretary of the Fascist party, also has been seized by the patriots.

Radio Adds Appeal

The radio said both Farinacci and Graziani were captured when patriots overran their headquarters, and added that the lives of Fascist chiefs be spared until each person's "personal responsibility" for crimes may be determined.

"In the case of death sentences," the broadcast added, "execution should take place within a day."

[A Partisan radio station in North Italy said Guido Buffarini-Guidi, former secretary of state and minister of the interior in the fascist government of Mussolini, had been captured.]

Goebbels' Brother in Custody

U. S. 1ST ARMY, Germany, April 28 (AP)—Hans Goebbels, brother of the German propaganda minister and a high ranking Nazi, was taken into custody today by infantry men.

The brother of Dr. Joseph Goebbels was arrested at his home at Millrath, in the conquered Ruhr.

Goebbels first denied any connection with the Nazi party but later acknowledged that he was "an oberfuehrer [major general] in the Neiderrhein SS anti-aircraft group. Two Nazi hats were in his luggage.

Leopold Return Denied

BRUSSELS, April 28 (AP)—The Belgian public, in a high state of excitement and expectation over rumors of the impending return of King Leopold III., was told by its government today that reports of the monarch's liberation were "without any foundation."

Reports originating in Switzerland this week said the Nazi held ruler was expected to cross the border into that neutral country.

The terse government bulletin said merely: "The council of ministers announced officially that all the rumors concerning the king are without any foundation."

ROCKFORD HERO OF ITALY ACTION AWARDED D.S.C.

WITH THE 5TH ARMY, Italy, April 28 (AP)—America's second highest combat decoration, the distinguished service cross, has been awarded to Tech. Sgt. Paul W. Anderson of Rockford, Ill., who killed four Germans, wounded three, and captured 15 others in action on the 5th army front in Italy.

The action involved Anderson's battalion's capture of a mountain community from which four previous attacks had been beaten back. Anderson was leader of a squad in the 2d battalion, 338th infantry regiment, 85th "Custer" division.

"Sgt. Anderson practically took the enemy strongpoint singlehandedly," his company commander, Capt. William G. Coblin of Frankfort, Ky., said. Anderson is the son of Mrs. Ruth Anderson, route 5, Alder av., Rockford.

Trim Propaganda, Free Newsprint, Briton to Ask

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 28. — An attempt to get more newsprint for British papers will be made in commons next week. Comdr. Locker Lampson will ask whether the allies can reduce the number of political propaganda publications being printed in Germany and thus free paper "for better use in England."

ALLIES CHARGE FRENCH DELAY 7TH ARMY PUSH

Assail Refusal to Move Out of Stuttgart

PARIS, April 28 (AP)—A supreme headquarters statement today declared the French 1st army was obstructing the allies' drive southeast against the Nazi redoubt by its persistence in continuing to occupy Stuttgart.

The statement said headquarters of the 6th army group, which includes the French 1st and the United States 7th armies and is commanded by Gen. Devers, had asked the French 1st to move out of the city. Stuttgart was captured by the French. At last reports they still were in the city and backed by the French council of ministers.

French Stress Saar Claim

The council has criticized the request on the grounds that the Big 3 has not acted on France's post-war occupation zone claims. The French have asked for virtually outright occupation of the Saarland plus defined occupational and policing rights after the war on the cross-Rhine belt from the Ruhr down to Lake Constance.

The text of the supreme headquarters statement:

"The instructions of the 6th army group to the 1st French army with reference to their presence in Stuttgart were concerned not with the future territory or zone of occupation of Germany by French troops but with the fact that Stuttgart was included in the operational boundary of the zone of operations of the 7th United States army and not in the operational zone of the French 1st army.

Important Rail Center

"Stuttgart is an important rail, communication, and supply center which was selected to serve the military requirements of the 7th army in order that operations of that army in the defeat of the common enemy would be facilitated.

"In the event that Stuttgart is not available for the requirements of the 7th army, a less desirable and less efficient communications and supply center will have to be developed to serve the needs of the 7th army in their assigned mission of destroying the enemy in their zone of advance."

Walks Again

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Publisher John B. Powell, who lost both feet in Jap concentration camp, walking on artificial feet in New York hospital yesterday.

EDITOR POWELL TO RESUME HIS OWN WAR ON JAP

Maimed by Foe, He'll Return to China

New York, April 28 (AP)—Publisher John B. Powell, who lost his feet three years ago in a Japanese internment camp, will walk from Harkness Pavillion hospital some time next month to carry on his fight to further American-Oriental understanding.

"As soon as I can get about on these things," he said, pointing to his new artificial feet, he plans to return to China and the work that earned him the special attention of the Jap gendarmerie, counter-part of the Nazi Gestapo.

Spent Two Years in Bed

The fiery little editor of the China Weekly Review and former correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE spent two years in a hospital bed repairing the damage of Jap brutality and neglect after being repatriated on the exchange liner Gripsholm.

The Japanese clamped him into solitary confinement the morning after the Pearl Harbor attack. They long had objected to his writings, which they said insulted their mikado.

Even as he underwent painful skin grafting operations on that portion of his feet which gangrene did not destroy, he wrote a book in line with his avowed intention to try to educate Americans in the background of the Pacific war.

"The orient is 1,000 times more important to the United States than Europe," Powell said in an interview. "It's a vastly rich, undeveloped territory which looks to the United States for assistance in building railroads, sanitation facilities, water plants, for developing medical relief and improving educational opportunities.

U. S. Gains Prestege

"The orient has the desire to develop, the money to pay, and the labor to work. American prestige there has been tremendously enhanced by the war against the Japanese."

Powell said the Japanese might sue for peace after the fall of Germany—"only to save what they can, to be better prepared to try again."

"They should be completely defeated and broken, their military power, fleet, and heavy industries smashed, so that they never again will be in a position to endanger the peace," he said.

NEW 15TH ARMY MAY TAKE OVER OCCUPIED AREA

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, PARIS, April 28 (AP)—The new American 15th army will take over occupation of the United States section of Germany, it was indicated today.

Military government officers at the headquarters of the 15th commander, Lt. Gen. Gerow, said there would be no pampering of Germans by occupation forces. The Americans are expected to occupy much of southern Germany, a section now under attack by the 3d and 7th and the French 1st armies.

German civilians will be allowed a diet one-third that of the American soldier, and only slightly more than half as generous as the standard set for liberated Europe. Average Germany rations will total 1,150 calories.

The Maximum Diet

At the office of Col. Thomas J. Moroney, former banker of Dallas, Tex., and now assistant chief of staff under Gerow, an officer said German civilians could expect the slim diet in the months to come. A spokesman termed the 1,150 calories the maximum diet and asserted that German civilians were not getting that much to eat in some areas at present.

The spokesman said the amount Germans eat will depend directly on how willing they are to work now to reëstablish their own food economy. He said food will be imported for Germans only if needed to prevent famine and disease. He added:

"The policy is that German production shall be called upon to feed German civilians and also Russian, French, Belgian, Polish, and other displaced persons now in Germany awaiting transport to return home.

"Food from allied sources will be brought to Germany to feed displaced persons only after German resources have been exploited fully."

Fourth of Captives at Work

German diet control will be exercised by allied occupation authorities thru civilian and provincial officials, and mayors.

Less than one-fourth of the 2,250,000 German prisoners taken on the western front have been put to work, but the allies are considering a plan to make them work and keep them working, for years perhaps, in rebuilding the Europe which they ravaged.

Already from the liberated lands of western Europe, France foremost among them, have come requests for prisoner labor to till fields, rebuild roads, and mine coal—labor by the tens of thousands.

These are the essentials now, but the rebuilding of towns and all the rest of the gigantic task will come next and probably soon.

Called Slave Labor

The plan has been criticized as slave labor, but here where there is so much to do and so few men and so little mechanical means with which to do it, it is vital labor. It is widely regarded here that only by sweat can Germany repay and restore.

Prisoners probably at this moment present the allies with their most troublesome oversupply.

Of the 2,250,000 of them more than 1,000,000 have been scooped up this month alone, faster than they could be put to work and almost faster than they can be processed into camps.

Some 150,000 to 200,000 prisoners have been sent to the United States.

FLEET ATTACKED BY JAP PLANES; ONE SHIP SUNK

57 Craft Shot Down in Two Days

GUAM, April 29 [Sunday]—(AP)—Japanese aircraft attacked United States warships off Okinawa Friday night, sinking an auxiliary vessel and causing some other damage, Adm. Nimitz announced today.

Twenty-five Japanese planes were destroyed and two probably shot down in that attack. On Saturday carrier airplanes shot down 32 Japanese planes around Okinawa, Kikai, and Yuku Islands in the Ryukyus. Nimitz did not mention any attack by them.

On the southern Okinawa front 24th army corps troops "moved slowly forward, destroying pillboxes, caves, and strongpoints," the bulletin said.

Planes Pound Japs

Heavy artillery was employed against Japanese troop concentrations in rear areas and land based marine planes joined carrier aircraft in giving support to the doughboys. Naval guns continued their heavy bombardment.

Nimitz' bulletin gave no details about ground action. Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th army corps is closing in on Machinato air field on the west coast and Yonabaru on the east.

Tokyo radio reported the Friday attack on the American ships cost the United States two cruisers, including the Savannah, sunk and a third cruiser damaged and four transports sunk.

Destroy Jap Vessels

There was considerable activity during the night by Japanese small craft off Okinawa. A number were destroyed.

Land based search planes sank three small Japanese cargo ships and damaged several in sweeps thru the Ryukyus.

Aircraft from escort carriers bombed and strafed air fields in the Sakishima Islands in the southern Ryukyus, and army Liberators bombed installations on Truk in the Carolines.

BRITISH PUSH 56 MILES IN DAY'S RANGOON DRIVE

CALCUTTA, India, April 28 (AP)—British spearheads aided by Burmese guerrillas were closing in fast today on the port of Rangoon and reports put the British only 62 miles from the burning capital.

The Japanese were reported evacuating heavy equipment from Rangoon by sea, and also by train to Thailand. Strategic bombers attacking the imperilled citadel, taken by the Japanese March 8, 1942, found large fires blazing on the waterfront as they approached.

An official announcement said the British armored troops had rolled 56 miles in 24 hours, evidence of little Japanese resistance in their path.

YANKS CAPTURE BAGUIO, FILIPINO RESORT CAPITAL

Garrison Is Destroyed, Says Gen. MacArthur

MANILA, April 29 [Sunday] (AP)—Long defended Baguio, mile high summer capital of the Philippines on northern Luzon, fell to the American 33d army division Friday, Gen. MacArthur announced today. Many of the 33d's men are from Illinois.

Baguio, a prime objective of MacArthur's men since their Jan. 9 invasion of Luzon Island at Lingayen gulf, was taken in a gradual encircling move with artillery and aircraft strongly supporting the foot soldiers.

Garrison Destroyed

The Japanese garrison was destroyed, MacArthur said. American casualties were termed "amazingly light."

MacArthur said members of the Filipino government who collaborated with the Japanese puppet regime and had taken refuge at Baguio "have either surrendered or fled."

Thirty-seventh division Yanks joined the 33d in completing the capture of Baguio, shell wrecked city which once was a popular summer resort for Manilans.

Cross Mindanao

Twenty-fourth division troops completed their crossing of southern Mindanao from Moro gulf to Davao gulf by reaching Digos, 25 miles south of Davao city, a principal port of the Philippines.

MacArthur announced the 31st army division had joined the 24th for the push to Davao, where the enemy is expected to make a strong stand. Davao is the last major Japanese strongpoint in the Philippines.

DECORATE NINE CHICAGO YANKS AT FORT CUSTER

Battle Creek, Mich., April 28 [Special]—Nine Chicago soldiers received decorations at a special ceremony today at the Percy Jones hospital center at Fort Custer. The awards were presented by Brig. Gen. Jos. E. Bastion, commanding officer.

Pvt. Daniel Horwitz, 4506 Lake Park av., a medical aid man of the 45th division, was given the silver star for valor on Oct. 17 in France when he crawled 100 yards thru mortar and shell fire to aid a wounded man. Horwitz was hit in the leg by a shell burst.

The bronze star was given to Tech. Sgt. Edward Dwyer, 6460 S. Campbell av., the citation stating that in Belgium last Sept. 14 he directed a gasoline truck thru a heavily shelled area to a group of tanks which were out of fuel and refueled them, enabling them to proceed with an imporant mission.

Purple Heart medals were awarded to the following: Corp. John A. Ramocinski, 2410 S. Sacramento av.; Pvt. Walter W. Sullivan, 1832 W. Huron st.; Pvt. Joseph M. Lyons, 3817 S. Albany av.; Pvt. John W. Delke, 3319 N. Drake av.; Pvt. Thomas C. Vacek, 3028 W. Congress st.; Staff Sgt. Florian J. Bara, 1650 W. 38th st., and Pvt. Jack Boswell, 5400 S. La Salle st.

BOMB HIROHITO'S PALACE TO BITS, CELLER URGES

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—Rep. Celler [D., N. Y.] said today Emperor Hirohito's palace should be "knocked into rubble" by American bombers.

"What makes Hirohito so sacrosanct to some of our officials in the policy making department?" he asked in a statement.

"Hirohito's palace is just as much a military target as is Hitler's abode. I urge that the Mikado's palatial home be knocked into a rubble. Hirohito is the head and front of all the Jap fiendishness. From that very palace undoubtedly came the blueprints of the death march of Bataan."

One Super Fort Lost in Raid on Kyushu Air Fields

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—The 20th air force reported today that the Japanese put up aggressive air resistance to yesterday's B-29 raid on Kyushu air fields and one Super Fort was lost to enemy action.

YANKS PLAY TAG WITH WILY JAP LEADER ON JOLO

BY WALTER SIMMONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

JOLO CITY, Jolo, P. I., April 26 [Delayed]—American troops are playing a game of tag with a Japanese major general on this strange island which has been the scene of almost uninterrupted blood letting for thousands of years.

The crafty leader of the few hundred Japs left on Jolo has been identified by the natives as Maj. Gen. Kuga Susuki. Several times he has narrowly escaped traps set for him by Col. William J. Moroney, Tupelo, Miss., commander of the 163d regiment, which has been cleaning up the island since landing April 9.

Once some of Susuki's gear and insignia were captured. Later the Yanks just missed him but grabbed several suitcases and packs containing all his personal belongings. Today native reports say he has been wounded and is being borne on a stretcher.

Wage a Cagey War

The 163d regiment, which is a part of the 41st division based at Zamboanga, has waged a cagey war on Jolo, and losses have been extremely small. After an unopposed landing which followed a naval bombardment, Col. Moroney rapidly pushed patrols into the interior to locate the enemy.

One motorized group included Pvt. Antonio Alvizu, 1206 S. Damen av., Chicago; Pvt. Alvin Elson, Clinton, Ill., and Tech. 5th Grade Herschel Keller, Jacksonville, Ind. One day it ran into 11 Japs and bagged all 11.

Meanwhile a dismounted patrol was led into action by 1st Lt. Bernard C. Pfirrman, Los Angeles, Cal., who had landed secretly on the island a week before D-day with three of his men.

Chicagoans on Beach

Meeting the landing force on the beach, Lt. Pfirrman led his patrol into action. Among his men are these Chicagoans: Tech. 5th Grade David Levitt, 1737 N. Latrobe av.; Tech. 5th Grade Frank Modla, 4856 S. Winchester av.; Tech. 5t Grade Benedict B..ryszewski, 5335 S. California av.; Tech. 4 Grade Isadore Ulman, 1426 S. Kedzie av.; Pvt. George Kel y, 4415 Irving Park rd.; Pvt. George Walz, 2015 N. Keeler av., and Pvt. William Wong, 239 W. 22d pl.

There are also Staff Sgt. Ora Brant, Frankfort, Ind.; Tech. 5th Grade John Italia, Melrose Park, Ill.; Pvt. Edward Kaczmagek, 1115 Darrow av., Evanston; Pvt. Willis Shadday, Mansfield, Ill.; Pvt. Jack Hornecker, Pekin, Ill., and Pvt. Archie Rowin, Madison, Wis.

Numerous encounters with the enemy—in one of which Lt. Pfirrman was blown off a tank by a Jap mine—located the main enemy strength on 2,247 foot Mount Daho, an extinct volcano six miles from Jolo City.

Bombers Kill 300.

Dive bombers based at Zamboanga killed more than 300 Japs on Mount Daho in a series of air strikes. Artillery and infantrymen took care of the rest. Gen. Suzuki and a few of his men fled to Mount Tumatangas, a 2,664 foot peak near-by. Here, with all their artillery knocked out, they are making their last stand.

Against them are such midwesterners as Staff Sgt. Herbert Herzog, 170 Kensington av., Tech. 4th Grade Julius Galicke, 837 N. Leavitt st., Tech. Sgt. Thomas Duffy, 7942 Drexel av., Sgt. Roy Swanson, 5115 N. Ashland av., Pvt. William Thompson, 2710 Magnolia av., and Pvt. Robert Parewski, 2218 N. Hamilton av., all of Chicago; Pvt. Robert Sampson, Savanna, Ill., Pvt. John Oathout, Mount Vernon, Ill., and Pvt. James Nash, Johnson City, Ill.

Others on Jolo include Capt. Theodore Sass, 2607 Iowa st., Chicago, regimental dentist; Capt. Jack Rosenfeld, formerly of 5220 Harper st., Chicago, munitions officer; Sgt. Owen Thomason, Centralia, Ill., and Tech. 5th Grade Wallace Fritz, 3004 Logan blvd., Chicago.

John M. Smyth Company ESTABLISHED 1867 tells you the story behind the furniture

QUEEN ANNE WAS SUCH A "HOME-BODY"

... and she dearly loved to spend her time doing fine needlework. She also encouraged all the ladies of her court to make exquisite petit-point, gros-point and lovely tapestries. And so they all stitched away industriously, and their beautiful handiwork was used to cover chairs, sofas, stools and screens. Anne's predecessor, Queen Mary, also stimulated the art of fine needlework by her example ... "sometimes with so constant a diligence as if she had to earn her bread by it," her bishop wrote. That's why fine needlework became so popular for upholstery during both Queen Mary's and "Good" Queen Anne's reigns. And soon "professors" of needlework traveled up and down the country, teaching this polite occupation to wealthy gentlewomen.

We have just the right Chairs for your own lovely needlework

When you make fine needlepoint you may be creating an heirloom which will be treasured for generations to come. How important, then, that the chair on which this exquisite handiwork of yours is to be used is equally worthy to become a cherished heirloom. We have designs of Queen Anne and other 18th century English types, or of Duncan Phyfe or Victorian inspiration, now available for your selection ... all of the fine quality and style for which the John M. Smyth Store has long been famous. And you'll find our prices most reasonable.

NATION STIRRED BY REPORTS OF NAZI SURRENDER

Truman Denies Pact Has Been Reached

been received and that an announcement was expected—probably from the headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower. Connally added that announcement of the surrender was to have been made at 4 p. m. yesterday from Washington but had been held up for some reason, the Associated Press said.

The Associated Press also stated that Connally gave permission for use of his statement without disclosure of its source, but that after the President's denial was issued the Texas senator removed the restriction.

Connally did not reveal where he obtained information on which he based his original announcement. Late last night, however, he still insisted, despite the Presidential repudiation of the report, that he expects "momentarily" an announcement that Germany has surrendered unconditionally.

Gave Advanced Statement

Connally had prepared and gave to the Associated Press an advance statement, to be held for release with the announcement he expected, commenting on Hitler's having met his doom.

The first Connally announcement was on the Associated Press wires approximately 20 minutes after Connally had talked to the reporter.

A bulletin at 6:55 p. m. Chicago time stated: "Germany has surrender to the allied governments unconditionally, and announcement is expected momentarily, it was stated by a high American official today."

This bulletin was followed within a few minutes by amplification that the unnamed official, later disclosed to be Connally, had said the announcement had been expected in Washington at 4 p. m. [3 p. m. Chicago time], and an assertion that there were no strings attached to the surrender.

Word Goes to Millions

Thruout the nation, radio took the word into millions of homes. Newspapers appeared on the streets of nearly every city announcing that Germany had quit. General expectation that the news was shortly to be made official extended to the highest Washington circles.

Mindful of the grim lesson of the 1918 false armistice, other press associations held off from an unqualified announcement of Germany's surrender, but the United Press, responsible for the premature report of the end of World War I., pictured the President as holding himself in readiness to announce the end of the European war and quoted Stephen T. Early, special assistant to the President, as saying that altho official confirmation was still lacking, "as soon as we get it the President will issue a proclamation."

Crowds in Washington

With the scent of victory in the Washington air, crowds gathered around the White House in the early evening. It was estimated that 3,000 persons were milling in the street when President Truman walked across the street at 6:35 p. m. Chicago time to his White House office from his temporary living quarters in Blair house.

Some of the waiting citizens sang "The Star Spangled Banner" as they watched the parade of officials. Even automobiles carrying camera equipment were cheered.

Early and Press Secretary Johnathan Daniels reached the White House a short time after the President had entered. Early received newsmen at 7:30 p. m. Chicago time and told them that neither the war department nor the map room yet had confirmation.

"As soon as we get official confirmation the President will read the proclamation over the four networks," Early said.

"Nothing Official"

At the army public relations office in the Pentagon building it was stated that "absolutely nothing official" had come there. Top war department officials were not reachable.

From San Francisco came a report, adding to the confusion, that a state department representative had said, "Secretary of State Stettinius has made no announcement of any kind on this subject."

In Washington, the state department announced, "no comment." Undersecretary Grew came to his office shortly after 8 p. m., Chicago time, but had nothing to say. Radio networks set up their microphones in the White House oval room where Presidential broadcasts usually are made.

The Presidential press office at 8:15 p. m., Chicago time, said everything was still waiting on confirmation, and 15 minutes later Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information, emerged from the President's private office to state briefly that, "it will be some little time yet."

President Signing Mail

Five minutes later, however, Jonathan Daniels summoned the newsmen into the Presidential office. The President was seated at his desk calmly signing some of his mail when the reporters entered.

Oothers in the room were Adm. Leahy, Democratic National Chairman Hannegan, Early, Daniels, Davis, William D. Hassett, a Presidential secretary, and Ed McKim, Omaha insurance man and close friend of the President.

Nearly 100 newsmen and radio casters crowded into the office before Daniels gave the word that all had entered and nodded to the President to proceed.

The President turned to the swirling and pushing newsmen, all of them expecting to hear from his lips words which would provide the greatest news story of the century.

In calm and precise tones, the President quietly deflated the surrender rumor. He was, he said, at the White House doing a little work, commenting that newsmen could see this was the case. His desk was filled with papers and near his left hand was a pile of papers six inches high. When the surrender report got started, he said, he had called San Francisco and had asked Adm. Leahy to call American headquarters in Europe.

Told "The Lid Is On"

The President said SHAEF had informed Leahy there was no foundation for the rumor. Daniels then told reporters that "the lid's on," signifying that he expected no more news from the White House for the night.

The scotching of the surrender report by press and radio took little more time than its dissemination. The Associated Press flash "Peace rumor unfounded—Truman," was on the wires at 8:36 p. m. Chicago time.

In Rio de Janeiro the surrender story touched off a street dancing celebration by cheering crowds, who streamed from theaters and night clubs. They sang, shouted, and danced the samba while fireworks popped thruout the Brazilian capital.

There, as in Montreal, the later denials were fairly generally ignored by the celebrating throngs.

In Bloomington, Ill., theaters closed and refunded their patrons' money. Crowds filled the streets and "Germany Surrenders" was scrawled in soap on several store windows.

STATEMENT BY AP

Late last night the Associated Press issued the following statement:

"The report of German surrender, transmitted by the Associated Press from San Francisco and attributed to a "high government official," was an accurate and factual account of a statement to Associated Press staff men by Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], vice chairman of the United States delegation to the allied nations conference and chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. Another member of the United States delegation supported Sen. Connally's statement.

Sen. Connally at the time stipulated that his name not be used. After President Truman in Washington, D. C., said the report was unfounded, the vice chairman of the United States delegation in San Francisco again said the announcement of German surrender was expected momentarily, and removed the stipulation that he not be quoted directly."

Moscow Confirms Offer

LONDON, April 29 [Sunday]—(AP)—A Tass official news agency dispatch broadcast over the Moscow radio said today that it had been "confirmed by responsible soviet circles" that Nazi Gestapo Chief Himmler had made an offer to surrender Germany unconditionally to the United States and Britain and that the western allies had rejected the proposal.

The dispatch said that the "governments of Britain and the United States have noted that they will accept unconditional surrender only to all allies, including the soviet union."

This was the first official confirmation that such a surrender proposal had actually been made.

Thru Count Bernadotte

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 28 (AP)—Nazi Gestapo Chief Himmler sent his surrender offer to the United States and Britain thru Count Folke Bernadotte, vice chairman of the Swedish Red Cross, the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said tonight.

The Swedish foreign office confirmed that Himmler's peace offer came thru Stockholm by an unnamed private person "some days ago and appears to have been delivered to the allied ministers here."

Bernadotte, who has been in Germany frequently on mercy missions in recent weeks, left Stockholm today on another trip to the reich, which was described as "in connection with Red Cross work." It was regarded as possible, however, that he may have carried the allies' answer to the capitulation offer.

Bernadotte is known to have met Himmler several times on his trips to Germany. The Dagens Nyheter said the Red Cross official last saw Himmler on April 21.

Reports Hitler "Very Ill"

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—Reuters [British news agency] in a dispatch datelined San Francisco said today that Heinrich Himmler had sent a message to the United States and Britain that Hitler was dying and would not live 48 hours after an announcement of an unconditional surrender by Himmler.

The Reuters dispatch said the information was received from officials attending the San Francisco conference.

It was explained here by Reuters that what was meant when Himmler said Hitler would die was that Hitler was very ill and an announcement of Germany's unconditional surrender would be such a shock as to cause his death.

Himmler earlier was reported to have offered unconditional surrender to Great Britain and the United States, but Prime Minister Churchill said that only unconditional surrender to all Big Three powers would be accepted by the allies.

Churchill's Statement

Churchill declared:

"It has been reported by Reuters that unconditional surrender was offered by Himmler to Britain and the United States only. Further that Britain and the United States have replied saying they will not accept unconditional surrender except on behalf of all the allies, including Russia.

"No doubt at a time like this all kinds of reports of proposals for German surrender from various parts of the German reich are rife.

"His majesty's government have no information to give about any of them at this moment. But it must be emphasized that only unconditional surrender to the three major powers will be entertained, and that the closest accord prevails between the three powers."

10,000 in Times Square Wait Hours for V-E Confirmation

New York, April 28 [Special]—New York tonight had a foretaste of what V-E day will be like when "official" reports circulated thru the city that Germany had surrendered unconditionally.

Times square, packed deep with 10,000 persons, typified the city's reaction. Slow to gather, waiting patiently in eagerness for confirmation for nearly two hours—from about 8 p. m. to 10 p. m.—the crowd subsided much more quickly than it had gathered.

At 5 minutes of 10 most of the mounted police, traffic police, and patrolmen, in strident voices, echoed the disclaimer of President Truman that the report was unfounded.

News Discounted

The first fuel was thrown on the fire when unconfirmed reports were broadcast that a high American official at the San Francisco conference had intimated Germany had given up and that official announcement was expected momentarily. This was shortly before 8 p. m. No wild demonstration such as attended the premature announcement of the armistice in 1918 followed.

The crowd flowed on into Times square with nothing spectacular to indicate that people believed victory had come in Europe. It was not until after 9 p. m., when the first editions of Sunday's newspapers appeared, carrying the banner line "German surrender reported" that there was anything comparable to an organized demonstration. Then the crowd which had been reasonably silent burst forth into cheers that could be heard for half a mile.

Paper Thrown from Windows

By this time there were nearly 6,000 persons jammed into the triangle bounding the Times Tower building. The crowd expressed its delight in remarking on torn papers thrown from lighted office windows in the building and in commenting on the antics of a score of persons mounted on the tonneaus of parked automobiles and trucks.

By this time traffic thru the square had stopped and the block between 42d and 43d sts. had become a solid mass of humanity. Soon, however, the crowds began to move on as the news circulated that no official confirmation of the surrender would be forthcoming tonight.

Two Spokesmen of Freedom Denounce Reds and British

Indian Asks U. S. Aid

BY WILLIAM MOORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 28—Warning that the United States may be dragged into a third world war by the international organization being established here unless the international conference gives justice to India, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit of India called for American aid against the British today.

Mrs. Pandit

Mrs. Pandit said 400 million Indians have been engaged in a nonviolent revolution against the British for 25 years but that she could give no assurance it would not soon break out in open war.

In case of open conflict, she said in an interview, the United States would be bound under the international agreement being formed now to engage in the war, which would become a widespread war against imperialism.

Held in British Prison

Mrs. Pandit, a diminutive, silvery haired woman who speaks with force that recalls the chill fury with which Madame Chiang Kai-shek once brought the American congress to tears, was wearing a sheer black robe, so folded that its silver edging fell about her wrists and spiraled downward.

Her friends say she is still suffering from an illness which brought her release from a British prison in India. She was one of 100,000 Indian political prisoners, among them her brother, Jawaharlal Nehru, the Indian leader, who she says were locked up without the filing of charges. Nehru is still in jail.

Mrs. Pandit said she will demand that a clause against imperialism be written into the preamble of the international organization's charter. This, she said, would forbid, in words at least, British domination of India's millions.

Asks End of Power Politics

Calling for the end of power politics in a conference ostensibly dedicated to the Atlantic Charter promise that all people shall choose their own government, Mrs. Pandit attacked the three Indians holding British knighthood who are here as Indian delegates, with the same voting power for the British empire as the American delegation has. She said, "India desires not to be misrepresented."

"Not all aggression is by guns and ammunition and airplanes," she declared. "The most deadly form of aggression is crippling the soul of a nation, and that is the British intent in India.

"It should not be I, coming to you Americans who fought for your independence to tell you India wants her freedom. You should be standing on your street corners, demanding freedom for us. If you acquiesce in denying freedom to others, you end freedom for yourselves.

Asserts Words "Not Enough"

"Every speech at this conference echoes the things we believe, but words are not enough. We have had a nonviolent revolution since 1921. Thousands of men and women have been imprisoned, many have been shot down, and thousands of homes have been demolished.

"Now we have a new generation, an embittered generation, determined to wrest freedom from those who try to hold us down.

"You Americans may find yourselves dragged into war again—war against imperialism—in this international organization. You do not have to be invaded to be forced into war. England had to go to war because Poland was invaded."

Mrs. Pandit, who began her campaign for India on Thursday in the very hotel where British Foreign Secretary Eden is staying, taunted the British for fleeing their colonies "when enemy bombs began to fall."

"Prestige they have lost will never be recovered by the force of arms," she said.

Soviet Plot Charged

BY CHARLES GOTTHART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, April 28—Russian-born Americans who have sought representation at the San Francisco conference for those of their countrymen who oppose communism have failed thus far to receive United States sanction of their aims, it was learned today.

Nicholas P. Rybakoff, spokesman for an anti-soviet group that includes leading clergymen of the Russian Orthodox church, said in an interview that State Secretary Stettinius had not replied to his request to name an unofficial conference observer to represent 50,000 men and women in the United States who have supported his plea.

"We, like the Poles, have been frozen out of a conference designed to achieve democracy thruout the world," said Rybakoff, editor and publisher of the newspaper Rossiya and the magazine Russia. "No people desire freedom and democracy more than the Russians, but we have none under the Stalin dictatorship.

165 Million "Without Voice"

"The Molotov delegation at San Francisco represents only the less than 4 million Communists of Russia. The rest of the 165 million Russians, who would openly oppose communism if they dared, are without a voice at the world meeting."

Rybakoff, a colonel in the White Russian army from 1918 to 1923, reiterated his plea in communications to President Truman, members of the cabinet, and key Washington legislators, and to the heads of the national delegations at San Francisco, some of whom have replied with letters of thanks.

"In the name of Russians seeking democracy" he had sought to name as an observer Nicholas Borzoff, a retired business man and lay church leader of Berkeley, Cal. Rybakoff said his group had not requested the appointment of an official conference delegate because of a desire to avoid difficulties of protocol with the soviets.

The group's appeal contained denunications of the soviet regime.

Warns of Another War.

"The world can be spared from a third world war only in the event, if together with the Nazi-Fascist totalitarianism, the Communist totalitarianism will also perish from the face of the earth," said Rybakoff.

"We are told that the soviets want permanent peace, but what they actually want is 20 or 30 years of peace that will enable them, thanks to foreign credit and foreign forced labor, to prepare for what they consider the inevitable, decisive conflict with the 'capitalistic environment.'

"At the San Francisco conference there are no delegates from the Russian people and certainly none from the 15 to 18 million Russian man and women confined in soviet concentration camps."

FRISCO REPORT TAKES PARIS AND IKE BY SURPRISE

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 28—San Francisco reports that Germany had surrendered caught Paris and the SHAEF press relations office completely by surprise.

Col. Ernest DuPuy, in charge of SHAEF briefings, said that as far as he can learn there is no foundation for the report.

First News from U. S.

Correspondents here, staff officers, and even Gen. Eisenhower had not heard the San Francisco report until a query came from the United States. Paris, tonight, was calm and most of the town had gone to bed when the reports arrived from America.

It has already been announced here that there will be no V-E day announcement until the last pocket of resistance has been eliminated and that still means Italy, Norway, Denmark, and Holland, as well as Berlin and north and south Germany.

War Must Go On

Every one here is convinced that Germany is thoroly beaten and that there is no place the allied armies cannot go eventually, but since the allies decided they could not speak to anybody, even to offer unconditional surrender, the war must go on until the presence of our troops at all points proclaims us the victors.

LONDON POLES HIT WARSAW'S PACT WITH REDS

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—The Polish government in London asserted today that the treaty signed recently between Russia and the Polish provisional government in Warsaw was invalid because the Warsaw group is not representative of the Polish nation.

The London government said it desired relations with Russia "in the spirit of good neighborliness" but added the pact "does not conduce to that end."

Jan Drohojowski, sympathizer with former Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, had been discharged as undersecretary for information in the London Polish administration. He was formerly counsellor to the Polish embassy in Washington, D. C. An announcement that Richard Law, British minister of state, would speak at Polish national day ceremonies on Tuesday made it clear that Britain intends to continue relations with the London administration, at least until a new provisional government is formed by the Poles.

U. S. DELEGATION OPPOSES LIMIT ON SIZE OF NAVY

Don't Want Council to Decide Strength

San Francisco, Cal., April 28 (AP)—Strong sentiment developed within the American delegation today against giving the proposed international organization any authority to fix the size of the navy this country keeps afloat when peace comes.

Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] of the senate foreign relations committee is leading a movement to make certain that in the allied nations charter drafted here the projected security council has no power to order disarmaments without treaty agreements.

It is Connally's view that while the security council necessarily must consider disarmament questions when it tackles the problem of maintaining arms to preserve peace, only the individual countries can decide how much of a military force they wish to keep intact after the war.

Wants Strong Navy

Connally has said in the past that he thought this country made a mistake when it agreed at the Washington disarmament conference in 1922 to abandon some ships then afloat and to halt construction of others on the ways.

The Texan has told friends here that he is not going to agree to any provision in the proposed league's covenant which will supersede an American decision on this vital question. He wants a strong navy kept afloat, feeling that it will serve as a potent curb on any possible future aggression in the Pacific.

Connally's views are likely to carry weight because he heads the American group on the security council commission which will begin work Monday along with the other divisions of the conference.

The disarmament question apparently rests squarely with that commission. It was covered in effect by the security council voting agreement reached by the late President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Premier Stalin at Yalta.

Approval of Big Five

Under that agreement, as explained by state department officials, any decisions the security council makes on armaments will require the unanimous approval of the big five nations—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, and France.

Disarmament is not mentioned specifically, but Undersecretary of State Grew has said it is linked definitely to the armament problem by the agreement.

Advisers are reported to have told American delegation members there seems nothing in either the Yalta voting agreement or the Dumbarton Oaks formula which would permit the proposed league to order any country to scuttle ships, destroy equipment, or demobilize men.

But Connally and some others want this issue defined clearly. They hold the view that if there is to be any disarmament, it must be accomplished by negotiations between the large countries and written into treaties which the United States senate can consider.

NEWS OF FRANCE RUNS GANTLET OF CENSORSHIP

Paris Wields Scissors After SHAEF

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 28—The requested freedom of the press, whose return to France was joyfully hailed by resistance editors on the day of liberation, has turned out to be more theoretical than real. The truth is that any news concerning France, whether for home or foreign consumption, has to run the gantlet of the most rigid censorship since the days of Napoleon III.

This means that stories sent by American correspondents to American newspapers thru supreme allied headquarters in Paris are subject not only to allied military censorship but also to French military and political censorship. The news about Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's return to France is presently receiving special attention from the boys with the scissors.

Censorship in the Fourth Republic is in the hands of the war ministry. Theoretically it is applied only to news and comment that might contain information useful to the enemy. Actually, French censorship can—and frequently does—intervene on any subject treated in a way it dislikes.

Censorship Also Indirect

While SHAEF originally focused its attention only on the military angle, its censorship now refers all nonoperational stories about France to the French censorship. If the latter objects to something, it is deleted before the dispatch is radioed to the United States.

In addition to direct censorship, the French press is subjected to various forms of indirect censorship that are almost as powerful.

Having few foreign correspondents and often being unable to cover even Paris adequately, French papers are obliged to lean heavily on dispatches from the Agence France Presse—successor to Havas. It is the official, subsidized service, and has a complete monopoly. Therefore, in a good porportion of the press, coverage of important events is the government's version, with government approved emphasis and omissions.

Guidance on "Play"

The government likewise guides news handling thru the daily press conference as well as talks by a Quai d'Orsay spokesman, who pointedly gives out hints on what points should be played down or up in political stories.

Indirect forms of pressure also are exerted by the Resistance. For any French paper to attack communist Russia or the heroes of the Resistance, or to take up a defense of an alleged collaborator, would immediately bring an outcry of "Fascist! while any criticism of Gen. De Gaulle himself similar to that leveled against the late President Roosevelt thruout his four terms would be unthinkable.

Similarity of Viewpoint

Such limitations clamped on the expression of opinion in an individualistic nation results in a certain artificial similarity of viewpoint in the capital's 30 daily newspapers, altho individual policy runs all the way from the communism of L'Humanite to the conservatism of Le Figaro.

Licensing of newspapers in France is merely a routine police measure to obtain information concerning the identity of the promoters. Each paper is obliged to have a "gerant" [responsible editor] whose name is published on the back page of every number. The "gerant" is held accountable for all unsigned material published. He may be the editor, but more often is a concierge or delivery boy who is paid a small extra fee monthly for running the risk of being sent to jail for something somebody else wrote.

EDEN RUNNING SHOW AT FRISCO, LONDON IS TOLD

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 28—As far as some sections of the British press are concerned, the San Francisco conference has become a personalities popularity contest in which the papers give all the laurels to Britain's suave foreign secretary, Anthony Eden.

"Britain prevented an open split in the security plans—Eden is the strong man of the Frisco meeting," one paper emblazoned over five columns.

It credited Eden with being the "guiding influence of the American delegation as well as of the British," and claimed he was drafting the compromises, advising and aiding Secretary of State Stettinius, helping pilot the dominions, and speeding up the tempo of the conference so that he and the other foreign ministers can be back in their capitals within a month.

"He Stole the Show"

This paper also said Eden deserves all the credit for ending the disagreement over the conference presidency and his mature statesmanship success has been one of the few comforting developments of a parley in which the Americans are being stiffened by the British into taking a firm stand against Russia on the Polish question.

"Eden ultimately stole the show," said another London paper in listing among the highlights of the week his "generally approved" plan for getting the conference's work done in four weeks. Another informed London source hailed the British foreign minister as becoming a "broker between the United States and Russia."

"Prestige Tremendous"

Another quarter of the London press modestly admitted that "our prestige here is tremendous. Nearly all of the nations want us to lead. We should."

It added that "the commanding position among the representatives of the 46 nations at Frisco is undoubtedly held by the British delegation. Constantly around our offices are the delegates of dozens of nations inquiring about the British point of view and seeking advice and guidance. And in the newspapers photographs and news of Eden are more numerous than of the Americans' own Stettinius."

MOLOTOV DRAWS HUGE CROWD TO PARLEY SESSION

Romulo Speech Hailed as Finest of Meeting

chat with British Ambassador Halifax before the gavel fell.

Castro said El Salvador accepted the Dumbarton Oaks charter as a working basis for this conference but warned of possibility of a "deadlock" if any nation on the security council retains veto power, as is now provided thru the Yalta compromise. Such a deadlock would "discourage" the whole world, he said.

Pursue Social Security

Sofianopolous of Greece also recommended adoption of the Dumbarton Oaks plan but said "social security should be pursued." He maintained that small nations have made great contributions to victory in this war and that the terms of the security covenant should not mean that the "smaller powers resign themselves to complete self-effacement."

He suggested that the powers of the assembly in the proposed world league should be expanded to make recommendations to the security council on any question which comes before it. The permanent members of the security council should relinquish the right of veto in council questions when two or more of them are involved in a matter up for decision, he said.

Thruout the proceedings, Molotov introduced speakers in Russian and stepped back to allow his translator to reach the microphone with the English version. Before the meeting adjourned, the pair had developed a neat footwork routine. Sofianopolous was greeted with a laugh at the start of his speech when he found his pages in reverse order and ruffled them back into position while the crowd waited. Halfway thru he began to read from the wrong page and begged the audience's pardon.

Crowd with Romulo

Romulo had the crowd with him from his first words. With great deliberation he warned the delegates that "We are here to determine whether the human race is to exist or is to be wiped out in another world holocaust."

"Today, one billion oriental faces are turned pleadingly toward us for recognition of their human rights," he said. "It is their hope and their prayer that the peace which this conference is seeking to secure is one that will not neglect the uplift and development of all socially and economically depressed areas and peoples but one that will help raise them to a plane of living where they can become not merely bystanders but effective collaborator in the promotion of human welfare and the maintenance of peace."

Business and commerce can be made to agree, he declared, but "the human pattern cannot be forced, and its settlement cannot be delayed. For it must be determined or another war will wipe us and our bickerings and our misunderstandings from the face of the earth. Unless we can agree, we will return to the dust, for we have failed as men."

Questions Permanent Seats

Serrato of Uruguay questioned the right of the big powers to permanent seats on a security council which would be empowered to order armed force against other nations.

"In the present circumstances," he said, "Uruguay accepts, as a transitory situation, that the four great powers—the United States of America, the United Kingdom, the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and China—which have borne the heaviest load of the war, have contributed most decisively to victory and will have the most serious duties and responsibilities for the maintenance of the future peace, should be assured seats on the council, but not indefinitely and only for a period which may be judged advisable, say eight or 10 years, for example."

He also asked that nations not represented on the security council, but affected by its acts, be given the right to be heard.

It was during the translation of Serrato's speech into English that a delegate waved aloft a newspaper with the headlines "Nazis Quit" which threw the staid formal session into an uproar.

MORNING SESSION

At the morning session Molotov walked in with A. A. Gromyko, Russian ambassador to Washington, well before the meeting hour. His interpreter was seated beside him. Eden strode down the same aisle with British Ambassador Halifax a few moments later.

Eden and Halifax stopped beside Molotov's red plush chair and shook hands firmly. Within a few seconds Secretary Stettinius shouldered his way thru a crowd of movie and news camera men in the aisle and he and Eden threw their arms around each other's shoulders. Then they had to do it all over again for the camera men who were late. Molotov smiled at them.

Cameras Grind On

Eden broke away, and Clement Attlee, British deputy prime minister, took his place as the movie cameras ground on. Eden is the most peripatetic diplomat at the conference as well as the most handsome. His tall figure moves around the orchestra of the opera house continually. He shakes hands with dozens of delegates every session. Occasionally he leans against the side wall of the theater and drops a lanky leg, clad in well creased striped trousers, against the arm of a seat.

Stettinius, Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], and Virginia Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard college, were the only American delegates visible when Soong's gavel fell three times to open the session. The gavel has a head about the size of a pony beer bottle, and the unwary presiding officers almost lose grasp of the handle on the first bounce. Soong recovered nicely. One of his secretaries occupied a golden chair behind him and he was flanked, as usual, by two members of the conference secretariat.

Whole rows of delegates' chairs were vacant and the area behind, where the advisers sit, was only half filled. The balconies and galleries also offered plenty of choice seats.

Jan Masaryk began with the customary tribute to the late President Roosevelt which has been number one on the agenda of all foreign speakers so far. He then announced that Russian armies have liberated the Moravian capital of Bernau in Czechoslovakia.

"One of the good qualities of Czechoslovakians is that we know how to be grateful," he said.

Voice of All People

Masaryk said that after Dunkirk the voice of Winston Churchill was "the voice of all decent people on earth," and spoke glowingly of the "epic of Stalingrad." He pledged coöperation with Czechoslovakia's "greatest" ally, Russia, but said that his country's loyalty to the soviet would not prevent friendly relations with other allies.

The first World war was followed, he said, by an international organization which "lacked an international instrument with a punch behind it." It is the job of this conference to supply the punch, he declared. He said Czechoslovakia approved the Dumbarton Oaks agreement but felt that certain additions, such as a definition of aggression, and a strong economic and social council would "prove worthy of consideration."

Badawi Pasha of Egypt made specific suggestions for the improvement of the Dumbarton Oaks plan. Caceres, the Honduras chairman, said his country "took its stand against the axis powers long before any victory was on the horizon," and called for the inclusion of "justice" in the international charter. Stettinius was whispering in the ear of Sen. Connally during part of Caceres' speech.

Doesn't Use Manuscript

Mudaliar of India, a dark, slender man with iron gray hair, walked to the rostrum without a manuscript and addressed the delegates in precise English without a reference to any prepared speech. He said India never had been guilty of aggression nor did she want "to dominate countries outside her borders." A burst of applause greeted the statement.

Bass voiced Charles Habib Malik, minister-designate to the United States from Lebanon, said his country is "completely ready to do its modest part in building an organization on the principles of Dumbarton Oaks, which are the inspired principles of justice and sovereignty of all states, big and small."

Eelco N. van Kleffens, minister of foreign affairs and chairman of the Netherlands delegation, a tall, thin man in a severe black suit, declared that the Netherlands "always have stood for an international community."

"We are ready to accept certain limitations of complete freedom," Van Kleffens said, "and we would like to see these limitations accepted by all states, great and small." He said his country "has suffered, and still is suffering, as few others" in this war.

Tomorrow, the state department's press secretariat said, they hope will "be a day of rest." No conference meetings are scheduled until 3:30 p. m. Monday, when the fifth plenary session will open under Eden's chairmanship.

San Francisco, Cal., April 28—Saudi Arabian delegates, who wear desert robes and head coverings wherever they go and who can understand English even if some people think they can't, are amused by the attention they get from the lobby crowds in the international conference halls. A woman raved about them today as they strode thru the foyer of the opera house. "Fascinating!" she exclaimed. One of the Arabs turned and winked: "You should see us on horseback!"

A little army jeep with a noisy siren tore across town this morning, scattering traffic on California st., to make way for a large black limousine. From the limousine windows, sightseeing, stared four of the Arabs.

In the maiden speeches at plenary sessions many of the delegates strive for unusually appropriate quotations in uttering hopes for success of the conference. Sir A. Ramaswami Mudaliar of India, climaxed his speech with the words, "Lead kindly light."

Empty seats are plentiful at the plenary session this morning, in the galleries and in the section allotted to delegates. Many delegates left before it was over, walking out on the orators of other countries. When the last speaker of the morning session, Charles Habib Malik of Lebanon, concluded his talk, Commissar Molotov looked up politely and gave eight hand claps before taking his hat and leaving.

Conversation in the dress circle balcony: A lady to her companion: "Aren't those the Ethiopians in the gold epaulets? It's so hard to tell."

Molotov's surprising decision to meet the press last Thursday was inspired by a wealthy San Francisco woman, it is reported. She is said to have sent word to him that he simply must meet the press to get "the proper kind of publicity for Russia."

The two conference buildings—Veterans Memorial building and the operra house—are guarded so closely that even the FBI can't get in. Agents have not been issued credentials. The conference is under military and state department security supervision.

The busiest color bearers anywhere are the workmen who have to shuttle back and forth between the two main conference buildings with the only complete set of the flags of the 46 nations represented here.

A Japanese 50 sen note has been found in the opera house, conference employes report.

Altho coöperation is the word most frequently used by the speakers at the conference, very few of the foreign delegates have learned how to pronounce it. In a great variety of accents the first two syllables invariably come out of the amplifying system as one, pronounced variously as "cope," "cop," "cup," and "coop."

Sen. M'Carran to Study Financing of Peace Plan

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—Sen. McCarran [D., Nev.] said after a White House conference today that he will visit the San Francisco conference to study financial aspects of establishing an international peace preserving organization. He said he did not know what Republican member of the appropriations committee will be his companion.

SMALLER LANDS ASK BIGGER ROLE IN SECURITY UNIT

Seek Increase from 11 to 14 or 15 Members

BY ARTHUR EVANS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 28—As the international conference to abolish war moved thru a double header session of oratory today, behind the scenes the smaller nations were preparing to press for more power and voice in the security organization proposed under the Dumbarton Oaks plan, with the Yalta additions.

A small flood of proposed amendments was beginning to appear. One aim of some smaller states is to increase the proposed world security council from 11 to 14 or 15 members. As it stands five of the 11 permanent seats would be for the great powers, the United States, Britain, Russia, China, and France. The remaining six would be two year seats without the right of immediate succession.

Expand Executive Committee.

Pressure for expansion resulted in the increase of the conference executive committee to 14 members yesterday. There was great rivalry to get places on this body. A general conjecture of the delegations is that most members of the security council will quite likely be chosen from the countries on this committee. Besides the Big Five, they are Australia, Brazil, Canada, the Netherlands, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Chile, Iran, and Mexico.

Among the secondary nations, which have made large contributions to the fighting, there is a strong feeling that they should be given more power in the machinery to be set up. Nations such as Canada, Australia, Brazil, and the Netherlands maintain that there would be no justice in giving them only as large a voice in the security organization as small states such as Lebanon and Syria, which have little economic or military power.

Besides, they deem that the present plans give too much power to the Big Five in the proposed world organization.

These ideas were voiced today by the chairman of the delegates from Egypt, Abdel Hamid Badawi Pasha, foreign minister. He told the morning session of the conference it would be a mistake to place all responsibility in the hands of a few. Smaller and middle sized states should be given a greater hand in affairs because they have coöperated in the war, he declared.

Urges Majority Vote

The Egyptian urged that the security council of the proposed new league be increased from 11 to 14 members, to give greater voice to the smaller nations, and that a simple majority of eight votes should rule.

"This would not rob the big powers of their powers and responsibilities," he said.

"First and foremost," Badawi Pasha said, "is our belief that the keystone of the arch of peace should be the deeprooted principles outlined in the Atlantic Charter. In these fundamental principles are compressed the hopes and aspirations of the whole world.

"How can we meet in this solemn conclave and overlook the principles of this great document?"

Badawi Pasha said that increasing the membership of the security council to 14 would not hinder prompt action, and he also recommended that the smaller states elected to the council be chosen on the basis of territorial representation instead of being "left to the chance of the ballot." No great geographical section of the world should be left without representation on the council, he said.

Power of Veto

He also recommended a "system of checks and balances," including the power of the general assembly to overrule decisions of the security council by a three-fourths majority vote.

State Secretary Stettinius announced that next Friday is the deadline for proposed changes in the Dumbarton Oaks plan. There is one exception. If Poland is admitted in time, which does not appear likely, they will be given a chance to present their ideas.

One Yalta deal which is still slated for coming controversy is the one nation veto on the security council. Dumbarton Oaks left voting procedure on the proposed council undecided. At Yalta, under pressure from Premier Stalin, a deal was made for a provision under which any one of the five great powers could veto any vote of the other nations to take economic or military repressive action against it for any warlike move it makes.

Assailed by Australia

This has been assailed by Australia, the Netherlands, and other delegations. Some secondary powers which have economic and military strength appear to be lining up behind proposals made by Prime Minister King of Canada, months ago, that any nation not represented on the security council—the power house of the proposed new league—should not be forced to carry out economic or military sanctions voted by the security council, without being heard or without agreeing separately to carry out the council's edict.

One suggested change deals with empowering the new league to review treaties. Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] has advocated that the security council be allowed to "recommend appropriate measures of adjustment" including the "revision of treaties and of prior international decisions" if war is threatened by any international dispute.

Three Chinese suggestions will be sponsored by the United States, England, and Russia, Stettinius has announced. In essence these amendments are that the projected world organization must be required to seek settlement of international disputes "with due regard for principles of justice and international law."

Questions Untouched

They also require the projected league to develop an international law, and that the economic and social council of the world organization should promote "educational and other forms of cultural coöperation."

Subjects such as trusteeships, mandates, and the Palestine question have not as yet been taken up by the conference. The American delegation has drafted a plan under which the United States would retain complete control over former Japanese naval and air bases taken by the American forces which have only military value.

Crash
—AND PRESTO, OUR OWN MIRACLE-MEN PUT HUMPTY-DUMPTY Together Again!
THE elderly Collector of Rare Old Violins picked himself up—glowered at the offending rug—and gazed helplessly down upon the battered Stradivarius at his feet. Smithereens was really the word for it in its present shattered condition.
At last the remnants of the once-priceless treasure were gathered up and packed off to the London firm where it had been bought. Then came the dread dictum, "beyond repair." . . . But the collector refused anyone the right "to say die" about his beloved Strad. He then ordered it sent to the Instrument Repair Dept. of Lyon & Healy, Inc., Chicago, U. S. A.
Here was a challenge from ancient Cremona itself . . . the kind which keeps Lyon & Healy craftsmen eternally alert. . . . Such meticulous matching of woods . . . such patching and carving and fitting . . . such brewing of glue . . . and the varnish, which must be right the first time. . . . Finally the Period of Restoration was ended and the Stradivarius Collector claimed his own again—almost boyish in his delight with the famous old fiddle that had found its voice once more at Lyon & Healy.
The Instrument Repair Department plays no favorites . . . its artisans expend the same talent and the same care on a bent horn or on a wheezy accordion as on one of the rare old aristocrats of Cremona.

SAN FRANCISCO 'VICTORY' UPROAR ENDS IN DISMAY

'Extra' Starts Tumult on Conference Floor

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 28—At 5:40 this afternoon [7:40 p. m. Chicago time] an apathetic session of the world security conference was transformed for three minutes into a scene of tumult when a South American delegate in the first row brandished a newspaper with the flaming headline: "Nazis quit."

The newspaper, an extra put out by the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, carried a copyrighted Associated Press dispatch asserting that "a high American official here" had stated that announcement of Germany's unconditional surrender was expected momentarily.

The headline, 8 inches high, in white letters against a field of crimson, was easily visible to all the delegates. They broke into a roar of applause.

Molotov Smiles and Waves

V. M. Molotov, soviet commissar of foreign affairs, was presiding at the time.

He stood up and the delegate waving the newspaper, Joaquin Fernandez y Fernandez, head of the Chilean delegation, held it up so Molotov could see it. The latter smiled broadly and waved his hand.

An official interpreter was reading at the time an English translation of a long speech previously delivered in Spanish by Jose Serrato, minister of foreign affairs for Uruguay. He stopped, and the loud handclapping and excited exchanges between delegates continued for 3 minutes.

The delegates cheered at word that Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] had declared that the Nazis had surrendered and the official announcement would come "momentarily."

Then they heard with dismay that President Truman, in Washington, had pronounced the report unfounded.

But most of them felt that a Nazi collapse, if it does not come now, can't be long delayed, Connally repeated, after the Washington denial, that he expects the announcement of surrender "momentarily."

The balconies were filled at the time, but the main floor was only half filled with delegates. In the adjoining veterans' building where the state department and the press has its headquarters the story was the climax to a rumor filled day. Since early morning stories about the impending announcement had been circulated.

"No Statement": Stettinius

After the Call-Bulletin appeared on the street the state department's press relations chief was besieged with inquiries. He talked with State Secretary Stettinius who authorized only the observation that "Mr. Stettinius has made no statement of any kind on the subject." A report that Stettinius was flying back to Washington was denied.

In downtown hotels, where many delegates with their staffs had retired in the expectation of devoting the evening to social relaxation, the report caused great excitement. There was only a small crowd outside the opera house and there was no unusual demonstration.

The Call-Bulletin was the only afternoon newspaper carrying the report in this city. The San Francisco News, which does not have access to Associated Press reports, carried ony a headline that a surrender "bid" by Germany had been rejected.

Held on $25,000 Bond After Being Sought 5 Yrs.

Edgar A. Fassburg, 39, of 28 W. Elm st., sought for five years on charges of impersonating army officers and passing bogus checks, was held in $25,000 bond for removal to Brooklyn, N. Y., when he was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. Federal bureau of investigation agents seized Fassburg last Wednesday. They said he failed to report to his draft board in Brooklyn in July, 1943.

'VASES TO BREAK OVER HIS HEAD' BRING DIVORCE

A wife who wrote her husband that she had "two nice vases I'd like to get rid of by breaking them over your head" was divorced yesterday in a contested hearing before Superior Judge William J. Lindsay.

She is Mrs. Sophie Papciak, 38, of 1323 Bosworth av., who petitioned for separate maintenance, charging desertion in a cross-complaint to her husband's bill for divorce on the same ground. Her husband, Joseph, 42, of 1327 Walton st., introduced the letter written by his wife last year which mentioned the vases and the time she "threw him out" in July, 1942.

Judge Lindsay granted Papciak, who is a salesman, the divorce, and ordered him to pay $20 a week support for two children, Ronald, 13, and Thomas, 10. The Papciaks also have a daughter, Irene, 18.

OCTOBER TRUCE REJECTION BY HITLER IS TOLD

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

1ST U. S. ARMY HDQ., Germany, April 28—Details of armistice terms proposed last October by responsible Germans, which supposedly resulted in the suicide of a high ranking German general after the proposal was rejected by Hitler, were related today by an American captain whc had sat in on the preliminaries while a prisoner of war.

His story involved a Gestapo chief, and an old school Prussian officer.

The story was told to me by Capt. Lyle A. Silvernail of Lawton, Mich., who was senior officer in charge of 2,600 Americans at an allied prison camp across the Elbe and north of Riesa which was liberated by the Russians. Silvernail told his story at 5th corps headquarters. The incident occurred, he said, while he was a prisoner at Dulagluft camp run by the luftwaffe.

Contacted in Cell

Silvernail said that a copy of the terms which he once had was taken from him at the prison camp.

Silvernail, an air support officer for the 19th tactical air command, was captured Sept. 11 near Thionville, France. He said he was first approached on the subject of a surrender in his cell Sept. 27 by Walter Schmitt, chief of the Gestapo at Frankfurt-on-Main, and a Capt. Barth, a Prussian officer.

The conversations apparently bore fruit for one day the Germans visited the captain. They were very excited, he said.

Taken to Hunting Lodge

Silvernail was taken to the hunting lodge of a motor magnate named Von Opel in the mountains near Frankfurt-on-Main. After two days more of conversations the proposal was committed to writing. It contained seven points concerned with Germany's future boundaries and spheres of occupation by the allies, and the surrender of the German army.

Between Oct. 5 and 10, Silvernail said, the proposition was put before Himmler who promised that it would go to Hitler, and German supreme headquarters in the west.

Silvernail said that from sources he and a superior American officer considered reliable they later were told the following story.

A German commander in the west appealed to Hitler recommending acceptance of the terms. Turned down, the general committed suicide.

Before the general flew to Hitler his representative had actually effected a limited armistice with Eisenhower on one section of the western front.

How long since you rode in one?

Once upon a time, mother, you were a bouncing baby yourself.

And we mean bouncing. If you could recall how you were bounced, bumped and side-swayed in an old-fashioned baby carriage, you'd really know how lucky your baby is—he can ride in the dreamlike smoothness of a de luxe THAYER Folding Coach!

Tiny babies are not jitterbugs. The bumping and swaying of an ordinary carriage is distressing to tiny tummies full of milk . . . and tiny bones. So Thayer banished the bumps with a wonderful shock-absorbing chassis . . . and an ingenious Body Stabilizer which ends side-sway, too! A Thayer baby rides as smoothly as floating on a cloud.

THAYER Coaches, with all-steel chassis, have the famous Feather-Touch 3-Position

Back Rest, adjustable aluminum push handles, bicycle-type wheels with rubber tires, squeak-proof, self-oiling bearings, safety brakes, luxurious upholstery, two-tone colors, and . . . well, just see for yourself at your favorite store! Baby will never forgive you if you show him off in anything less elegant!

WAR CHIEFS BACK TRUMAN'S FIRM POLICY ON REDS

New Deal 'Appeasement' Backers Fade Away

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 28—It is possible to report on highest authority that the mild rift in the American high command on policy toward Russia has been smoothed over and that both military and civilian heads of the army and navy are solidly behind the shift from appeasement toward firmness President Truman has ordered in diplomatic dealings with the soviets.

The new chief executive has quietly banished those who prevailed upon him not to postpone the San Francisco conference at the death of President Roosevelt and who urged him to continue the policy of placating Russia which the late chief executive followed after the Teheran conference. Others who went along with the New Deal pro-Russian policy have executed an about face in two weeks.

Now Mr. Truman is listening to those who are diligently arguing that the best interests of America should be the primary consideration of the national foregin policy. These hold that the best interests of America demand a stiffening of attitude toward Russia and that serving the best interests of America means the shaping of a better post-war world.

Hopkins Not Seen Lately

Mr. Truman has not seen Harry Hopkins, erstwhile No. 1 intimate of the White House and strong supporter of the Russian cause, since April 14. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, who favored Russia to bring heavy punishment on the Nazis, is no longer consulted on foreign policy. Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter has not been to the White House. Samuel Rosenman, Roosevelt legal counsel; Isadore Lubin, statistician, and David Niles, White House assistant, have been relegated to the background.

Commerce Secretary Wallace, an outspoken champion of Russia, no longer looms important in the drafting of foreign policy. He left the White House yesterday with his face dark with frowns, which indicated he had a stormy and unsatisfactory conference with his new chief.

Hull Back in Picture

Coming into the foreground on foreign policy are former State Secretary Hull, who is convinced that nothing can be gained from Russia except by firmness; Navy Secretary Forrestal, who stands high in Truman's respect and is counseling a swing from left to center; War Secretary Stimson, who favors a swing back toward heavier coöperation with Britain, and former War Mobilization Director Byrnes, who is slated to be secretary of state.

Behind these civilian advisers are the combined chiefs of staff, Admirals Leahy, chief of staff to the commander in chief, and King, chief of naval operations; Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Lt. Gen. Barney Giles, chief of the army air forces in the absence of Gen. Arnold.

Marshall, not vigorously but cautiously, had told Truman that the United States needed Russia's aid in the Pacific and that he should cut the diplomatic policy accordingly. He said appeasement of Russia was necessary in order to destroy the mighty Japanese power in the Pacific.

Hold Opposite Views

An entirely different picture of the far eastern situation was given by the two admirals and supported by Giles. They said the Jap navy had been destroyed, the Jap air force is negligible, and American air power can blast Jap industry and communications so that this country can end the Japs without help.

The President was advised that he could tell Russia the United States did not need help in the Pacific. It has been reported that at Yalta the Russians demanded Manchuria, Korea, and Inner Mongolia as the price of assistance in the far east.

Truman held several sessions with the combined chiefs of staff. At these Marshall joined with his colleagues in pledging full support to the new chief executive. Truman also saw Hull, who made a plea for firmness.

Entitled to Respect

The military leaders canvassed the full situation and were able to report that the American navy is larger than the combined fleets of the world and that the American army is the finest and best equipped in the world. These factors, it was agreed, should command respect for this country's voice in settlement of world disputes.

Observers here regarded Mr. Truman's behavior during the visit of Foreign Commisar Molotov as indicating a switch from a soft to a hard policy.

The new President received Molotov at Blair House, but for no more than a greeting. He then sent him to the state department to confer with Stettinius and British Foreign Minister Eden. All negotiations were carried on thru the latter officials rather than directly with the President. Mr. Truman saw Molotov before the latter left for San Francisco.

At this meeting the new chief executive reportedly made it clear that the United States stands like a rock for strict adherence to Russian promises at Yalta for a reorganization of the soviet sponsored government of Poland to admit representation of members of the London Polish government and other Poles outside of Poland. He reportedly made it clear the United States is making no European concessions.

Backed by Congress

In this shift on Russian policy Mr. Truman has the full support of almost every member of congress. Senators and representatives have called in numbers to urge him to accept the measurement of what is best for America is best for the world.

Mr. Truman has been reliably reported as acknowledging that Russian territorial and diplomatic demands are his greatest problem and has heeded congressional demands that he proceed most cautiously and only after consultation with military leaders.

Members of congress have expressed regret that they were not able, in Mr. Truman's first days in office, to short circuit New Deal advisers who urged the new President to hold the San Francisco conference. The President, they said, might have been persuaded to postpone the conference while he studied the world situation, which study may have included conferences with Churchill and Stalin to learn what commitments Mr. Roosevelt had made.

All Germans Driven Out, Finnish Radio Reports

LONDON, April 29 [Sunday]—(AP)—A Finnish bulletin broadcast by the Helsinki radio said today that all Germans now have been driven out of Finland "and fighting everywhere has now ceased." German rearguards, who had been holding out in the north, retreated into Norway, the broadcast said.

FRISCO GETS N. Y. PAPER 4 HOURS AFTER BROADWAY

Wirephoto Speeds Times in Experiment

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 28—Frankly labeled "an experiment" in news distribution, copies of a special 4-page edition of the New York Times, photographically transmitted from New York, are being delivered to the breakfast tables of delegates to the world security conference each morning.

The more than 1,000 newspapermen attending the conference have expressed interest in this journalistic development. Much spculation has been aroused concerning the future possibilities of wirephoto transmission of newspapers.

The special 2 a. m. edition of the Times, made up in New York, is ready for distribution in San Francisco some four hours later. The first page is practically identical with the first page of the Times edition sold in New York but the remaining three pages are made up especially for the San Francisco edition, containing a condensed summary of news and no advertisements.

Facsimile Sent by Wire

After being printed on New York presses, the four pages are then transmitted from New York over the wirephoto facilities of the Associated Press and re-printed on the presses of the Richmond, Cal., Independent here.

About 2,000 copies are delivered free of charge to delegates and several hundred copies are delivered to the Palace hotel, headquarters of the press corps.

The photographic reproduction is not as clear in print as the original page but is perfectly readable.

The New York Post, an afternoon newspaper, is also circulating a special conference edition here dated the same day it is being distributed. The edition is being printed on the presses of Lederer, Street and Zeus Company, Inc., at Berkeley, Cal.

It contains Associated Press wire copy, dispatches from staff reporters on the scene of the conference, the offerings of nine columnists, and reprints from the dispatches and editorials of other newspapers.

Curiosity on First Day

The edition, selling for 10 cents, was eagerly snatched up as a curiosity the first day it appeared on sale but stacks of unsold copies appeared on hotel stands in succeeding days.

Seven hundred copies of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's home editions, sent by plane, reach here about noon of the same day upon which they are printed. Final editions arrive later. A circulation department representative here insures immediate delivery to hotel and news stands.

Publishers of the four local newspapers, the Chronicle, Call-Bulletin, Examiner, and News, have issued orders that out of town newspapers may not be placed on sale except at 10 leading hotels and at two Market st. stands specializing in out of town papers. Dealers have been told that if they place such papers on sale, they will be refused local papers. There is no objection to the delivery and sale of competing papers to delegates, they say, but they are perturbed over widespread distribution of such papers to the San Francisco public.

Gets One Son Back

Mrs. Maud Hand welcoming home only surviving service son, Seaman Eugene, 19.

Pvt. Herbert Hand (left) and brother, Sgt. James, who were killed in action.

There was happiness mingled with sorrow in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hand, 721 Webster st., yesterday as their son, Seaman 1st Class Eugene, 19, came home in answer to a plea that the navy send him back from overseas after the deaths in action of two brothers.

Eugene will be stationed at Navy Pier in Chicago after a 25 day furlough with his family. He entered the navy on April 21 of last year. His dead brothers were Sgt. James, 23, killed in Germany last Nov. 17, and Pvt. Herbert, 22, who died on Leyte last Nov. 26 from wounds received Nov. 20.

The family has three other children, William, 14, Richard, 12, and Rita, 11.

'FIFTH COLUMN' FANS ANTI-U. S. FIRES IN MEXICO

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON

[Tribune correspondent who has just returned from a survey of current opinion in Central and South America. This article is one of a series.]

The presence in Mexico of a "fifth column" that is inciting hostility against the United States by reviving old resentments and making subversive capital of war time exigencies has been brought into the open by Ezequiel Padilla, Mexico's secretary of foreign affairs.

In a recent address, Padilla, who is head of Mexico's delegation at the San Francisco conference, disclosed that the anti-United States sentiment, tho not representing a majority opinion in Mexico, had attained such proportions that he felt impelled to defend his country's foreign policy, particularly his close collaboration with this nation.

Many of Plotters Foreign

While Padilla did not mention names, it was believed his criticism was directed at jealous politicians, ambitious business interests and army men with divergent views, as well as the representatives of foreign governments.

He observed that "the people must realize this is a fifth column machination" and noted that tho many of the plotters are foreigners fulfilling their subversive mission, "unfortunately there are also Mexicans who, in their campaign to discredit the country, forget they are Mexicans."

Padilla recalled that in the early days of the war, when Mexican ships were being sunk, these persons suggested that the ships had been attacked by United States submarines. When there was a shortage of corn, wheat, lard, or gasoline, they whispered it was "because everything is shipped to the United States."

Recall U. S. Annexations.

The imminence of a final war victory for the allied nations having narrowed the field, the inciters are now reverting to the past. They are insidiously stirring historical resentment concerning the United States' annexation of Mexican territory and other incidents in which they accuse this country of having belittled Mexicans.

Padilla, who frankly defined the purpose of his address as a defense of Mexican foreign policy against the destructive machinations, said:

"The people must be aware of the existence of a constant and renewed onslaught against our foreign policy. That onslaught consists in designating the policy of Mexico as 'entreguismo,' that is, turning one's country over to a foreign power."

Advocated Pan-Americanism.

He cynically observed that to his slanderers "our attitude would have been brave had we joined the axis powers, had we turned Mexico over to the opprobrious dictatorships." Instead, Mexican foreign policy clearly advocated Pan-Americanism.

Warning that, just as Mexico has individuals who hate their big northern neighbor, so does the United States "have a powerful sector with imperialistic tendencies," Padilla said:

"Those who for spite, for their unconfessed Nazi-Fascism, or for envy, stir up animosity against our friends, the people of the United States, thereby encourage that imperialistic sector and thus weaken, before the public opinion of that country, the good neighbor policy so evident on the part of the great majority of the American people."

SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE

. . . Loom of Peace

From lands that know the nocturnal splendor of the Southern Cross . . .
From lands whose destinies have been guided by the North Star . . .
From ancient Mayan and Incan lands . . .
From old Cathay . . .
From the nations that border the sunny Mediterranean . . .
And from the chill uplands of the Himalayas and Tibet . . .

From everywhere men who intimately know death and blood and agony of war, have journeyed to the Golden Gate in a wondrous land "conceived in Liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

Here by the waters of an ocean called "Pacific" these men of different tongues and races will gather, drawn together by the common bond of Brotherhood. Here on the Loom of Goodwill and Understanding they will weave the pattern of a wonderful New World of Peace.

To the purpose of this Conference and to the successful fulfillment of its plans is this advertisement dedicated by the Carpet Industry of the United States. For each person identified with it, too, is a weaver—who by his skill takes wool from the four corners of the earth and turns it into new and lasting beauty for his fellow men.

When peace comes. When families once more are together. When men and women are free to turn their attentions once again to living, and not just bare existence, these weavers' hands will be busier than ever bringing them beautiful carpets denied them by four years of war.

This increased carpet production will require more wool from countries all over the world—rugged wools from Iceland, Tibet, China . . . resilient wools from Egypt, Turkey, Iran, India . . . lustrous wools from the nations of South America.

Surveys of postwar market potenials indicate that some 200,000,000 pounds of wool annually will be required by the Carpet Industry of the United States. And because American wool has been upgraded, is much too fine for durable carpeting, the Carpet Industry must look abroad for its whole supply.

Thus, the Carpet Industry of this country will play its role in the financial rehabilitation of many of the nations of the world whose economic balance has been disturbed by this war.

And so, in the hearts of the carpet weavers of America is the prayer that the Weavers at the San Francisco World Security Conference weave well . . .

That the Golden Gate will become the door of golden opportunity for men and nations large and small—a threshold to a greater, happier world free from the misunderstandings which foment the horrors and wreckage of war.

OPA TO DEMAND RED POINTS FOR HOARDED MEATS

Prove Ownership or Sell, Locker Renters Told

Homer Clay, chief office of price administration enforcement lawyer, reached behind the law yesterday in announcing that renters of meat lockers in the Chicago area must prove their rightful ownership of meat stored therein or give up the red points for it.

The matter of the rights of an individual and of the OPA's authority in forcing that individual to prove his innocence, rather than the OPA proving the individual's guilt, was sidestepped by OPA representatives when questioned by newsmen.

At the same time Clay disclosed that operators of the 20 locker companies in the area would be asked to meet in his office tomorrow afternoon in an effort to obtain their coöperation in explaining to their customers the reason for the sudden OPA interest in food lockers.

Use of Meat Sought

The OPA admitted it was not physically possible for their agents to visit each of the plants and inspect each locker, but that it thought an educational course in equal distribution, if applied by the locker companies, would bring the "hundreds of thousands of pounds" of meat back into circulation.

An example of the procedure the OPA might employ in the event it receives no coöperation from the individuals was displayed yesterday at the Dutch Dairy Frozen Locker company, 3316 Devon av., Lincolnwood, where OPA agents went Friday in a search for hoarded meats.

After Rudolph Malz, the owner, dropped his opposition to the inspection of his 2,000 lockers in the face of a federal court threat of jail, more than 20 OPA agents began opening individual lockers. After inspection of 30 lockers, the OPA declared 85 per cent of the meat was black market food.

Sworn Statements Taken

Yesterday OPA agents stood inside the locker company and collared each individual as they called to obtain meat for the week-end. They were asked to make a sworn statement telling how much meat they had stored, and how they got it.

Harry Adler, attorney for Malz, called the procedure a "high handed" method of obtaining information. "Those individuals do not have to make a statement unless subpenaed and taken to court," Adler said.

One OPA investigator explained that if a man was believed to have an excess of meat he would have to give up points, sell it for points, or turn it over to the OPA for distribution. He did not explain how much would be considered "excessive" by the OPA.

Declare Interest in Farms

Commenting on the investigator's statement, Adler declared, "Under their own regulation [No. 16], no matter what the amount of meat, the man is entitled to keep it if he is a farmer or producer. And, under the same regulation, it is permissible to lend meat up to 450 pounds, providing the loan is returned within six months and no cash transaction has been involved."

For the most part, locker renters swore they owned farms, that they had an interest in a farm, or that a farmer was either a relative or friend.

The OPA agents kept a watchful eye on 4,000 pounds of beef stored in the main locker of the plant. They said the meat was ungraded and unstamped.

Run On Lockers Reported

In other locker companies thruout Chicago yesterday individuals were reported to have made hasty visits to remove large quantities of meat they had carefully put away in the face of the meat shortage. The OPA admitted that "a run on the lockers" existed, but consoled other locker renters with the advice that no court action would be taken against them as long as they could prove rightful ownership, or produce red points instead.

Winners in spelling contest: Alice Schmal (center), Burnham, first; Alice Orback (right), River Grove, second; Beatrice Swanson (left), third.

BURNHAM GIRL WINS ANNUAL SPELLING BEE

River Grove Pupil 2d in County Contest

Three girls, two blondes and a brunette, won top places yesterday among 68 contestants in the 31st annual Cook county grade school spelling bee, held in the council chambers in the city hall. Alice Schmal, 14, of 13802 Chippewa av., Burnham, the daughter of a war plant foreman, took home the gold medal and the first place banner for her school. Alice, an 8th grade pupil who studied a 40,000 word dictionary for several months in preparation for the contest, missed only "stereopticon" and "recipient" in the fourth and final spelling-off.

Lemont Girl Is Third

Runner-up with the silver medal was Alice Orback, 13, of 8622 Carey av., River Grove, also an 8th grader. She shared the winner's trouble over "stereopticon," misspelled "rapier," and lost first place by missing "expeditiously."

Third place and a bronze award went to Beatrice Swanson, 13, of 409 Lemont st., Lemont. She lost out by two words, "questionnaire" and "bureaucrat," in the third spelldown, in which the two Alices had perfect scores.

The contestants, who came as delegates to the final bee from spelling competitions in the schools and townships, sat in the aldermen's places in the chamber.

Show Higher Ability

Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, who conducted the contest, said that spelling ability was higher this year than last.

Assisting Puffer, and acting as judges, were five assistant county superintendents: David Heffernan, Miss Nellie McMahon, Clarence Callahan, George Butler, and Milton Bollman.

BRING THEM HOME ALIVE

America's allies have been put in a position to finish the job both in Asia and Europe. It is primarily their job. On both continents the first interest of the United States is and should be the lives of its young men. Sen. Chandler recalled the other day Mr. Churchill's remark in 1941: "Give us the tools and we'll finish the job." The courage of the statement was characteristic of the British prime minister. If, however, tools had been all he had received, Germany would not be in its last gasp now.

Tools were given, over 35 billion dollars' worth to the peoples fighting Hitler and Japan. American tanks gave Montgomery the necessary edge to chase Rommel out of Egypt. To chase him out of Africa required American troops. American soldiers took over the war in Europe. Mr. Churchill has been a generous man in his praise of the American troops and a thrifty man in his use of British men. An ancient British tradition would applaud him in this. We need not criticise him while we take a lesson from him.

Russia has expended men with good reason for doing so. It had a criminal part in the start of the war and profited from it. When Hitler double-crossed Stalin, retribution began to come home to both of them. They have been engaged in a life and death struggle. England made it possible for Russia to survive. The equation of their obligations to each other can be left to them. Neither would be tasting victory now if America had not given Churchill tools and men and Stalin tools. England preferred not to stop Hitler when it could have been done and to engage itself to Poland when it was too late. France has at no time in the decade justified itself as the military power it assumed to be. The consequences of all these mistakes and devious dealings were piled up in hills of disaster. American armies have cleared the ground.

American commanders may want to be in at the kill of the last armed German. Professional habit might take such a course for granted. Civil authority, which the army serves, could have a different view. The war, according to our government, has been one of self-defense, America joining in it, first without shooting, because our national life was endangered. Both in Europe and in the Pacific the pronounced purpose has been accomplished. If the national security was endangered it is now assured. The young men conscripted to serve their country have carried their work to the point where they can be relieved of many of the remaining dangers.

American forces have been the only forces bearing the burdens of two wars at once with success in both. The justice their country owes them is to see that they get home alive. Other rewards will follow. The one the soldier wants is life again at home. In Europe the other enemies of Germany should be fully capable of polishing off what remains to be done. The French, the British, and the Russians should have no difficulty in mopping up Hitler's desperadoes and should have a keen incentive for it. Japan has been reduced to a suicidal state. We suggest that they do their banzai charges against the troops of countries which want the lands they occupy. We need not be covetous of too much honor. Our forces have enough garlands.

In what is called political warfare we are supposed, by some authorities in the art, to have been much less expert than our enemies whose habit was to promise benefits and practice atrocities. Hitler's unity of Europe didn't fool many people and Japan's greater east Asia's co-prosperity apparently none. Our promises have not smoothed the way for our fighters. We have promised to hang the enemy authorities responsible for the conduct of the war. That they should, accordingly, insist on fighting in the last street and the last ditch would seem quite natural. Possibly if we could have allowed them to believe that they had a chance to make their peace and then hanged them it would have been more adroit and would have been more considerate of the fighting men who have had it the hard way from the beginning.

Any number of Nazi war criminals may be brought to trial, but we may doubt that many Japs will live to face a judge and executioner. They will, nevertheless, be dead. More than 300,000 of the Japs who disgraced humanity in the Philippines have been killed. More will be killed before the islands are completely cleared. Japanese cities have been burned. We must remember that retribution already has hit this enemy hard. Other countries have accounts to settle. Let them have the opportunity.

At this stage of the war, not only in Europe but in Asia, conservation of men should be an American policy. The stage is all set for the other fellows.

COLLEGES IN CHICAGO

Sixteen state senators from Chicago have sponsored a series of bills which would transfer to the University of Illinois operation and control of the Chicago Teachers' college and three junior colleges, now operated by the Chicago board of education. The immediate motive is to stick the state treasury with the cost of running the colleges, but the proposal should not be rejected on that ground alone.

As to the Chicago Teachers' college, so long as its graduates retain a monopoly of jobs in the Chicago public school system, the taxpayers of Chicago should expect to foot the bills. If the state were to run the college, this existing closed shop would have to be broken up, which would be a good thing for the Chicago schools, the state, and probably the college as well.

The University of Illinois is not the institution to run the teachers' college, however. The state has a board of normal school trustees, who administer the other teachers' colleges, and the Chicago college, if transferred to the state, would fall into their sphere.

Chicago's establishment of junior [two year] colleges followed a trend thruout the country. Until now junior colleges in Illinois have been supported by local school districts. Dr. George A. Works, former dean at the University of Chicago, has made a study of the question for Gov. Green, and any action on the Chicago junior colleges should follow his recommendations for a state system of such institutions.

The Chicago school system has neither the financial resources, the educational ability nor, at present, the academic integrity to run really good institutions of higher education. Transfer of the existing junior colleges to the University of Illinois would lead, almost inevitably, to pressure for full four year curricula taught in Chicago. Whether the university, with all its existing problems, is prepared to launch a Chicago branch at this time is questionable. If it did, it might prefer to start from scratch, and might get better results by doing so.

The matter is hardly urgent. Most male high school graduates aren't going to college these days, nor will they be until the war with Japan ends. When these boys get out of the army, they won't have the normal difficulties of financing their education. Under the G. I. bill of rights they can go to Champaign, or Berkeley or Cambridge, at federal expense.

The senate bills should be rejected, and the questions involved studied with more in mind than the financial relief of the Chicago board of education.

UNDER THE SPREADING BUROCRACY

We are beginning to think that Oelwein, Ia., is the logical successor to Winsted, Conn., the town which was put on the map 20 years ago by a series of fabulous events. Oelwein, however, owes its new position as the capital of never-never land to the strange doings of the burocrats. A week ago we related the curious adventure of the shrimphouse that asked OPA for a 10 cent increase in the ceiling price of fried shrimps. This week we are privileged to relate the case of the missing work gloves. We are indebted to Mr. Lew Warren, editor of the Oelwein Daily Register, who submitted the facts.

Oelwein has a blacksmith shop, one of the few in northeast Iowa. There are four men employed in the shop and each needs a pair of canvas work gloves each week. The manufacturer can provide the gloves only if WPB form No. 541 is presented, properly approved. The village smith, J. E. Kuhns, submitted form 541 twice to the Davenport WPB office. Each time the form was returned with the notation that WPB was not satisfied that it had been filled out "to the letter."

A Mr. Whelan of the WPB directed that the next form be sent by registered letter restricted to delivery to himself. Return receipts were received twice for this one letter, but neither was signed by Mr. Whelan. The smithy continued its struggles to obtain permission to buy four pair of work gloves, but nothing happened.

Finally, in despair, letters were written by a number of banks, business houses, utilities, etc., to demonstrate to WPB that the smithy was indispensable to farmers and business firms. Those who vouched for the need of four pair of work gloves included the town newspaper, bank, bus line, creamery, packing house, gas company, light company, two manufacturers, the chairman of the rationing board, the interviewer of the war man power commission, and the secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Still no approval of form 541; still no gloves.

Mr. Kuhns and his son then sent a telegram to the Davenport WPB demanding an explanation of what action it intended to take on issuing a permit for the purchase of the gloves. The Kuhns stated that they intended to submit the matter to Sen. Hickenlooper and have it discussed on the floor of the United States senate.

"Any one of common intelligence," they wrote the senator, "knows what canvas work gloves are and why they are needed in a blacksmith shop. . . . Surely the form could be approved and gloves obtained and the exact wording of the form fought out later. . . . We have stated our case completely and fully to the Washington WPB office, but we have had no answer from them. Such treatment by the WPB would force any one into the black market for what they absolutely must have."

As Mr. Warren remarks, the thing is asinine. Private business would not tolerate such inefficiency 24 hours. People would be fired. And all over four pair of canvas gloves, providing a subject for correspondence and debate from Davenport to WPB headquarters in Washington to the floor of the senate, while weeks go by.

Here is regimentation and super-burocracy at its most typical. Here is the utter inability of the burocrat to use common sense judgment, to perceive any difference in importance, say, between the allocation of 40,000 tons of steel for battleships and a permit for four pair of dime store gloves. This is what we shall have if the government-run-everything boys were to get their way.

THE AMERICAN ARMY

[Following is the extemporaneous address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, in place of his prepared speech, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK

Just before I came out here I was told that President Truman had said that reports of Germany's surrender were erroneous.

Even so, we have completely beaten the Germans. The mopping up cannot take long and it cannot be out of place to pay tribute to our glorious American army which has won the victory.

May I remind you that back in 1939 the French army was considered the strongest in the world. When the German army went into Austria, and when it went into Czechoslovakia, the military critics scoffed at it. It then burst into Poland and conquered that supposedly strong military country in a matter of days and yet nobody took it seriously. During "the phony war," the French army, the British army, the Belgian army, and the Dutch army had learned nothing. And, I am sorry to say, neither had the American army.

As you know, the German army crushed the French, Belgian, and Dutch armies and the British army fled to its boats. If an American army had been there, it would have had to die in place, because it was not equipped to meet the German army and American armies never give way.

Our military doctrine was all wrong, the doctrine of the people at the top, and so great credit to the younger men, almost all unknown to me, who learned a new way of warfare, and, armed by our unequaled production of weapons, beat the enemy with his own strategy and tactics.

The landing was a Japanese invention. It conquered Hong Kong, Malaya, the Philippines, and the Dutch Indies. That wasn't in our book. We had to learn it and we did. We landed on the coast of Normandy, and my old division, the 1st American, lost one-third of its troops in making that landing. The willingness of the fighting soldier to take losses is a necessary prelude to victory. The 1st division landed. Less determined men would not have landed and the whole campaign would have failed.

Then, as you recall, came the capture of Cherbourg and then the American break-thru at St. Lo, where the 1st American army broke the line and the 3d army passed thru and got in the rear of the enemy.

The 1st army then followed the 3d and attempted to surround the Germans by meeting the British and Canadians, who were on the left flank, but they did not make their advance, and while the Germans were badly beaten, a large part of them got away.

Then came the advance up to the north of France and again another swing around Mons, but again the British failed to close the gap and the Germans got away.

The American 1st army wanted to break the German defense line then, but their aviation was given to the British, who failed at Arnhem, and it looked like stagnation. The Germans then made their last attempt at victory in the battle we call "the bulge." They used all their best troops, all their best mechanical equipment, took out all their remaining airplanes, and made an attack such as had won everywhere else. But they did not win.

The old 1st division was in the way, with the 2d on the flank, and the 4th, and nothing could push them backward. An air borne division came in on the other flank and the Germans were stopped.

There has never been such a campaign as was fought last winter, fought at temperatures far below zero with men in the field without cover. We thought we had been thru the hardest campaigns men had ever fought, but our campaign was nothing to this one.

Then came the spectacular crossing of the Rhine, with the seizing of the Ludendorf bridge, the putting down of other bridges, and the breaking thru the German lines, when the use of lighter, faster tanks, which had been so much criticized, was fully justified.

The two American armies had the mission of surrounding, and the 1st and the 9th surrounded the Germans in the Ruhr and took 300,000 prisoners. Since then, it has been mopping up. It has been continuous victory. The end cannot be far off, the end won in France and Germany by the unequaled valor of American men without whom generalship would have been unavailing, and in the Pacific by the army and navy and all I have to say to you is: Don't let these cocktail drinking people in Washington betray us in San Francisco!

Editorials of the Day

HANDBAGS FOR MEN?
[Memphis Commercial Appeal]

One London outfitter is of the opinion that postwar fashions for men will very likely include handbags of the sort now carried by women. He bases his thought on the fact that so many men have got used to taking their belongings around with them in musette bags and haversacks, and his belief that they will want to continue. Press dispatches from the British capital allege that many male civilians are already seen going up and down and around and about with their personal plunder and impedimenta contained in handbags slung over the shoulder on straps.

If this means that any considerable portion of the male population has to open the big bag, find the little bag, open the little bag, hunt out the coin purse, open the coin purse, and then fumble for 7 cents to pay bus fare, we are against it, strictly. On the other hand, if rationing and regimentation continue to display their present trend toward increase, a man will need a handbag to carry his cards, papers, and suchlike, for every one knows that old letters, cards, bills, things, and stuff of infinite variety and utter uselessness will undoubtedly overstuff all his dozen or so pockets as of yore. It would be a help in some ways if men did affect handbags. It would offer something besides socks, shirts, ties, and handkerchiefs when in the course of human events it became necessary to give the old man a Christmas or birthday present.

THE SUPER-RACE
[Hartford (Conn.) Courant]

According to news reports the supermen of Hanover battled each other over the head with barrel staves in their frenzied plundering of the city's food supplies. As one correspondent described it, "There was no regard for sex or age. Men struck women down with fists and even barrel staves. Boys robbed aged women and men carrying off sacks of meal and flour."

And what of the vaunted Volkssturm, those graying werewolves who were to preserve order? Why they were right in there, too, trying to get their share of the booty. Thus does the bloody cycle of Hitlerism round to completion as the Herrenvolk belabor each other with barrel staves in a manner reminiscent of a Mack Sennett comedy. But it is not a funny sight. Indeed, it is no funnier than would be the sight of a pack of wolves snarling at each other's throats as in final hunger they fight to the death for the last bit of stolen food.

As nothing that is human can be alien to the rest of us, the entire world should experience a feeling of debasement as it contemplates the abyss into which has fallen a large segment of the human race.

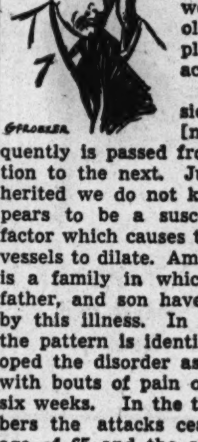
ARE YOU A MEMBER OF THE MIGRAINE FAMILY?



HEADACHE may result from so many different conditions that the most painstaking search may not reveal the origin. There are some individuals who claim never to have suffered from a single episode but they seldom brag about it without first knocking on wood. Even this old world has plenty of headaches.

Old fashioned sick headache [migraine] frequently is passed from one generation to the next. Just what is inherited we do not know but it appears to be a susceptibility to a factor which causes the tiny cranial vessels to dilate. Among my friends is a family in which grandfather, father, and son have been plagued by this illness. In each instance the pattern is identical. All developed the disorder as young adults, with bouts of pain occurring every six weeks. In the two older members the attacks ceased after the age of 65 and the same will probably happen to the youngest when he reaches this time of life.

It is said that this ailment is the commonest complaint of civilized people. Symptoms vary greatly from trifling to disabling. Over half the patients find it unnecessary to seek medical attention.

Many victims can tell beforehand that a siege is on the way. There may be a sense of dejection or marked hunger. Eye disturbances—blurring, balls of light, or colored waves that zigzag—are mentioned. Occasionally more alarming indications are noted, such as numbness of the tongue, cramps in the muscles, or temporary paralysis of the face.

When the seizure presents itself it is prostrating. At first there is a feeling of heaviness in the head. Later, marked aching begins in a localized spot on one side of the temple, forehead, or in the eyeball spreading gradually to the skull and neck. Nausea and vomiting soon follow and retching may be so violent that ultimately only bile is ejected from the stomach. The face and lips are pale, the eyes sunken, and the vessels over the affected temple are prominent. Restlessness, irritability, anxiety, or depression complete the picture.

Attempting to aid these patients is difficult. They wish to be let alone. Thru experience they realize that rest in bed will shorten the period of distress. Others are so weak that they have no choice. The slightest noise or light aggravates the illness. If a good night's rest can be enjoyed, morning may find the invalid well on the road to recovery. Others suffer longer, but rarely over three days.

Ergotamine tartrate helps to constrict the offending vessels in the brain and may give immediate relief. This drug is not candy, however, and should be used with caution. For more permanent results an effort should be made to find the starter.

Sometimes the ailment is traceable to dietary indiscretions, late hours, overfatigue, or eyestrain. The victim may be allergic to certain foods and butter, eggs, chocolate, or fat meats may be considered.

In general, prevention consists of avoidance of excitement, regularity in meals, moderation in diet, proper bowel habits, and ample sleep.

INDUCING BREATHING

M. S. writes: I have read of saving the life of a baby who is in danger of suffocation by breathing into its mouth. My husband says it is better to employ artificial respiration. Will you advise?

REPLY

While the air which is exhaled contains carbon dioxide—a stimulant to breathing—the chances are that it cannot reach the child's lungs. Thus the practice has long been abandoned in favor of artificial respiration.

BLONDIE'S MOTHER

Mrs. M. writes: My daughter bleached her hair and I would like to know the antidote and have her use it without her knowing what I'm doing. I just can't stand her hair the way it looks now.

REPLY

This is a cosmetic question that your local beauty parlor can answer. If the girl wants blonde hair, this is no way for you to handle the situation.

GOLD TOOTH

G. R. writes: I have a gold filling in one of my front teeth and don't like it. Is there any way I can cover it up?

REPLY

Yes, it can be removed and porcelain substituted. If the filling is too deep, after the gold is eliminated, the tooth may be ground down, and a porcelain jacket attached.

BONE CONDITION

H. J. writes: Will you please describe Osgood-Schlatter's disease?

REPLY

This is a disorder of the growing part of the shin bone near the knee. Only a small area is involved and injury is the most likely cause. In most cases, complete recovery occurs in one or two years.

MORE OR LESS

F. A. writes: Are paralysis and palsy the same?

REPLY

Paralysis means a loss of voluntary movement while the term "palsy" is generally used to designate specific types of paralysis such as Bell's [facial], lead, etc.

IT PROGRESSES

K. W. writes: What is creeping palsy?

REPLY

This refers to a slowly advancing wasting and paralysis of the muscles of the extremities and trunk. It is known as "progressive muscular atrophy."

GAMBLING ON SPORTS

Santa Clara, Cal., April 8—Dr. Forrest C. Allen, head basketball coach of the University of Kansas, charged recently that basketball had become "big business" and "dirty business" at that; that gamblers have become a threat to college athletes; that professional gamblers have caused lads to "throw" college basketball games. At once Dr. Allen became victim of a smear campaign. His crusade was about to end in smeary failure when five members of the Brooklyn college basketball team confessed that gamblers had bribed them, price $3,000, to "throw" the game against Akron college.

The blighting hand of the gambler has ever corrupted and discredited American sports. Thirty years ago, when the gambler had made the sport of kings the racket of knaves, the American states, led off by Charles E. Hughes, then governor of New York, outlawed race track gambling. But the race track gamblers over the years have crept back, and are now more firmly entrenched than ever. Gamblers even corrupted our national game. The bribery by professional gamblers by which the Chicago White Sox tossed the series to the Cincinnati Reds is the one black page in the history of American baseball. Even high school athletics are not exempt. At Miami, Fla., professional gamblers were caught red handed working high school games.

How is it that these professional gamblers go unscathed? Perhaps examination of the activities of liquor-gambler lobbies at our state capitals would suggest an answer. Here in California, investigators, financed by the Sacramento grand jury and the state, reported that during a six year period one Sacramento lobbyist had received $164,999.97 from race track and liquor concerns. The report said he had members of the legislature regularly retained "as attorneys."

Over a period of three years, the report set forth, the lobbyist paid one of his retained attorney legislators $9,250. In addition, this attorney legislator was paid $1,872.50 by liquor concerns; $4,500 by race track interests; $8,875 by other gambling interests. His salary as a legislator during this period was $3,600. The gambling and liquor interests are, no doubt, as firmly entrenched at other state capitals. FRANKLIN HICHBORN

FROM LT. GEN. SMITH

In the Pacific, April 17—Please accept my sincere appreciation for the two issues of the Tribune Sunday Graphic section inclosed in your letter of March 12. You are doing the country and the armed forces a great service by such interesting and accurate reporting on our progress in the war. Thank you for myself and all marines in the Pacific. H. M. SMITH.

FIGHTING FOR AMERICA

Camp Polk, La., April 18—The New Deal told the American people that the nation or the war couldn't run without the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. The war will be fought and won because we are fighting for the United States and not for one man or group of men. A SOLDIER.

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks answers questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents. Replies will be given by mail if stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice may be obtained from The Tribune's bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., or by phone, Superior 0200.]

R. W. asks: "Can an officer who has been retired without pay because of the findings of a medical board have his case reviewed?"

Both the army and the navy have boards whose duty it is to review the cases of officers retired or released to inactive service without pay for physical disability. The review will be based upon all available service records relating to the officer and any other evidence he may present. He may present the testimony of witnesses either in person or by affidavit and is allowed to appear before the board in person or be represented by counsel.

P. B. asks: "What is the difference between the WAC and WAAC as regards military status?"

Members of the women's army auxiliary corps, according to a ruling of the adjutant general, were not persons who "entered upon active military service" and are not entitled to reëmployment benefits under the selective training and service act. Members of the WAC are entitled to any and all benefits applicable to enlisted men of the army. Members of the WAC may make allotments from their pay and obtain family allowance for dependent parents, brothers, or sisters.

CHARGES PEONAGE IN INDIA

Iowa City, Ia., April 23—THE TRIBUNE'S excellent editorial on a new deal for the colonies referred last week to the indenture system with its accompanying slavery and peonage in New Guinea, Java, Indo-China, and Malay. May I add to that list India? It may be of interest that there are today in India more than a million plantation slaves on the large tea, coffee, and rubber plantations.

The labor for these plantations is recruited all over India. The workers with their families are quartered in rows of packing boxes miscalled "houses." There they live, in filth and squalor, under the complete control of the corporations and without the most elementary civil rights. Altho the penal contracts have been formally abolished in recent years, the laborers still remain in virtual bondage to their masters for prolonged periods, and even in practice in many cases for life. Their position is not much removed from legal serfdom.

Perhaps the conditions of the laborers tied to tea plantations reach the lowest levels. These plantations, which exploit the labor of men, women, and children mercilessly, are euphemistically called "tea gardens." While the plantations pay fabulous dividends to investors, the wages of the workers are appallingly low.

In the "tea gardens," the average wage of men is $2, of women $1.75, and of children $1.40 a month. These do not, however, represent clear income. Out of these princely salaries the laborer has to pay fines and deductions for real or imaginary violation of company rules, bribes to overseers, and "commissions" to job contractors, who often take 50 per cent of his earnings.

All this is, of course, an inevitable part of the exploiting colonial system. Will the delegates of the San Francisco confab, who already have professed so much concern for social and economic welfare of the world, have the wisdom and moral conscience to liquidate the colonial system? Or do they think that the French, Dutch, and British colonies are apart from the world? SUDHINDRA BOSE.

WAR MEMORIAL

India-Burma Theater, April 2—News has reached this theater that many cities are now making plans for elaborate and expensive war memorials and statues.

Men and women, in the armed forces of the world, appreciate this gesture, I am certain, but they do not agree with it wholeheartedly. Most of them have seen too much of death, suffering, and destruction to appreciate spending money on marble and memorial buildings. Those who have given their lives in this war, gave it so that the living could enjoy a better way of life and learn to live in peace together. The eyes of the world are now turned to America as a leader in the rehabilitation program that is to follow after hostilities have ceased. America cannot swing such a program alone, obviously, but she can introduce a program of world child rehabilitation.

It is suggested that on the great day of victory, when all peoples of the world are celebrating this happy occasion, that each man and woman contribute what he may desire to be used for world child rehabilitation. This fund would be turned into supervised channels for the purpose of providing food, clothing, and medical care for the millions of little children, who have suffered so greatly in this world conflict. What better memorial could we give them than to help these same children? ZERYL E. JACKSON

THE SHORE STATION NAVY

Chicago, April 18—After reading last two paragraphs of Laurence Burd's dispatch from Washington, I couldn't resist adding a comment to it. The house appropriations committee weren't kidding when they said there is too much uniformed navy personnel in jobs that could and should be filled by civilians. Just today I looked at the latest directory issued by the inspector of naval material, Chicago district, in which were listed 78 officers, ranging in rank from captain to warrant officer, occupying desks in the downtown office in the Board of Trade building.

In addition, 48 officers are scattered around in various plants in the district as resident inspectors or other similar positions. Not mentioned in this directory are the many enlisted men that are stationed in both the main office and various plants that are manufacturing naval material and equipment. There are few, if any, of these positions that could not be filled as well, and in most instances better, by civil service appointees. I've had occasion to see some of these "ninety day wonders" in action, and sometimes the results were not even funny. I speak from more than two years' experience as a civil service material inspector for the navy and also as the father of a boy in active military service. NAVY VETERAN OF 1917

ON COMMUNISM IN AUSTRALIA

Chicago, April 18 — Your article "Communism's Grip on Australia" in the Graphic section of April 8, would give the average reader an impression which is false regarding affairs in Australia. As a visiting business man and patriotic Australian, with no political interests, I definitely say there is no serious communistic influence or power there—or likely to be.

The article is based on a booklet by J. T. Lang who, when premier in 1931 adopted such wild political schemes that he, personally was responsible in causing a run and a closing of the state bank. He made such a mess of things the federal government had to take over the bank, which it quickly did and removed it from his mischievous influence. Lang soon lost power and is a leader with practically no following today—but he still talks a great deal. He should be the last one to rave about communism.

Communism with 20,000 members in our population of 7½ million is a mere nothing. Most of these members are enthusiastic citizens who showed their pleasure with Russia, when that country was in 1941 the only fighting partner with Britain. Japan and the U. S. A. were not in the war. The position in the Pacific looked threatening and we were all pleased that Russia was then on our side.

Our existing government is definitely labor and does a great deal for the workers. It is not my party, but I believe that it has done a good job during our long war. It has done a great deal for the workers and their conditions—but no more than they deserve and I say that as an employer of 100 persons myself. The result has been excellent coöperation from the workers for the war effort. Some industrial troubles have been magnified by an anti-administration press. The miners have strikes, as in all countries, but actually they have produced much more coal each war year than pre-war.

An interesting experiment was the recent referendum for the people to decide whether they would permit the government to continue any war time controls that may be necessary for seven years after the war. The present government said this would help our economic post-war adjustment and avoid inflation. The opposition party asked the voters to vote "no." Despite the government's election majority, the people refused to support them on this question of continued controls and voted "no controls." Which shows we will let any one say his piece, but we will quickly throw out any doubtful schemes. We will not follow any political party blindly.

The union that controls my employes, like 95 per cent of all our unions, is moderate, and fair, and because of the appreciative response from my employes it is my pleasure and aim to extend to them even more consideration and advantage than is claimed for them by their union.

There is invested in Australia by United States interests some $500,000,000 by such concerns as Goodyear, Wrigley's, Jantzen, and others with factories built there, and their capital investments are as safe there today as they ever were, and much safer than in many other countries.

AT THE NAVAL WAR COLLEGE

Champaign, Ill., April 19—My son, Comdr. Louis R. Moore, a member of the staff of the naval war college, Newport, R. I., writes me about the maps in THE TRIBUNE, to which he is a subscriber and constant reader, as follows: "Of course you may tell THE TRIBUNE that I am using their maps in my work at the war college and find them very timely and useful. I enjoy these maps and our army officer here on the staff says they are the best of any he sees. I am pleased to see that THE TRIBUNE dates their maps, as important as signing a check or numbering a page." OTIS W. MOORE

DIVIDING A FARM

Chicago, April 26—My mother was a widow when she died, leaving her home and farmland to the four surviving children. The title is now in our four names. 1. Two of the children want the property sold but [2] two of us would like to have the land divided and build small homes on our share. Can we be forced to sell against our will? G. P.

1. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

2. If the court agrees with you that the land is susceptible of division in kind, you might retain a part of the land. But ordinarily the entire unit would be sold.

HENRY HAD A HOLE IN HIS STOCKING or, "a man's got to have some privacy"

YESTERDAY—Henry blushed so easily—and that's how the Store for Men began! Bashful Henry (he's still a Marshall Field & Company employee) way back in '88 tilted his derby down firmly over his eyes when he strode through "Ladies' Chemises" on his way to "Men's Furnishings." He blushed and cursed "bachelor" hose when he tried on shoes in the combined men's and ladies' shoe section—for there, revealed for all to see—a hole in his stocking! Henry complained: "A man," he said, "has got to have some privacy!" And so we consolidated men's furnishings—we put up a row of ferns and aspidistras between the ladies' and men's shoe sections. We went in for the latest word in men's fashions—like vests of white toweling. And men's haberdashery grew . . .

TODAY—the Store for Men has its own building—there's everything from a garter to an elephant gun. There are 25,138 ties to choose from. There is one of the largest hat sections and one of the largest shoe sections in the world. There's a man's grill, as exclusively male as an English club. You can find a school for duck calling—or a saddle shop that makes saddles for the whole Chicago mounted police force! It's a man's world—one of the greatest stores for men in the whole world!

TOMORROW—holds our promise! We've answered your needs in the '90's—in a difficult today—and we intend to have the answers in the complicated postwar world ahead! That's our job, our responsibility, our promise—to you who made us what we are today. (Chapter IV of the story "Marshall Field & Company and Early Chicago.")

CUT DOWN PLANE PRODUCTION IN MORE U.S. PLANTS

Army Reduction Catches WPB Napping

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 28—Sweeping cuts in the production of bombing and fighting planes, except for the latest models being used in the war against Japan, have already begun.

A general 15 per cent slash in production ordered by the army 10 days ago is being increased by the war production board.

The army cut decreased production of some models by as much as 50 per cent. New cuts made bring a decrease in the production of some models by as much as 70 per cent. It is expected that a WPB curtailment order will be issued shortly.

On April 18 the army air forces announced that the mammoth Ford Willow Run plant, currently turning out Liberator bombers, would halt production of this plane by August. The Consolidated plant at San Diego, Cal., is also to halt production of this plane and concentrate on the production of B-32 Dominators.

Cut for Fortresses

At the same time it was said that west coast aircraft plants face a 40 per cent cut in production of the B-17 Flying Fortresses. These planes are second in size only to the B-29s, which are now blasting Japan, and the forthcoming B-32s, which are known as the big brother of the B-24 Liberator.

The Ford Motor company today announced it will operate its Willow Run plant 40 hours a week Monday to begin cutting production in order to cease turning out Liberators by August. The plant has been operating two shifts of 9 hours a day five days a week.

Discontinuance of production of Liberators, it was reported, means abandonment of army plans to produce a modification of the Liberator to be known as the B-24-N.

There will be an increase or at least no curtailment in the production of some planes, which will be used against Japan. In addition to the B-29s and the B-32s these include the A-26 Invader light bomber and the P-80 and P-82 fighters and the C-54 Skymaster cargo-transport planes.

Other Reductions Planned

Cuts will come in the B-25 Mitchell and B-26 Marauder medium bombers and the A-20 Havoc bombers in addition to those in the heavy bombers mentioned. There will also be cuts in a wide variety of fighters and cargo-transport planes.

The army announcement of cuts caught WPB officials napping. WPB officials had circled May 1 as V-E day for the purpose of announcing new production schedules, regardless of when Gen. Eisenhower proclaims victory day.

WPB refused to confirm the army's announcement for the Willow Run plant for some days and WPB still is insisting on a 48 hour week at the plant. It has been estimated in labor circles that the Willow Run cut will release 100,000 workers from their jobs in the plant itself and subcontract plants.

Expedite Auto Making

Chairman Krug of the WPB has announced a $35,000,000 construction program for the automobile industry had been approved as an aid to the industry's reconversion to civilian cars, an enterprise which, it is anticipated, will provide employment for many of the workers, displaced by the reductions in aircraft schedules. This program, which will be assisted to completion with the high AA-3 priority rating, supplements plans announced last week which would enable automotive producers to obtain 50 million dollars worth of machine tools for reconversion purposes.

Altho assuring industry WPB help on getting started on peacetime production when the military situation permits it, Krug warned: warned:

"It is not possible at this time to authorize the procurement by industries desiring to build new plants or set up entirely new production lines of all the tools and equipment needed for such lines. The country cannot yet undertake the impact of this kind of procurement."

A MONTH TO GO

Detroit, Mich., April 28 [Special]—Edward L. Cushman, Michigan director for the war man power commission, indicated here today that the huge Willow Run bomber plant may wind up its production of four engine B-24 war planes by June 1 instead of in August, as previously announced.

"Willow Run has little more than a month to go," Cushman said, commenting on an announcement by the Ford Motor company, which operates the plant, that a 40 hour week will be substituted beginning Monday for the 45 hour week now being observed.

Change in Shifts Planned

The Ford announcement said that, in addition to a reduction of man hours from 45 to 40 per week, the plant will operate one eight-hour shift a day instead of two nine-hour shifts. The move was decided upon, the Ford company said, in order to avoid the necessity for lay-offs.

Cushman said the Ford action is without the approval of the war man power commission, which has formally denied a Ford application for permission to shorten hours. He said 20,000 men are needed for other war work in the Detroit area, and persons laid off at Willow Run can be put to work immediately elsewhere. The Willow Run plant now employs about 21,000 workers.

FINDS HORRORS OF BUCHENWALD TOO VILE TO TELL

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—Rep. Kunkel [R., Pa.] today returned to Washington from an inspection of the German concentration camps at Buchenwald, appalled at the evidence of Nazi atrocities.

"Anything you hear about conditions of Buchenwald will be understatement," he told reporters. "The full truth would get into the realm of obscenity and filth—so low you couldn't print it."

"The army has done a wonderful job of cleaning it up," he said, "but the smell of death is still over the place."

Spain Shoots 7 Convicted of Slaying 2 Falangists

MADRID, Spain, April 28 (AP)—Seven men convicted by a military tribunal of having killed two Falangists Feb. 25 were shot by a firing squad in Madrid's Carabanchel prison at dawn, it was learned today. Neither the executions nor the court judgments have been published, but the bodies of those executed were surrendered to their families this afternoon.

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when over-loaded.

Nearly 30 years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Liberal Trial Offer

To prove that Cystex may be the very medicine you need accept this fair-play trial offer: Get a supply of Cystex from your druggist today. Take it exactly as directed and watch for quick help, a rapid increase in pep, more youthful feeling and a new joy in living. You must be completely satisfied and highly delighted or you simply return the empty package and your money back is guaranteed.

Tear this out. Take it to your druggist. Be sure to get genuine, guaranteed Cystex which is scientifically produced under the direction of a licensed physician, and used by millions throughout the world. Three guaranteed Cystex sizes—35c, 75c, $1.50.

Don't travel unless your trip helps win the war

We are proud to announce that TWA's famous fleet of 4-engine Stratoliners has resumed coast-to-coast commercial flying after 2½ years of overocean military service.

Now completely modernized, the cost of these great planes exceeds $400,000 each. They are, in effect, new planes — faster, more powerful and more comfortable than the Stratoliners you once knew.

The modernization included new wings, landing gear and tail assembly — all exactly the same as used in the latest type B-17G Boeing Flying Fortress. The electrical system is the same type as used in the B-29 Superfortress.

The new engines are more powerful than ever. However, due to a wartime lack of supercharging equipment, the Stratoliners will be operated at regular altitudes.

With their superior speed and fewer stops the Stratoliners cut nearly 3 hours from TWA's regular transcontinental time.

For this finer, faster and more costly service an extra fare is charged.

The return of the Stratoliners to TWA helps relieve the heavy load of essential war traffic — passengers, mail and cargo — that must get through the fastest way possible.

G. I.'S INFORM KIN OF LIBERATION IN REICH BY ALLIES

Cablegrams and letters sent directly brought word to several Chicago families yesterday that their soldiers held as prisoners of war in Germany had been liberated by allied armies.

Tech. Sgt. Harry W. Angus II., 21, of 5432 Harper av., who had been a prisoner since Feb. 21, 1943, when his bomber was shot down over Brunswick, cabled his wife, Evelyn, that he hoped to see her soon. His parents live in Beaumont, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rinella, 4422 S. California av., received word from their son, Pvt. Joseph, 23, that he had been freed April 25. He had been a prisoner since last Dec. 20.

Liberated April 13 was Sgt. Robert R. Swardstad, 19, of 4013 Lowell av. He wrote his mother, Mrs. Ethel Moot, that he was taken prisoner Dec. 21 and was freed from a camp near Goerlitz, Germany.

In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Capps, 821 Newport av., Staff Sgt. George Jr., 18, wrote that all of his personal belongings were taken from him after his capture by the Germans March 14. He was liberated April 6.

British Birth Rate Sets Mark for 10 Year Span

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 28—Britain's birth rate of 18 per 1,000 last year was the highest since 1925, official figures disclosed today. The rate was 1.5 per cent higher than in 1943. An infant mortality rate of 4.6 per cent was the lowest ever recorded.

To Wed Bogart

LAUREN BACALL

Hollywood, Cal., April 28 (AP)—Actor Humphrey Bogart said today he will marry Actress Lauren Bacall as soon as the present Mrs. Bogart obtains her Reno divorce.

Bogart said the wedding, which will be his fourth, will take place on Author Louis Bromfield's Ohio farm if he can arrange for a leave from his studio. It will be as soon as possible after his estranged wife, Mayo Methot, completes her six weeks' Nevada residence.

Bogart and Miss Methot were married in 1938 and have had numerous estrangements during the intervening years. He was previously married to Actresses Helen Menken and Mary Phillips. The marriage will be Miss Bacall's first.

AREA GOES OVER TOP IN WASTE PAPER PICKUP

Chicago and suburban communities thruout Cook county yesterday went over the top in their curb waste paper collection drive. John R. Robertson, secretary of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association, predicted that the collection will total 11,000 tons, or approximately 1,000 tons more than the area's goal.

Robertson said collections in Chicago, which was low in the drive last August, would exceed 5,200 tons. The city drive was boosted by extremely heavy collections in the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 7th wards. Much of the remainder of the 11,000 tons was collected in the more than 100 country communities around Chicago.

All business houses, big and small, and industries coöperated wholeheartedly, Robertson said. Among the organizations participating were the office of civilian defense, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, department stores, hotels, and restaurants.

French Woman Is Fined Ten Million as Profiteer

VALENCIENNES, France, April 28 (AP)—The committee for the confiscation of illicit profits has levied a fine of a half billion francs [$10,000,000] on a woman for trading with the enemy and profiteering. The committee charged that Mlle. Fromont made 92,000,000 francs in her wholesale wine and liquor establishment at Fresnes-Surescaut in illicit trading and fined her five times that amount.

MAKES 550 FOOT DEEP SEA DIVE IN AN 8 FOOT TANK

Milwaukee, Wis., April 28 [Special]—A new world record of 550 feet for simulated deep sea diving was set here today by John Browne, president of a diving equipment company. The former record, set in 1938 by navy divers at the Washington navy yard, was 500 feet. The conditions were similar.

The purpose of the experiment was to try to get down to a greater depth for submarine rescue and salvage work, naval officers said. The present working depth is about 440 feet.

Browne made the test in a tank containing eight feet of water in the company's basement and specially constructed to simulate deep sea pressure. He entered the tank at 9:05 a. m. wearing a 50 pound diving suit and a new type of helium-oxygen mask, and within 10 minutes pressure was applied to approximate that to be found at a depth of 550 feet. The pressure was created by pumping air from cylinders into the tank, which was tightly inclosed.

Keeps Phone Contact

The pressure sustained by Browne was 240 pounds a square inch or a total 570,000 pounds. During the experiment he was in constant telephone communication with his assistants.

Process of decompression began immediately after the maximum pression had been reduced to 25 pressure had been reached. Compounds a square inch at 2 p. m., and Browne was taken to the county emergency hospital. There he was placed in a large decompression tank for final pressure abatement and observation and checkup by attending physicians.

He ate lunch in the tank there and emerged shortly after 3:55 p. m. Physicians reported that he sustained no ill effects.

Commenting upon the experiment, Browne said:

"We are convinced we have definitely proven that a man can live at 550 feet and yet do practical work." He said dives of even 100 feet more may be possible.

The test was supervised by Capt. A. R. Behnke of the navy's medical center, Bethesda, Md., and Dr. Edgar End, assistant professor of physiology at Marquette university medical school.

Four other naval officers were present as observers.

The world record for actual diving was in 1937 by Max E. Nohl of Milwaukee, who descended 420 feet into Lake Michigan off Port Washington. Nohl and Browne formerly were partners in diving ventures.

1,975 FREED G. I.'S BACK HOME, GET FOOD, FURLOUGHS

Camp Kilmer, N. J., April 28 (AP)—With food and furloughs at the top of their request list, 1,975 American soldiers freed from German prison camps arrived here by train today after disembarking from two transports at Staten Island. The Yanks said their treatment by the Nazis had been "pretty rough" but they opposed retaliation against German prisoners.

Laughing and wise cracking, they ate broiled steak, snowflake potatoes, ice cream, and cake—food they had not tasted since their capture last December—and they cheered when Maj. Gen. Homer M. Groninger announced each man after reaching a relocation center will be given a 60 day furlough.

All those interviewed said they were captured during the battle of the Ardennes bulge and liberated last Good Friday. They were freed by advancing Russian troops.

Hirohito, 44 Today, Visits Shrine Honoring Dead

San Francisco, Cal., April 28 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito has prepared for his 44th birthday tomorrow by worshiping at a shrine deifying 41,318 war dead, the Domei news agency reported. Domei said last year's custom will again be followed and "no banquet or entertainment will be held."

'BIG SHOTS' AIDED MOST BY PENSIONS

Shift to Judges Plan Is Predicted

BY ORVILLE DWYER

Pension bills on the legislative fire in Springfield would make liberal grants to all clerks and bailiffs of "courts of records in counties of more than 500,000 population," including of course, most of the men who have been in these offices thru constant tenure since the early 30s under the aegis of Mayor Kelly and his Democratic organization. Pending also are bills providing numerous pay increases.

Those to be pensioned include 350 bailiffs and clerks in the Appellate, Circuit, Superior, Criminal, County, and Probate courts of Cook county, and 700 or more in the Municipal courts. Douglas Sutherland, executive director of the Civic federation, asserts, the twin pension bills—one introduced in the state senate by Sen. Schwartz [D., Chicago], the other in the house by Rep. Rategan [D., Chicago]—omit no deputy clerks nor bailiffs.

How "Big Shots" Benefit

The "Big Shots" provided for in the pensions, their business, positions, politics, years of service, and salaries are:

JOSEPH F. GILL [insurance business], Municipal court clerk; D., 13; $10,000.

ALBERT J. HORAN [insurance business], Municipal court bailiff; D., 14; $10,000.

JOHN E. CONROY [real estate business], Circuit court clerk; D., 13; $9,000.

MICHAEL J. FLYNN [president Inland Rubber company], county clerk and ex-officio County court clerk; D., 11; $9,000.

THOMAS J. BOWLER [committeeman 41st ward], Criminal court clerk; D., 11; $9,000.

FRANK LYMAN [contractor], clerk of Probate court; D., 11; $9,000.

SHELDON GOVIER [9th ward committeeman], Appellate court clerk; D., 13; a fee retaining office whose value, estimated conservatively, is $35,000 a year.

Sen. Schwartz and Rep. Rategan are both political adherents of Clerk Gill of Municipal court. The Schwartz-Rategan bills place all the clerks and bailiffs of the local county and city courts under the system which for some years has governed pensions for judges in the state. This provides for retirement, if the pensioner desires, at 60 years of age and after 12 years of service, at a pension of 25 per cent of salary. Most of the Kelly precinct captains holding deputy clerk or bailiff jobs get $2,500 a year.

The judicial retirement system provides that after 18 years' service, at 60, a judge may be retired and get 50 per cent of his salary.

While the thousand or more deputy clerks and bailiffs will not be able to collect from the city and county pension funds into which they have been paying for years and from the judges fund also, they'll find it advantageous, Sutherland asserted, to switch from the old funds to the new judges fund soon to be provided for them by state law.

"They're paying 5 per cent a month into the old pension funds," Sutherland said. "If the law putting them under the judges fund passes—which, it seems now, it undoubtedly will—they can switch from that, take liberal refunds, and pay only 2½ per cent a month into the judges fund. Their time of service will, of course, count the same in either."

Meanwhile, the pay raising bills are being quickly prepared for pasasge. The governor's salary is to be raised from $12,000 to $18,000 a year; the lieutenant governor's from $5,000 to $10,000; those of the secretary of state, state auditor, treasurer, attorney general, and superintendent of public instruction from $9,000 to $12,000. The clerk of the Supreme court is treated as a sort of stepchild; his salary—and he has most work—is raised from $5,000 to only $7,500.

Chicago Senators in Line

Chicago state senators who will become eligible for more than one—either two or three pensions—when they pass the bill to pension themselves, are:

PETER P. KIELMINSKI, assistant superintendent of the Bridewell.

FRANK J. HUCKIN JR., chief deputy clerk of the Superior court.

JOHN M. LEE, chief deputy sheriff.

RICHARD J. DALEY, Democratic senate leader.

Representatives who might become eligible for more than one pension:

VITO MARZULO, ward superintendent of streets.

DANIEL M. FLANIGAN, court clerk.

C. A. DAVIS, city clerk employe.

FRED J. SMITH, Municipal court deputy.

JOHN F. BOYLE, tax examiner and appraiser.

EMMETT McGRATH, forest preserve superintendent.

WILLIAM J. GORMLEY, secretary.

JOHN G. RYAN, Municipal court bailiff.

ARTHUR M. KAINDL, board of local improvements.

JOHN O. HRUBY, electrical engineer.

ANTHONY C. PRUSINSKI, chief deputy coroner.

EDWARD J. McCABE, deputy assessor.

PIERCE L. SHANNON, retired.

JOSEPH L. RATEGAN, real estate broker.

The bill to pension the legislators themselves has passed the senate. In the house it has more sponsors than the necessary votes required to pass it.

Renews Tax Warning; 10,000 Yet to Get Bills

The number of undelivered tax bills in the county treasurer's office is now reduced to 10,000, County Treasurer Schlaeger said yesterday. The bills are those in which efforts at delivery by mail have been unsuccessful, and 5,000 additional bills also returned have been delivered by a staff of tracers, Schlaeger said. He urged real estate and personal property owners who have not received bills to call at his office or telephone so as to receive bills before the May 1 deadline next Tuesday.

ILLINOIS TO BUY 900 ACRES MORE FOR STATE PARK

Green Seeks Joint Action with Wisconsin

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor]

Gov. Green

Plans for a 5,000 acre combination beach park, recreation area, and wild life and botanical preserve along the shore of Lake Michigan, between Waukegan, Ill., and Kenosha, Wis., to be sponsored by Illinois and Wisconsin, were outlined yesterday by Gov. Green. The Illinois section, to comprise 3,870 acres, eventually will have 7 miles of short frontage. In Wisconsin the interstate playground will have 1,130 acres and lake frontage of 4½ miles.

Gov. Green said he had authorized the submission of $200,000 in his post-war budget for the purchase and improvement of two tracts totaling 900 acres for the Illinois Beach State park, as it has been named. They adjoin on the north and south the 500 acre initial land purchase made by the state in 1943.

Offers New Type of Beach

"This will be a recreational area designed to serve all the citizens of Illinois, as well as adjoining states," said Green. "It will offer a type of beach new to the midwest, for in addition to bathing, baseball, tennis, and other sports, it will have a board walk along the shore line."

At present there are only 7.64 miles of public bathing beaches along the 65 miles of Illinois shore line between Wisconsin and Indiana, and of these 1.65 miles are restricted and not available free of charge to all state residents. Illinois residents outside of Chicago and lake shore suburbs generally are forced to go to Wisconsin or Indiana for beach recreation, said Joseph F. Booton, chief of design in the office of State Architect C. Herrick Hammond. About 92 per cent of the attendance at the Indiana Dunes State park is from Illinois.

Patterned After Jones Beach

The new Illinois Beach State park will not be a speedway for automobiles, nor will it be a midwest Coney Island of roller coasters and honky tonks, Booton said.

"There will be no motor highways thru the park, merely entrances to spacious parking units," he said. "Fast traffic between Chicago and Milwaukee will continue to use the regular state highways.

"Patterned after the famous Jones beach in New York, it will have good bathing facilities, plenty of space for playing games, good cafeterias and restaurants, probably a lodge for visitors who want to stay more than one day, and a 50 foot board walk along the beach.

Board Walk to Be Feature

"This board walk will be new to the midwest and the only one on the Great Lakes. Those who haven't visited Atlantic City and Jones beach cannot adequately appreciate its many advantages. It opens the door to a different type of entertainment, where a day at the beach can be enjoyed by the observer and the nonbather as well as by those who spend their time on the sand and in the lake."

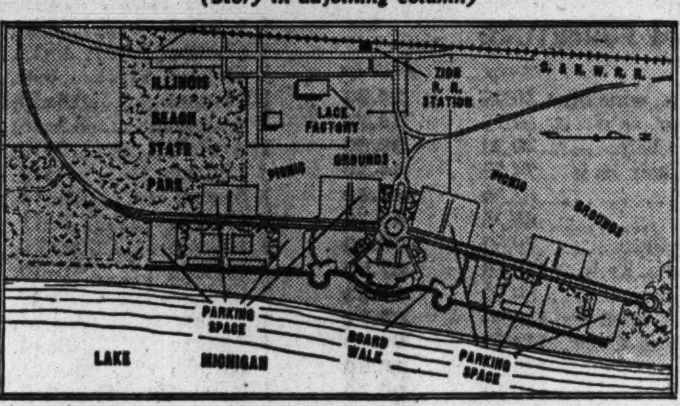
Robert Kingery, general manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association, which long has advocated a big state park along the north shore in coöperation with Wisconsin, said the new Illinois playground will do two things: It will give the state a dignified, high class recreational area and will preserve for all time one of the country's finest inland beaches and a dune area famed for its natural history and beauty.

BUYS DOWNTOWN BUILDING

The four story building at 24-26 S. Wells st. was sold by Louis L. McArthur Jr., representing the Northern Trust company, trustee, to the Oak Park National bank, trustee, for $45,000 thru the Mark Levy Realty company.

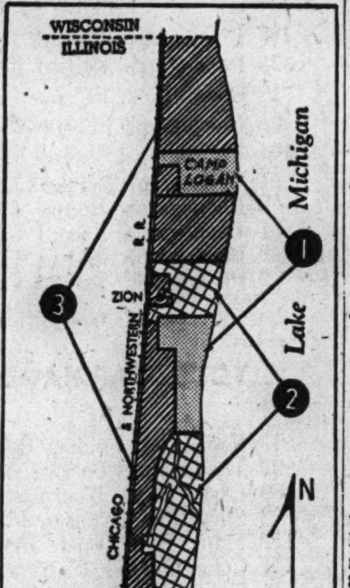
Plan of Amusement Area

(Story in adjoining column)



Layout of proposed amusement area in Illinois Beach State park, most of which will be in the eastern part of Zion. Parking for 12,240 cars will be provided.

Beach State Park



Key to map of Illinois Beach State park:

1. Five hundred acres bought in 1943 by state of Illinois, and Camp Logan, comprising 260 acres owned by the state for many years.

2. Two tracts to be bought. The north tract of 240 acres is in Zion and will be used for the first units of the big beach facilities. The south tract of 660 acres will be a wild life sanctuary and botanical preserve.

3. Land to be acquired later, comprising 860 acres in Winthrop Harbor, 350 acres south of Camp Logan, and 1,000 acres west of land already owned or authorized for purchase.

BUYS EVANSTON TWO BLOCK STRIP FOR NEW HOMES

Purchase of two blocks of frontage on the north side of Oakton st., Evanston, between Dodge and Florence avs. by Glen C. Crawford yesterday disclosed plans for the erection of 20 residences as soon as building conditions permit. The homes will cost $12,000 to $15,000, Crawford said. The property, fronting 1,287 feet on Oakton, was bought from the Security Life Insurance Company of America trust, thru the George S. Lurie company. Paul A. Finley represented the buyer.

BUYS 40 ACRES FOR ARLINGTON HEIGHTS HOMES

C. H. Taylor has purchased a 40 acre tract in Arlington Heights, between Euclid and Oakton sts., which adjoins the Rolling Green Country club on the west, and will subdivide it into 100x300 foot lots. Streets are to be laid out and lined with elm trees, Taylor said. It will be known as Arlington town-gardens and will be ready for sale this summer, he said. This will be Taylor's fourth subdivision in or adjacent to Arlington Heights.

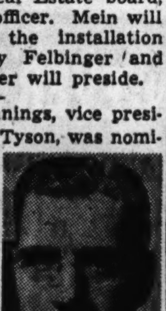
Three Realty Boards Name New Officers

Alfred A. E. Greenlee [Seymour Photo]

Alfred A. E. Greenlee of Greenlee & Co., 3609 Sheffield av., has been nominated for the presidency of the North Side Real Estate board to succeed Joseph F. Pagano. Other nominations are: Roy E. Knauer, vice president; James O. Vandervoort, secretary; Philip Horton, treasurer, and Directors J. N. Langworthy, Louis G. Franke, Charles E. Foster, and retiring President Pagano. Election will be held on May 8. There is no other ticket.

Phil R. Kaleth [Moffett Photo]

Phil R. Kaleth was elected president at the first meeting of the new board of directors of the Northwest Real Estate board. He succeeds Harry A. Smalley. Other new officers are: Alfred J. Mein, vice president; Bernard J. Felbinger, treasurer, and George E. Parker, secretary. Installation of officers will be held May 23 at the Big Oaks Country club. George F. Nixon, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, will be installing officer. Mein will be chairman of the installation party, assisted by Felbinger and Smalley. The latter will preside.



Archibald G. Jennings [Ray Photo]

Archibald G. Jennings, vice president of Quinlan & Tyson, was nominated for president of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board. He is vice president. Other officers named were: J. Allen Pearson, vice president; Helen G. Nixon, secretary, and Charles B. Thompson, treasurer. Two new directors nominated were: Louis C. Burgener, the retiring president, and Hilda Yohn. The annual election and business meeting will be May 7 at the University club of Evanston. Installation will be at the annual banquet in June at the Michigan Shores club in Wilmette.

RADIO FIRM MOVES

Trav-Ler Karenola Radio and Television corporation has moved to 571 W. Jackson blvd., where it occupies the entire four story building, now being remodeled, with its general offices, showrooms, and research laboratory. Manufacturing is done at Orleans, Ind.

Commence 63 War Homes in Franklin Park

Work has been started on 63 homes for war workers in Mills & Sons' Westbrook subdivision in Franklin Park, Laurance H. Mills, president, said yesterday. Completion will be staggered over a two to four months' period. All will be of brick construction with 4, 4½, 5, and 6 rooms and one and two stories in height. All will have basements and some attics large enough for two additional sleeping rooms.

Mills said that a seventh addition to Westbrook is being planned which will have 50 homes primarily for sale to veterans under the G. I. act. These will cost substantially more than the war workers' homes. In addition a number will be built under the H-2 plan [civilian non-war workers' homes] to sell for about $8,000.

Westbrook subdivision comprises 86 acres bounded by Grand av., Scott st., Fullerton av. and Ruby st. It was opened in 1941. Two hundred homes have been completed and occupied. It contains 313 homesites on curving streets. Sidewalks are laid along the curbs, thus giving the home owner a larger lawn. Streets are paved. The development is half a mile north of the Melrose Park Buick engine plant.

Realty Miscellany

The real estate firm of Baird & Warner announced that Charles B. Thompson, in charge of production of residential mortgages on the North Shore for 17 years, was made assistant manager of the mortgage department, with full charge of all residential mortgages. Daniel B. McKimmie, with the company for the same length of time, succeeded Thompson as North Shore residential mortgage representative with headquarters in Evanston.

Grant Plowright, with the company 12 years, will handle residential mortgages for west side suburbs, including Glen Ellyn and Wheaton, with headquarters in Oak Park.

Edward F. Butterworth, who was with Hooker & Slosson for more than 14 years, has returned to Chicago after an absence of two years. He again is associated with Frank S. Slosson, in the Marquette building.

Bruce R. Guild has withdrawn from the building firm of Buick & Guild and opened an office at 3044 N. Cicero av, where he will operate a construction concern and real estate investment house under his own name.

Herbert Becker announced yesterday that Joseph Andrews, a specialist in federal tax matters, has become associated with him in his law practice.

Arthur P. Hubbell, realty broker, has moved from 1706 E. 71st st. to larger quarters at 2416 E. 75th st.

GAMBLER GETS 14 YEAR TERM IN BAR SLAYING

Peter Boulahanis

Peter Boulahanis, 28, a Greek gambler, was convicted by a jury in Criminal court yesterday of the murder of McKinley [Mike] Dooman, 37, on New Year's day and his penalty fixed at 14 years imprisonment—the minimum for murder.

Judge Frank M. Padden set a hearing for May 14 on a motion by Defense Atty. Roland Libonati for a new trial.

The jurors returned their verdict after two hours, 26 minutes of deliberating. Mrs. Dorothy Boulahanis, the defendant's wife, talked with him for a few minutes after the verdict had been returned. She collapsed, with their crippled son George, 2, in her arms when she walked out into the corridor. She was revived by court attendants.

State Asked Death Penalty

Assistant State's Attys. James A. Brown and John Reed asked the death penalty for Boulahanis. The state charged that Boulahanis shot and killed Dooman in a tavern at 938 Belmont av. in a quarrel over Dooman's losses in a barboot dice game, which took place in a gambling place at 609 N. Clark st., owned by Boulahanis' brother, Tom.

The trial was marked by conflicts in the testimony of two witnesses. June Chapman, 20, a blonde dice girl, testified Thursday that she could not identify Boulahanis, tho she previously had pointed him out as the killer in a police showup. When the state's attorney began an investigation, she admitted that she was to be bribed for refusing to identify him. She later identified Boulahanis in court as the gunman.

Wife Offered Alibi

Testifying as a court's witness, Mrs. Irene Benton, 18, said yesterday that she had not seen Boulahanis on the morning of the slaying, as she previously had told police. Asked why she changed her story, Mrs. Benton said, "I was nervous when I made that statement."

Mrs. Boulahanis sought to establish an alibi defense for her husband with testimony that he was home asleep when the shooting took place.

W. D. Saltiel, Attorney General's Aid, Resigns

William D. Saltiel has resigned as special assistant to the United States attorney general, effective May 1, he announced yesterday. He will enter general law practice, with special attention to matters involving governmental agencies, at 1 N. La Salle st. in association with David H. Brill, Aaron Scheinfeld, and Irvin Richman, who now is on military leave. They also will have offices in Milwaukee, Wis., and Washington, D. C.

THE MAN I WANT TO WORK FOR

is President, Treasurer or General Manager of a company, probably manufacturing, employing between 1,000 and 5,000 persons, located in a medium sized city within 200 miles of Chicago. He is not certain that his office functions are operating at reasonably high efficiency, and he is overloaded with reports and data which he does not have time to analyze and interpret. To remedy this, he would like an experienced assistant who would handle "staff" functions and special assignments such as analysis, interpretation, and summarization of reports, statistical and operating comparisons, system improvement, budget installation and enforcement, cost analysis and control, procedures standardization and office management. He would be willing to pay $8,000 a year to obtain a college graduate, 37 years of age, whose experience includes supervision of several hundred people, and who for the last three years has been office manager and assistant to the general manager of one of the largest aircraft plants, doing just those things for sixty or more hours per week. Available immediately.

SPEEDY HEARING LIKELY IN WARD SEIZURE APPEAL

Firm Files Reply; May 14 Argument Proposed

Early argument of the Montgomery Ward & Co. seizure case before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals appeared likely yesterday. The company filed its brief in reply to the government's appeal from District Judge Philip L. Sullivan's ruling of Jan. 27, holding the Presidential order had neither statutory nor constitutional authority. At the same time, United States Atty. J. Albert Wool, who has 10 days to answer the company, filed a petition asking prompt hearing and suggesting May 14.

Woll believed that was the earliest possible date. Solicitor General Charles Fahy, who has acted with Woll, is attending the San Francisco conference and his assistant in the case, Hugh B. Cox, is ill.

Point to Case in 1851

The company's brief, of 30,000 words, introduced the "leading" case of Mitchell v Harmony, decided by the United States Supreme court in 1851 and "cited with approval in numerous cases," as setting the limits within which military authority may seize civilian property.

"Harmony was a trader who during the Mexican war followed the army in its invasion of enemy territory," the brief related. "At San Eleasario, in the province of Chihuahua, Harmony decided to go on farther, and his wagons, mules, and goods were seized by order of Col. Mitchell, and later lost to the Mexicans.

"When Harmony sued Mitchell for damages, Mitchell advanced these defenses: First, the seizure was made to supplement his own equipment for the 200 mile march to the capital of Chihuahua; and second, that it was made to prevent the property from falling into enemy hands. The Supreme court upheld a verdict against Mitchell."

Taney's Decision Quoted

Chief Justice Taney was quoted as saying that there are occasions when military seizure is warranted, "but we are clearly of the opinion that the danger must be immediate and impending; or the urgent need for the public service such as will not admit of delay, and where the action of the civil authority would be too late in providing the means which the occasion calls for."

The brief added: "The Supreme court showed that it feared to recognize any right as a result of which 'every citizen's property . . . would be liable to be seized or destroyed'."

Ward attorneys assailed the government statement, made in its appeal, that the case of the king's prerogatives in saltpeter, which the justices of the king's bench established in 1606 "for the defense of the kingdom," is "the root of American thought in the law of executive taking."

The brief quoted the court as holding in 1850: "There is such a wide difference between the power conferred on the President of the United States and the authority and sovereignty which belong to the English crown, that it would be altogether unsafe to reason from any supposed resemblance between them, either as regards conquest in war, or any other subject where the rights and powers of the executive arm of the government are brought into question."

Japanese Bomb Kills 12 on American Cargo Ship

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—A Japanese bombing attack took the lives of 12 men abroad the American merchant ship William Sharon, the war shipping administration reported today. It killed the master of the ship, Capt. Edward Macaughey of San Mateo, Cal., five members of the crew, five navy armed guards, and an army security officer. Ten men were wounded. The vessel remained afloat.

New Mouth to Feed

Baby robin which was hatched yesterday morning from one of four eggs in nest on window sill of Mrs. Thyra B. Moe.

[TRIBUNE Photos]

Mama and Papa Robin bring home worms to feed the infant.

Two angry sparrows, recently dispossessed from the nest they built on a window ledge of the second floor living room of Mrs. Thyra B. Moe, 1646 N. Kildare av., yesterday were defeated in the private war they waged against the pair of robins which evicted them.

Unhappy in the home they made on the lower ledge of the window from the overflow sticks and strings the interlopers considered unessential to their nest, Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow sought to undermine the abode of the intruders and at the same time make their own home more comfortable. They took turns in pulling twigs and other materials from the robins' nest down into their own quarters.

Mrs. Moe watched the proceedings and daily became more worried that the robins' nest, and with it the four blue eggs it contained, would weaken and drop to the sidewalk below.

The wind and rain continued to make the nest of the sparrows less comfortable, but the home of the robins remained secure. Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow, who hitherto had conducted their underground war in a polite fashion, twitted angrily at the intruders.

Events which took place yesterday seemed to be a little more than the sparrows could take. Their nest was even more shakily held together than ever before, and the sparrows hopped up to the nest of the robins to see how their neighbors fared.

They looked into the nest just in time to see the cavernous mouth of a newly hatched robin swallow part of a worm. Then the baby robin joined his parents in haranguing the sparrows, who apparently realized they were outnumbered for they flew away without waiting for the other three eggs to hatch.

HOOSIER GIVES $500 PRESENTS TO STRANGERS

Antigo, Wis., April 28 [Special]—Tom Harrold, produce buyer from Indianapolis, Ind., who admitted he gave away $500 yesterday "just for the fun of it," was disclosed today by Antigo bankers to have bestowed financial gifts totaling at least $3,500 to various residents of the community.

Anton Maznak, a cashier, said his bank had cashed seven checks of $500 each made out to Harrold and indorsed by him over to other persons. They were cashier's checks drawn on the Fountain City State bank of Indianapolis, Maznak said, and had been confirmed and guaranteed by the Indianapolis bank.

Dishwasher Gets Check.

B. H. Diercks, president of another bank, said Harrold brought in $10,000 worth of cashier's checks last February and that his bank had cashed them after receiving confirmation from Indianapolis.

Among the recipients of Harrold's checks in Antigo have been a hotel waitress named Mrs. Margaret James and a hotel dishwasher named Helen.

When Helen appeared in the manager's office to get her weekly pay check, Harrold was there talking to the manager. He told her: "You look like a woman with troubles. You are married and have a family, haven't you?"

The dishwasher admitted she was married but that she enjoyed her work at the hotel. "You don't have much happiness, tho," Harrold insisted and produced one of his checks. He indorsed it and gave it to her.

Passes Out Bills.

One report told of Harrold handing a check to an unidentified traveling man whom he observed complaining about the price of a room. Chief of Police Peter Krosnicki said Harrold also had been passing out five and 10 dollar bills.

Harrold insisted when interviewed that he is going to "make a new world" by his acts of kindness. He said a short time ago 600 tons of spoiled carrots that he had in storage in St. Louis, Mo., with the North American Cold Storage company were 'miraculously restored" after he had given some money to a friend.

In Indianapolis, Mrs. Harrold said her husband had gone to Antigo to buy some potatoes. She said he had been a real estate dealer until five years ago.

NAVY RECALLS LINDBERGH FOR TECHNICAL AID

Washington, D. C., April 28 [Special]—The United States navy has again drafted Charles A. Lindbergh for aid in solving technical problems in a new type of aircraft now in use in the European theater, it was learned today.

Lindbergh was called from his duties with the Ford Motor company where he had returned after several months in the Pacific teaching navy pilots new tricks in high altitude flying.

'L' Train Kills Tower Man as He Walks on Tracks

Shortly after he had left work Friday night and was walking between the tracks, Emil P. Tischer, 56, of 7128 S. Winchester av., a tower man for the Chicago Rapid Transit company, was killed by an elevated train at 63d st. and Eggleston av.

ILLINOIS WINS THREE RACES IN DRAKE RELAYS

14-FOOT VAULT BY SAILOR TOP PERFORMANCE

Bangert Takes Shot and Discus

BY WILFRID SMITH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Des Moines, Ia., April 28—Billy Moore, navy student at Western Michigan after nine months' service in the South Pacific, came back today to the campus of Drake university where he was a freshman in 1943, to show the folks he still knows how to pole vault. The lithe youngster, who vaulted 14 feet two years ago and who won the National A. A. U. indoor title last winter, matched this peak performance for the best individual showing of the 36th Drake relays this afternoon.

Billy Moore

Moore's vault was only one-sixteenth of an inch under the all-time Drake record established by Beefus Bryan of the University of Texas in 1940. It is the only 14 foot vault of the collegiate year.

While Moore can claim the best performance measured by the record books, he shared honors before 7,500 fans with Bill Bangert of Missouri, the only athlete to win two championships, and with Harold [Whitey] Fisher of Miami university, Oxford, O., who retained his high hurdle title and ran on both of Miami's winning relay teams.

Illinois Wins Three Races

Miami's victories in the half mile and sprint medley relays topped all colleges. University of Illinois, despite Bill Buster's injury—he pulled a thigh muscle as he finished the anchor lap to help win the university half mile relay—won three relays for honors in the university division. Iowa State, with two relay triumphs, was second in this group.

Buster's injury forced the Illini to withdraw in the university 440 yard relay. Moreover, Bob Kelley, the outstanding quarter miler in the midwest, made only one appearance. But Kelley covered the anchor half mile on the Illini sprint medley team for an easy triumph.

Illinois got its third relay victory in the concluding event, the one mile which was designated as a memorial to the late Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference, who founded the games here in 1910. Maj. Griffith left the University of Illinois faculty in 1922 to head Big Ten athletics so it was fitting, indeed, that the Illini should be first to win this race.

Illinois Runs Fast Mile

Illinois' time for the mile relay was 3:23.3, an excellent mark without Kelley and comparable to its winning performance in the conference indoor games last month. Marc Gonzales, running the anchor quarter, was a stride behind Dave Murphy of Notre Dame on the back stretch but after the last turn, the veteran Illinois athlete had the required drive to win by eight yards.

Fisher perhaps was the busiest of the young men who made the Drake carnival the most interesting in four war time years. He won the high hurdles after a gruelling duel with George Walker of Illinois and his time of 15 1-10 seconds against the wind was only one-tenth of a second slower than in his victory here last year.

Walker made the early pace and had a stride advantage as he came to the seventh hurdle. Here, however, the Negro misjudged the height and struck the barrier. He broke stride but made a remarkable recovery and took second place two yards behind Fisher. Bob Cranston of Minnesota was third and Norval Barker of Nebraska was awarded fourth place.

Bangert Wins Shot, Discus

Fisher ran the anchor leg for Miami's victory in the college half mile and his closing drive defeated Western Michigan. Fisher concluded his day by running the third leg on Miami's victorious sprint medley team.

Bangert retained his shot put title with a toss of 51 feet 5⅝ inches. In the morning the Missourian had overpowered the field in the discus throw with a mark of 151.09 feet. The evidence of Bangert's superiority is the second place throw of 125.72 feet by Bob Derleth of Iowa Pre-Flight.

Bangert, incidentally, may claim the relays title of the nation for his mark today was better than the 51 feet 4 inch put of Ed Quirk at Pennsylvania yesterday. Quirk, a teammate of Bangert, thus gave Missouri its sweep in the event. Bangert, a student in Missouri's music school, assisted in the opening ceremonies as he sang the "Star Spangled Banner" accompanied by the Drake university band.

Lidman Wins; Hagg Loses in Penn Relays

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28 (AP)—Haakon Lidman of Sweden had a narrow escape from defeat in a special 120 yard high hurdles race at the Penn relays today, beating Morris Wilson of Delaware State by only a foot after stumbling over a hurdle and losing his stride. He was timed in 15.3 seconds on a grass track.

Lidman's traveling companion, Gunder Hagg, finished a weak fourth in the handicap mile.

Hits Last Hurdle.

Appearing in an added event on the second day's program, Lidman seemed headed for an easy victory when his foot hit the next to last hurdle. He recovered just in time to defeat Wilson. Two West Point cadets, Andy Lamar and Fred Hartwig, finished third and fourth. Wilson and Lamar also trailed in yesterday's special race, when Lidman won in 14.4 seconds on the cinder track.

A stirring last lap sprint by Bob Hume enabled Michigan to retain its college four mile relay championship, beating New York university by eight yards after the Violets had set the pace all the way. Bob Hume ran the final mile in 4:16.7 to whip Rudy Simms of N. Y. U., who had drawn away to a 20 yard lead at one stage. Cornell was an outdistanced third and Army fourth.

Eddleman Wins High Jump

Corp. Dwight [Dyke] Eddleman of Wright field, Dayton, O., and Centralia, Ill., won the high jump at 6 feet, 3 inches.

Army easily retained its 480 yard shuttle hurdle relay title in the good time of 1:03.6. Pennsylvania was the only other starter. Summary:

WILDCATS BEAT INDIANA BADGERS IN GOLF MATCH

Northwestern university's golf team retained its undefeated status by winning a triangular match with Wisconsin and Indiana on the Wildcats new course in Wilmette yesterday. The Purple defeated Wisconsin, 29½ to 3½, and overpowered Indiana, 14½ to ½. In the other match of the three cornered affair, Wisconsin defeated Indiana, 9½ to 5½.

The Wildcats rolled up a 11 to 1 advantage over the Badgers in the morning double round. Indiana, with only five men entered, confined its competition to the afternoon singles.

Bob Abrahams, Northwestern freshman, shot a 38—35—73 to capture medalist honors. Runner-up honors went to Jack Atten, another Wildcat freshman, who posted a 76. Jack Basset of Tam O'Shanter and Bill Owen of La Grange, making their first appearance in Northwestern's lineup this year, had 79s.

Illinois Golf Team Defeats Purdue, 17 to 13

Champaign, Ill., April 28 [Special]—Illinois golfers defeated Purdue, 17 to 13, in a series of four 36 hole matches today. Summaries:

Socks Howell, Purdue, beat Wayne Ring, 3½ to 2½.
Gene Emery, Illinois, beat Bob Plank, 5½ to ½.
Steve Jaronek, Illinois, beat Bob Anderson, 6 to 0.
Bob Schroeder, Illinois, and Bob Nadolny tied, 3 to 3.

AND NOW THEY'RE THE LEAGUE LEADING CUBS

ED DETTWILLER, ATCHESON TAKE HANDBALL TITLE

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Sam Atcheson, who has been playing tournament handball for 19 of his 43 years, and Ed Dettwiller, participating in his first national championship event, yesterday moved the 1945 National A. A. U. Senior four wall doubles crown from Chicago to Memphis, Tenn.

The southerners defeated Bob Kendler and Ray Laser of Chicago, Illinois state Y. M. C. A. champions, 21-11 and 21-10, before some 200 spectators in the Town club to bring the eight day singles and doubles tournament to a conclusion.

Jim Dyer and Burt Hackney of Los Angeles won third place honors, defeating Bill McGreevy and Leo Peressin of St. Louis, Mo., 21-18, 21-5.

Beat Platak-Quinn

Atcheson and Dettwiller, who previously to this tournament had played together only five times, succeed to the title won last year by Joe Platak and Lt. Robert Quinn on their home courts at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Platak, who regained the singles title he lost to Frank Coyle of New York, and his partner Quinn, were eliminated in the quarter-finals by James Dyer and Bart Hackney of Los Angeles, Cal.

Kendler and Laser, who reached the finals with an upset victory over the Californians in the semi-finals, gave the new champions a busy afternoon and at one point in the first game appeared to have the Tennesseeans on the run. With the score 9 to 1 against them they pulled to within two points at 13-11, before the craftiness of the veteran Atcheson and the steady play of Dettwiller wore them down to where they were giving points away on errors.

Break Under Strain

The second game was more closely waged until about midway when the Chicagoans again seemed to break under the strain and the uncanny play of Atcheson. Sam at times played them both as his partner looked on.

The tournament, held for the first time in the Town club, of which Kendler is vice president and athletic director, drew most of the nation's better players and attracted large crowds at both afternoon and night sessions.

Sixty-four contestants were entered for the singles which started April 21 and a full complement of 32 teams got the doubles under way last Wednesday. Among the nationally famous singles entrants were Platak who, before losing to Coyle last year, had won eight straight championships; Bill Ranft of Los Angeles, winner of the first national tournament, held in 1919; Atcheson, two times national singles champion; Angelo Trulio of New York, a former champion; and Jack Srenco of St. Louis, Mo., national Y. M. C. A. and national junior champion.

Illinois Tech Golfers Defeat Bradley, 6½-5½

Illinois Tech's golf team defeated Bradley Tech, 6½ to 5½, yesterday at Westgate Valley Golf club. Bob Armstrong of Bradley was the medalist with a 73. Fred Fitchey and Wagner Larsen tied with 79s to lead the Illinois Tech scorers.

Turfmen and State to Fight Ban in Detroit

Detroit, Mich., April 28 (AP)—Attorneys for the state of Michigan and the Detroit Racing association today planned an immediate appeal to the state supreme court from a ruling by Circuit Judge Guy A. Miller of Detroit which would ban horse racing at the Detroit fair grounds.

Judge Miller, issuing a permanent injunction against the track, held that a 1933 state law creating the state racing commission is unconstitutional and declared that pari-mutuel betting, as in effect at the Detroit track, was a violation of criminal statutes against lotteries.

File Appeal This Week

Attorneys for the racing association, which operates the Fair Grounds track said an appeal would be filed early next week. The injunction automatically would be stayed pending the state supreme court's review of the case. Thus racing could be resumed here, pending outcome of the appeal, as soon as the government lifts its existing ban.

The injunction was granted today to Edward J. Rohan, his wife Josephine, and owners of property adjacent to the track. It restrains the state racing commission and the Detroit racing association from operating the Fair Grounds track or any other track.

Calls Betting a Lottery

The court held that the system of wagering at the track is a lottery and the system used to fix odds is a misrepresentation to the public inasmuch as it is not automatic.

In 1944 the state of Michigan and the city of Detroit derived a total of $2,220,772.66 from the track's 105 days of racing, when $51,012,962 went thru the pari-mutuel machines.

KEN CHANDLER WINS WISCONSIN ATHLETIC AWARD

Madison, Wis., April 28 [Special]—Ken Chandler, Brooklyn, Wis., navy engineering student, has been selected as the recipient of the conference medal award at the University of Wisconsin for the 1944-'45 school year, it was announced today by Harry Stuhldreher, Badger director of athletics.

The conference medal is the highest award that can go to a senior student athlete each year on the state university campus, and is awarded annually by the Wisconsin Athletic board on the basis of outstanding leadership and achievement in scholarship, athletics, and other student activities.

Chandler has been an outstanding member of Coach Tom Jones' cross country and track teams this year. He has a high scholastic record and has engaged in numerous student activities in addition to athletics. He was a member of the senior ball committee and the Badger navy news and Badger yearbook editorial staffs.

SOX AND BROWNS PLAY 2 TODAY —IF WEATHER MAN IS AGREEABLE

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

St. Louis, Mo., April 28—Getting away from their own park where the weatherman had been giving them a kicking around didn't bring any relief for the White Sox but, if nothing else, they will possess first place with their five victories and no defeats.

They came here for the purpose of trying to make it six in a row today at the expense of the Browns who have made three contributions to the streak but nothing happened except more thumb twirling. It rained and while the locals desired to play, as indicated by their delay in calling off the show, it couldn't be done so the inaugural of the series will not take place until tomorrow in the shape of a double header. That is, if it doesn't rain some more.

5 Victories, 6 Postponements

Along with their undefeated record in five games the Sox also have a less enviable record of six postponements, the latter meaning they will have to take care of a batch of unfinished business later in the season. Whether this is good or bad for the James Dykes' cause is questionable but at least the little man, who among other things wears hard soled moccasins but no hat, is fairly well fixed for pitchers, a doubly important item when the two a day schedule puts on the pressure.

Dykes admits he's a pretty far seeing guy but he's not confident enough in himself to make any positive predictions as to when his athletes really will play ball again. However, he hasn't back tracked on his declaration of six days ago that Thornton Lee will be his next pitcher if it takes all summer. The other game tomorrow will be entrusted to Ed Lopat, also a lefty, the manager preferring to stick to his original plan instead of being scared off by the time worn belief that it is bad business to give the enemy the same kind of pitching in two games.

Cuccinello May Play

It is possible that Tony Cuccinello will be able to get himself back into the limelight tomorrow and that won't hurt. The aged gentleman came up with a charley horse in the first game last Sunday but the stretch of idleness has about fixed him up. At least he thinks so. He ran for the first time while the squad was working out in Comiskey park yesterday and there were no noticeable ill effects. This will restore the lineup that started the season altho there'll be some changes as soon as the winning streak is snapped.

Player Beaned as N. U. Loses, 3 to 0 and 5 to 2

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 28 [Special]—Western Michigan college took a double header from Northwestern university today, winning the first game, 3 to 0, and the second, called in the eighth, 5 to 2.

Third Baseman Burt Hedstrom of the Wildcats was hit in the head by a pitched ball in the seventh inning of the second game. He suffered a dislocated jaw and possible skull fracture. He was placed under observation and X-rays were to be taken.

In the opening game John Remke of the Wildcats limited the Broncos to three hits and fanned 11. Lefty Maxwell, his opponent, gave up eight scattered hits and struck out 12.

A hit batsman, fielder's choice and Glen Selbos' single gave the Broncos their only earned run in the first inning. Scores:

Northwestern ....000 000 000—0 8 2
Western Michigan....100 110 000—3 3 0
Batteries—Remke and Gargas; Maxwell and Marks.

SECOND GAME

Northwestern ....000 001 01—2 4 3
Western Michigan....001 110 2*—5 5 2
Batteries—Bokleman and Gargas; Urquhart and Marks.

IOWA, 6; MINNESOTA, 4

Minneapolis, Minn., April 28 (AP)—Iowa upset Minnesota, 6 to 4, in a Big Nine conference baseball game today after the Gophers had won the opener of the two game series yesterday, 4 to 1.

Minnesota knocked Hokanson out of the box with a three run burst in the second inning and the Gophers were leading, 4 to 1, when pitcher Gene Kelly pulled a muscle in the eighth and was forced to retire. His successor, Bob Schumach, a freshman, walked three and was charged with two wild pitches to give the Hawkeyes four runs.

Smith, who succeeded Hokanson for Iowa, held the Gophers to four hits in the last seven innings. Score:

Iowa ....010 000 041—6 7 0
Minnesota ....130 000 000—4 8 3
Batteries—Hokanson, Smith and Spencer; Kelly, Schumach and Holmberg.

MICHIGAN BEATS IRISH

Notre Dame, Ind., April 28 [Special]—Scoring seven runs in the seventh inning to break a 4-all tie, Michigan won its second game in a row from Notre Dame and eighth straight of the season.

Wildness on the part of four Irish hurlers, who walked 13, contributed to the Wolverines' victory. Bo Bowman, Michigan left hander, limited the Irish to six hits, two of which were by Captain Frank Gilhooley. Tom Rosema, Michigan first baseman, led in the hitting with three singles. Score:

Michigan ....200 002 701—12 11 0
Notre Dame ....020 200 000— 4 6 2
Batteries—Bowman and Stevenson; Lebrou, Gehring, Alberts, Ramsey and Track, Kuluch.

BADGERS WIN, 5 TO 0.

Madison, Wis., April 28 [Special]—The University of Wisconsin baseball team scored its third straight triumph over Truax field today when the Badgers shut out the Raiders for the second day in a row,

BY EDWARD BURNS

Hank Wyse, cherubic Cub right hander, yesterday held the Pittsburg Pirates to one hit—a single by Catcher Bill Salkeld with one out in the eighth inning—as the Cubs ran their winning streak to six straight with a 6 to 0 victory. It was the Cubs' third shutout since Wyse was charged with the Cubs' last loss, in Pittsburgh on April 20, and the sixth game in which the starting pitcher has finished.

The Cubs now have won seven of nine games, all against the three teams which finished ahead of them last season—one over the Cardinals, one over the Reds, and five over the Pirates, last year's second place sensations who beat the Cardinals nine straight for their final high league rating.

The Cub victory, coupled with the New York Giants' defeat in Brooklyn, gave the north siders the National league lead.

It's Been Nearly 30 Years

Had Wyse been able to retire Salkeld, up from San Diego, as understudy to Al Lopez, he would have been the first Cub pitcher to achieve a nohitter since Jimmy Lavender did it against the Giants on Aug. 31, 1915. Jim Vaughan was the last Cub to pitch nine hitless innings in one game, he having done so in the famed 1917 "double-nohitter" which he lost to Fred Toney in the 10th inning. This one is listed as a nohitter, but not always acknowledged as such, because Vaughan didn't finish up his day's work without yielding a base hit—the Reds made three safe ones in the 10th.

There was nothing scratchy about Salkeld's single, if that's any comfort to Cub partisans. It was a line drive to right center, on which no fielder had even a desperate chance for a catch.

He Mows 'Em Down

The minimum of 15 batsmen faced Hank in the first five innings. In this span Johnny Barrett, second up in the fourth, was safe on a high throw by Roy Hughes. A double play started by Don Johnson on a grounder by Jim Russell ended the inning.

In the sixth, Salkeld walked with one down, after which Al Gerheauser and Pete Coscarart struck out. Barrett again was safe on a high throw by Hughes at the start of the seventh. Russell walked but Bob Elliott forced Russell on a nice play by Hughes, Barrett reaching third. Tom O'Brien bounced to Stan Hack and Barrett was run down between third and home. Then Babe Dahlgren popped to Hughes and Wyse still had a no-hitter in prospect.

Frankie Gustine was thrown out by Hack at the start of the eighth. Then Salkeld made his single. Pinch batter Frank Colman forced Salkeld, whereupon Coscarart walked. Barrett fouled to Mickey Livingston. The Pirates went out in order in the ninth.

Waste Hits in First

The Cub offense was freakish in that they scored only one run off Max Butcher in the first inning tho four of the first five batsmen knocked singles. In the second inning three hits failed to produce a Chicago run.

The fifth was different. After Hack and Hughes had been retired, Cavarretta drew Butcher's first pass. Phil Cavarretta stole second and took third on Bill Nicholson's infield scratch. Eddie Sauer lined a double to center, Cavarretta scoring and Nicholson stopping at third. Peanuts Lowrey singled to right center, scoring Nicholson and Sauer. Johnson singled to right, Lowrey stopping at second. Livingston doubled off the right field wall, scoring Lowrey and Johnson. Here Gerheauser replaced Butcher and Wyse flied out.

The Cubs loaded the bases with none out in the sixth but couldn't count. Fritz Ostermueller pitched the eighth and the Cubs again failed to score despite a single by Cavarretta and a two-base error by Salkeld on Nicholson's high fly in front of the plate.

The Cubs made 14 hits in all, everybody in the lineup getting at least one. Cavarretta batted 1.000 with three singles and two walks.

G. I.s ASSURED PEAK SUPPLY OF FISH AND GAME

BY BOB BECKER

The millions of G. I.s who like to fish and hunt needn't worry about ample supplies of game and fish being available in most parts of the United States when it comes time for them to take off Uncle Sam's uniform and put on outdoor clothes. On the basis of reports from many parts of the United States the boys should be able to step into some of the slickest fishing and hunting they ever have seen when they come back to the good old U. S. A.

Here are some of the highlights of our fish and game picture:

We're going into this spring with the biggest duck and goose population that we've had in many a year. If they have a good nesting season, the fall flight will be nothing less than a dazzler.

Pheasants Are Plentiful

Walter Gresh, in charge of Pittman-Robertson projects for the middle and northwest states, said this week that the pheasant populations in the northwest came thru the winter in fine style. All the potholes out there are full of water this spring, so the ducks ought to be happy. Last fall South Dakota had a pheasant population of approximately 16,700,000, according to one survey made of the state.

As for fishing, many a G. I. and civilian, too, is going to get something of a shock when he hears how certain big man-made lakes and also some natural fishing lakes are so heavily stocked with fish that authorities are asking fishermen to please fish 'em hard the year 'round to reduce the population of crappies, bluegills, bass, and desirable species.

Shells Are a Problem

The only worry about hunting next fall is an adequate supply of shotgun shells. We hope there will be enough on hand so the boys in uniform who may be around and able to get outdoors can have some fun with the pheasants, rabbits, ducks, and other game.

Hood, Chaney Meet in Bout at Marigold

Hubert Hood, 1942 Chicagoland Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, will be given another chance to demonstrate his improved skill when he meets Colion Chaney of Indianapolis in an eight round bout in Marigold Gardens tomorrow night.

Hood, 22 year old army dischargee, will be making his third appearance under the management of Lou Radzienda, Catholic Youth organization boxing director. He was impressive in beating William Barrow, cousin of Joe Louis, and Bob Garner, Louisville.

Supporting matches tomorrow: Jimmy Martin, south side, vs. Tony Reno, west side [6], 150; Robert Weatherly vs. Herman Mills [3], 135; Sparky Reynolds, Indianapolis, vs. Robert Ellis [4], 147; Frank Green vs. Columbus Mitchell [4], heavyweights.

LANE SPARS TODAY

Larry Lane, 26 year old Trenton, N. J., heavyweight, who arrived on Thursday, is to do his first Chicago boxing in the C. Y. O. center gymnasium this afternoon in preparation for his 10 round bout with Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa. They are to meet in the Coliseum Wednesday night.

Lane, a hard puncher, as his record of 36 knockouts in 74 bouts attests, was to open sparring drills yesterday, but this was canceled by Babe Cullen, co-manager with Willie Gilzenberg of the eastern fighter, who explained, "Larry did all the boxing he needs before coming to Chicago."

Meanwhile, Baksi went four fast rounds yesterday, two each with Tony Musto, Blue Island, and Bill Petersen, Indiana Harbor. He will follow the same procedure in the C. Y. O. gym today and will start tapering off tomorrow.

Maroons Get 3 Hits, Lose to Techawk Nine, 11 to 3

Illinois Tech's baseball team beat the University of Chicago yesterday, 11 to 3, at Greenwood field. Kravolic and Evers combined to hold the Maroons to three hits. Tech made eight hits and was aided by seven errors by the losers. Chicago will meet Concordia Tuesday, and play in Wheaton Saturday.

P. G. A. ACQUIRES OWNERSHIP OF PRIVATE COURSE

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The Professional Golfers' Association of America, whose members have been employed by and played on myriad courses thruout the country since the organization's inception in January, 1916, now boasts a permanent year around course of its own. Located at Dunedin Isles, Fla., it will be known as the P. G. A. National Golf club, according to an announcement yesterday by Ed Dudley, national P. G. A. president.

The site has been acquired under a 99-year lease entered into by Dudley and Secretary Frank Sprogell, in behalf of the P. G. A., and the city of Dunedin. The lease will become effective next July 1. Dudley said the property not only will provide a home and resting place for retired P. G. A. members, but also will be the scene of national and international tournaments. Last January the Dunedin Isles course provided the stage for the National P. G. A. Seniors' tournament, won by Eddie Williams of Chicago's Bryn Mawr club.

Construct Housing Facilities

"It will be the only project of its kind in the world," Dudley said, "pledged to do a tremendous job for the returning service man, for the professional golfer and for golf. Our primary concern will be to provide recreation and rehabilitation facilities for approximately 450 P. G. A. members who are now in the services. Ten P. G. A. members have given their lives in this war. Our present plans for service members call for construction of housing facilities on a site adjacent to the course, which has been deeded to the P. G. A. by the city of Dunedin.

The course is rated one of the best ever designed by the veteran architect, Donald Ross. As played now, it measures 6,320 yards, but the tees are so placed that each hole can be lengthened from 25 to 50 yards, producing a real championship layout with an approximate yardage of 7,000.

Open for Service July 1

The new club will be opened for service to all members of the P. G. A. and their friends, beginning July 1, and memberships are now being made available to amateur golfers by invitation from members of the P. G. A. They will be sold for the nominal price of $2 each.

New Trier and Proviso Win in Suburban

New Trier High school's baseball team yesterday won a double header from previously undefeated Oak Park, beating the Villagers, 3 to 2 and 5 to 4, in Winnetka. The second game went 10 innings.

In the first game Jack Lockyer scored on Park Taylor's bunt for the winning run, and the Terriers scored their winning run in the second contest when Hughie Brower crossed with one out after Bud Gray singled.

Proviso took both games from Evanston in Evanston in the second Suburban league meeting, winning the first contest, 3 to 1, and the second, 2 to 1, in eight innings. The extra inning contest was broken up when Herb Scott, Evanston hurler, issued a walk to Paul Box with the bases loaded. Line scores:

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS

ORGANIZATION of four industrial softball leagues which will operate this summer in Weber park, Ashland and Wellington avs., is almost complete and they will start serious competion the week of May 21. These leagues will be under the supervision of the Lincoln-Belmont, Division St., and North Av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A.s. All are revivals of similar groups which operated effectively last season.

Each of the three Y. M. C. A.s will operate a men's league and there will be a women's circuit, under joint supervision of the Lincoln-Belmont and North av. associations. All will function at night.

The girls league will hold forth each Monday night and seven companies already have indicated their plans to play. These are Crowe Name Plate, Eversharp, Bell & Howell, Teletype Corporation, Oak Manufacturing, Russell Electric, and Chicago Latrobe. There are several other possibilities, among them the Arnold Schwinn company, whose team won the league championship last season and in fact was supreme in Chicagoland feminine industrial softball.

Lincoln-Belmont League to Play on Tuesday Nights

Tuesday nights will be taken over by the Lincoln-Belmont men's league which already is set with eight teams. They are Oscar Carlson Company, Teletype, Bell & Howell, Victor Adding Machine, Chicago Transformer, Johnson Fare Box Minneapolis Honeywell, and Valco Corporation. Bob Powers of the Lincoln-Belmont staff will be in charge of the league.

The Division St. "Y" also has organized a league of eight teams, directed by Steve Barak and booked to play Wednesday nights. The lineup of this group includes Simpson Optical, Thordarson Electric, Poster Products, Hammond Instrument, Lion Manufacturing, Henry Valve Company, Ekco Products and Elcor Corporation.

While the other two leagues are set with their brackets of eight teams each, Al Cox at North Av. "Y" still is fighting valiantly to keep from being overwhelmed by a flood of applications from teams wishing to join his league. Jim McDonald, manager of Weber park, has promised to set aside Thursday and Friday nights for the North av. industries and there is little question that both nights will be needed It seems likely that this league will operate in two divisions of at least eight teams each and it may be necessary to exceed that number or turn down some of the applicants.

These now include John E. Fast Company, Procter & Gamble, Chicago Latrobe, Utah Radio, Sola Electric, Russell Electric, Arnold, Schwinn Company, Oak Manufacturing, Standard Transformer, Industrial Pattern Works, Gits Molding, Finkl Steel, Haber Screw Machine Products, Union Special Machine, National Machine, Collman Wheel, Lake Shore Tool, Aetna Ball Bearing, and National Scientific.

Clearing Industrial District League to Start Wednesday

The Clearing Industrial District league will start its softball season Wednesday, if the weatherman condescends to coöperate with the league's organizers. Games will be played at 63d st. and Linder av., starting at 5:15 p. m. The nine teams expected to play in this circuit are Clearing Machine Company, Kellogg, L. A. Young, Spring & Wire Corporation, Mechancial Handling, Johnson Surgical, American Gear, Great Lakes Spring Corporation, Visking Corporation, and Air Associates.

Still another industrial league, the West Suburban, is all lined up and has a place to play but has not decided yet what nights it will hold forth in Parichy stadium, Harlem av and Harrison st. Teams expected to compete in this league include the Amertorp Bombers, Richardson Manufacturing, Hotpoint, Jefferson Electric, Chicago Flexible Shaft, Danly Machine, Hurley Machine, National Malleable, Buick Motors, Douglas Aircraft, and Lindahl Foundry.

SLOVAKS MEET VIKINGS TODAY IN CUP SERIES

BY OFFSIDE

The Slovaks, who startled Chicago soccer fans by upsetting the Swedish Americans, Illinois state soccer champions, by the convincing score of 7 to 2 in the National Open cup series last Sunday, will attempt to maintain their giant killing stride today, when they will meet the Vikings in a National Open cup fourth round game in Winnemac park stadium.

The winner will qualify as Chicago's only representative in the Western semi-finals of the national competition.

Sharing the spotlight with the Slovaks and Vikings will be the Hansa club's battle with the Guisti Italians. They are to meet in Weber stadium to determine which eleven shall advance into the third round of the National Amateur cup competition. Both games are to start at 2:30 p. m. and will be played to a decision.

Vikings Are Handicapped

The Vikings are beset by injuries. A leg injury has kept Jimmy McDermott, their leading goal getter, out of recent games. Manager Jock Johanasen says Jimmy will be back in the lineup today, but the latter hardly figures to be at his best.

The Italians, who last week eliminated the Hakoah Centers from the National Amateur cup competition, will have to be at their best to beat the Hansas.

Today's game will whet the fans' appetites for the great soccer battle that is to be offered next Sunday [May 6] in Wrigley field. This contest will pit the Brooklyn Hispanos, national champions, against a team of Chicago National league all-stars, and proceeds will be turned over to the wounded veterans' fund.

Navy V-12 Eleven Beats Illini, 7 to 0

Champaign, Ill., April 28 [Special]—The Navy V-12 football players today defeated the civilian University of Illinois squad, 7 to 0, to conclude spring practice for the Illini.

Ray Stone of Indianapolis, Ind., plunged two yards for a touchdown in the first minute of the fourth quarter, and Walt Verzen of East St. Louis, Ill., gained the extra point on a tackle-around play.

The Navy lineup included two boys, Verzen and Buddy Ward, who won letters at Illinois last year. No lettermen played with the Illini civilians, as spring practice here was monopolized by newcomers rather than by any of last year's veterans.

Summer practice for the Illini will begin July 2 and run six weeks.

Lineups:

DODGERS RALLY TO BEAT GIANTS IN NINTH, 4 TO 3

Loss Drops New York to Second Place

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 28 (AP)—Trailing, 3 to 1, in the ninth inning, the Brooklyn Dodgers lashed back with three runs to defeat the New York Giants, 4 to 3, today to even their series at one game apiece before 12,234 fans. The loss dropped New York to second place in the National league.

Van Mungo, who had spaced eight hits in eight innings and seemed about to win his first game of the season went wild in the last half of the ninth and was replaced by Ace Adams after walking the first two men to face him. Adams was relieved by Ewald Pyle after he had walked two more men, forcing in one run.

Goody Rosen greeted Pyle with a single to score Eddie Basinski and Luis Olmo with the tying and winning runs.

CARDS LOSE; MARION HURT

Cincinnati, O., April 28 (AP)—Lefty Arnold Carter of the Cincinnati Reds and Blix Donnelly of the St. Louis Cardinals locked horns in a pitchers' battle today but a ninth inning error by Jim Mallory broke a scoreless deadlock to give Cincinnati the game, 1 to 0.

In addition to losing the ball game, the Cards took it on the chin otherwise. Marty Marion tried to steal home in the ninth and injured his right ankle. He was taken to Christ hospital for X-rays.

BRAVES BEAT PHILS, 8-7

Boston, Mass., April 28 (AP)—Joe Mack's eighth inning single with the bases loaded settled the game today as the Boston Braves gained an 8 to 7 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Garden Gillenwater hit a homer with one on. E. Adams collected one as he led off in the third, and Jimmy Wasdell put the Phillies ahead 7 to 6 with his homer in the seventh. Butch Nieman's third inning home run with one man on was his fourth in four playing days.

to come up to expectations. Lund holds the national A. A. U. broad jump title. Today he was more than two feet under his best mark and Ray Tharpe of Minnesota won the event on his last trial.

Tharpe cleared 22 feet 5⅝ inches while Lund's second place effort was 22 feet 3¼ inches.

Wiesner, who had jumped 6 feet 6¾ inches last Saturday in a dual meet with Wisconsin, had hoped to break the meet record of 6 feet 8 inches established two years ago by Pete Watkins of Texas A. & M. But Wiesner could clear only 6 feet 3 inches and the championship went to Dick Kilpatrick of Purdue at 6 feet 3¾ inches.

Beaudry Wins 100 Yards

Paul Ware, Drake university freshman, captured the invitational quarter mile race with a better than average time of 49 8/10 seconds for an initial outdoor appearance. Dean Kratz, Nebraska's Big Six champion, was second.

Charles Beaudry, Marquette's veteran sprinter, had no difficulty winning the 100 yard dash by three yards from Andy Shurr of Texas, winner in the recent University of Texas relays. Beaudry's time was 9 9/10 seconds.

Iowa State regained its four mile relay championship and with Bill Arlen, Big Six mile champion, running an anchor mile in 4:36.2, easily whipped Wisconsin by 20 yards. Until Arlen's closing sprint, a duplication of his 1944 performance, Wisconsin challenged repeatedly and twice led on earlier legs.

Iowan Takes Javelin

Paul Fagerlind of Iowa had an excellent mark of 205.2 feet in the javelin throw. Purdue won the university two mile relay and Drake took the distance medley in which both colleges and universities competed. Western Michigan was victorious in the college mile, the penultimate contest of the afternoon. Summaries:

HAMMOND LEADS QUALIFYING FOR N. I. H. S. TRACK

Hammond High school yesterday afternoon led the Western division track qualifying trials of the Northern Indiana High school conference track meet on East Chicago Roosevelt field.

Hammond had a 60 point total, with Froebel of Gary the runner-up with 46 points. Hammond qualified contestants in 10 individual events and both the mile and half mile relays for the conference meet to be contested on the same field next Saturday. Gary Froebel qualified in seven events and both relays. Other point winners and the number of events for which they qualified for the conference meet are:

Gary Emerson, 29 points, five events and the half mile relay; Hammond Tech, 26 points, four events and mile relay; Hammond Clark, 5 points, four events and 880 relay; Gary Lew Wallace, 12 points, one event and 880 relay; East Chicago Washington, 11 points, three events; East Chicago Roosevelt, 11 points, three events; Gary Horace Man, eight points, mile relay; Valparaiso, two points one event.

Despite cold weather and a heavy track four western division records were established. Melvin Stroud of Froebel set a new standard of 10.2 seconds for the 100 yard dash and 23.4 seconds for the low hurdles. Jerry Mefchak of Hammond Tech set a record of 2:05.9 for the half mile run and Dick Morris of Hammond Clark hung up a record of 22.1 seconds for the 220 yard dash.

GIANTS RELEASE ALLEN; SUSPEND CLIFF MELTON

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 28 (AP)—The New York Giants today put Cliff Melton, unsigned left handed pitcher, on the suspension list and gave Johnny Allen, veteran right hander, his unconditional release. The suspension of Melton became automatic when he failed to report during the first 10 days of the playing season. Allen also was unsigned when made a free agent.

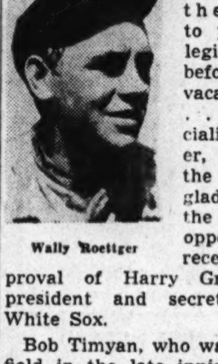
Four games will open the post softball league on May 7, the Miliary police meeting Company E, Personnel Center officers facing B Company No. 2, Post officers opposing Service company, and Mess meeting Medical company. . . . On May 8 the eight remaining teams in the circuit will start play. . . . These contests follow: B Company No. 1 vs. Reception Center warehouse, Company K vs. Reception Center headquarters, Triangle vs. Classification, and Prisoner of War camp vs. Reconditioning. . . . The Reception Center Bowling league title was captured by E Company No. 2, which defeated Headquarters No. 4. . . . The Wednesday night Bowling circuit championship was won by Buck's Busters, who finished one game ahead of the second place Medics.

Great Lakes

THE Great Lakes baseball team has postponed a game with the Chicago White Sox scheduled for Constitution field here May 8 out of deference to Wally Roettger, coach of the University of Illinois nine, who invited the Bluejackets to play the collegians at Urbana before the spring vacation period. . . . Chief Specialist Bob Feller, manager of the sailor team, gladly agreed to the change of opponents after receiving the approval of Harry Grabiner, vice president and secretary of the White Sox.



Wally Roettger

Bob Timyan, who was in the outfield in the late innings as Great Lakes defeated Northwestern, 12 to 2, in Evanston Wednesday, was a member of the Wildcat nine last season. . . . Others who appeared in the Bluejackets' lineup included Henry Arft of Springfield, Ill.; Johnny Groth, Chicago Latin; Vernon Hackbart, Madison, Wis.; Charley Cupp, Montgomery, Ala.; John Morton, 1941 football end at the University of Missouri, and Don Burson, Lakewood, O. . . . John Meketi, who went to the mound in the seventh, relieving Feller, who left the game after pitching three scoreless innings [fourth, fifth, and sixth], is the property of the New York Giants.

Gardiner General Hospital

LT. LARRY CADOGAN, athletic officer at this army hospital on the south side, is organizing post softball, baseball, golf, and track teams for intercamp competition in the 6th Service command. . . . The Administrative players beat Charge of Quarters, 12 to 11, in the opening game of the eight team Gardiner hospital softball league tournament last Monday. . . Sgt. David Rydeen and Corp. John Prioletti starred for the winners, the former hitting an extra inning home run for the winning score. . . . Pvt. Robert Sills, winner of the 6th Service command pocket billiards title, played a sparkling game at second base for the Charge of Quarters team.

Cubs to Play Pirates Two Games Today

The first Wrigley field double header of the season will be played this afternoon between the Cubs and the Pirates. Bob Chipman and Jorge Comellas will pitch for the Cubs and Nick Strincevich and Preacher Roe have been indicated for the Pirates.

Cub players have begun to talk about an all-Chicago world series. They think they can win the National league pennant by playing out the schedule and they know the White Sox will clinch it if they do not play any more games in the regular American league season. Paul Derringer has announced he will be ready to pitch the world series opener.

The Cubs have two types of schedule calendars, both now being distributed under heavy demands. One is a trick card schedule of Cub home and road games, the other a booklet listing all National league games.

There was a bit of contrast between the Cub offensive attainments in the first inning of Friday's game and the first inning yesterday. Friday the Cubs made four runs on one hit in the opening inning. Yesterday they made one run on four hits.

HANKIN HELPS TECHAWKS WIN IN TRACK, 103-32

Led by Norman Hankins, the Illinois Institute of Technology yesterday defeated Concordia Teachers college in a track meet held in River Forest, 103 to 32.

Hankins, a senior at the tech school, won two events — 100 and 220 yard dashes—tied for first place in the high jump and was anchor man on the winning relay team. A throw of 187 feet, 7 inches by Eggerding, Concordia star, won the javelin event.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY ROBERT BEACH

MRS. FLORETTA McCUTCHEON, one of the outstanding women bowlers of all time, never has received a minute of instruction on the art of knocking over the tenpins. Yet she probably has taught more women to bowl than any other feminine adherent the game has ever known.

"The lack of free instruction in the modern bowling alley is appalling," she says. "It's comparable to the old expression that 'the silence is deafening.' I'm satisfied that, once the war is over and things begin to get back to normal, one of the first changes to be made in bowling establishments will be organized and free courses of instruction at all times, day or night, and available to all patrons."

Bowls 10 Perfect Games; Had 206 Season Average

Mrs. McCutcheon, formerly instructress at the Lawrence bowl, and since its fire, at the Bowlium takes pardonable pride in her achievements, which include 10 perfect games, the coaching to the New York championship of Irene Richards, her 206 season league average in a fast New York league, and the reputation for having made a substantial and creditable contribution to the sport wherever she has found it.

As Elmer Baumgarten, secretary of the A. B. C., used to say, bowling has more instructors than any other game—the veteran who has bowled six games feels fully qualified to instruct the beginner who has rolled only three. More instructors will help bowling, will help the bowling proprietors, and will help the bowlers. But they must be competent; they must be of the Floretta McCutcheon type, willing, patient, and able.

Highest Series of League Season Wins Only 2 Games

Despite a pair of 545 series by Laura Stellmacher and Carrie Enders which led to a 2,646 series, highest in the league for the evening, the Lustre Cremes took only two from Ward-Mitchells in the Marigold Ladies classic. . . . Information about a Junior Classic Traveling league, now being formed, may be had by writing to that league at 3425 W. 26th st., Chicago 23. It's for teams in the 885-900 bracket. . . . The Statisticals and the Mailing Lists tied for the title in the George S. May Company league at North Town recreation. No date has been set for the roll-off. The league's sponsor, George S. May, had the distinction of turning in the league's highest single game for the season, a 262. . . . Edelweiss regained a tie with Mobilgas for the lead in the Samuelson Major by taking three from Keeley Half and Half. Hank Pederson's 695 and Herb Gumz's 664 were the deciding factors. Mobilgas dropped one to Wallace Coals.

The U. S. Hoffman Machinery corporation team won the championship of the Wednesday Night Ladies' Junior league at Bowling Lanes for the second straight year when they defeated the Sonotones in one of three games Wednesday night. Team members are Capt. Gene Bassett, Marge Ernst, Margie Schultz, Hazele Roush, and Harriett Gruenwald.

Dr. Mozan Rolls 702 Series but Loses—to Gramer's 741

CHATTER—Earl Gramer, the Crookston [Minn.] pin star, dropped in at the Roosevelt bowl the other evening, quite unexpectedly, as did Dr. Alphonse Mozan, the curtain bowling specialist who calls the spot his home alleys, and they hooked up in a neat match, much to the satisfaction and edification of a large and appreciative audience. Mozan came up with a sterling 702 series, only to lose by 39 pins to Gramer's 741. Such bowling!

The Men's Club of Sinai gave a whirlwind finish to their season's pin endeavors at Hyde Park tion Thursday night when the first place Bob's Bobcats and the second place Schwartz's Skunks met in the final session with only two games separating them. The Schwartzes won the first two games, creating a tie. The Bobcats, after trailing thru the seventh frame, rallied to pull the game and the championship out of the fire by 23 pins.

U. S. LEGATION'S FAILURE TO AID TRADE DECRIED

British Are Getting Strong Support

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CAIRO, Egypt, April 28—American business men working in the middle east to promote post-war trade between the United States and this part of the world are not getting proper coöperation from the United States state department, an American sales representative said today. This handicaps them in attempting to compete with British companies, their chief rivals, which receive the fullest aid and support from their government and military forces, he said.

These assertions were made by George Brandt of Asheville, N. C., vice president and representative of the United States and Middle East corporation, of Hartford, Conn., which represents 46 American manufacturers of plumbing, heating, and refrigeration equipment, including the Powers Regulator company and the Mercoid corporation, both of Chicago. Brandt said the lack of coöperaton had been so pronounced that he wrote to Secretary of State Stettinius explaining the situation and asking that something be done to rectify it.

British Are Chief Rivals

"Our chief rivals for export business are firms of the United Kingdom," he said. "The Americans are accustomed to competition and welcome it as long as all competitors are working under the same rules and conditions. I have no criticism to make of the British. I admire their enterprise and, most of all, their teamwork. Their advantage over us arises from the fact that from top to bottom the government, government agencies, and private corporations seeking trade are a smooth working team which is 100 per cent united.

"By contrast we are at cross-purposes with one another, especially between government and private business. I have met with many obstacles, most of which I believe are unnecessary. Members of the commercial attache's office in the American legation in Cairo are not only of no aid in the way of information, but their first reaction to almost every request is 'no.' There seems to be little or no inclination on their part to render any assistance in promoting American trade."

Hits Attitude on Mail

Brandt was particularly critical of the attitude of the American state department on business mail. The British have extended V-mail privileges thruout the empire for business purposes, he said, but no such assistance is given the American business man.

Upon his arrival in Cairo, he said, he was told that he could use the diplomatic pouch, subject to certain conditions, to speed mail to the United States. He complied with the conditions and then had about 100 letters to clients returned undelivered from Washington, D. C. The pouch was available to American business men only under exceptional circumstances, he was told.

"It seems that aiding the interests of American trade is the concern of the state department only under exceptional circumstances, as the legation said," Brandt commented.

Asks End to Ineptitude

Brandt said that in his letter to Stettinius he appealed to the secretary, in view of his own long experience in business and industry, to put a stop to such ineptitude in the state department and to reshape its policy into one of coöperation and aid to American business representatives abroad, rather than a hindrance. His letter to the secretary was mailed from Cairo April 13, but he has had no answer.

A mechanical engineer, Brandt first came to Egypt in 1942 as a civilian expert employed by the American army, and returned two months ago for his own organization. Since then he has traveled in Syria, Lebanon, and Palestine as well as in Egypt, in his efforts to promote business.

Television Set Output Plans Told by Philco

Philco corporation plans to offer "moderately priced television receiving sets to the public within a few months after the war," Larry E. Gubb, chairman, and John Ballantyne, president, yesterday told stockholders.

The first multiple relay television network which links Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia, Pa.—recently completed by Philco—has given scientific proof that transmission of a television picture over long distances by a series of wireless relays is possible and practical, they said.

Net Income Increases

Net income last year rose to $3,938,455, or $2.87 a share, computed after providing $220,350 for contingencies, from $3,573,569, or $2.60 a share, in 1943. Sales totaled $152,933,250, after voluntary price adjustments of $17,917,736, an increase of 31 per cent over 1943 volume.

Among the largest producers of air borne radar equipment, Philco last year made 36 major types of radar and radio equipment ranging from small precision devices costing only a few dollars to complete aircraft equipment worth several thousand dollars, they said.

W. A. Sheaffer Pen company reported net earnings in its fiscal year ended Feb. 28 were $1,104,160, or $7.07 a share, compared with $1,132,650, or $7.09 a share, computed after setting aside $225,000 for post-war adjustments in the preceding fiscal year. No contingency provisions were made in the 1945 fiscal year.

Hints at Difficulties

C. R. Sheaffer, president, said the company "has for the present suffered the loss of the preëminent dollar volume position it held in its pre-war commercial field." He said many of Sheaffer's experiences with government boards, commissions, bureaus, and the military branches "have not been so pleasant or helpful" and the full story will be told "when possible."

Household Finance corporation first quarter net income rose to $1,177,666, or 44 cents a share, from $1,098,041, or 40 cents a share, in the corresponding 1944 quarter, B. E. Henderson, president, reported. Customer notes receivable on March 31 totaled $63,944,426, approximately 2 million dollars more than a year ago, but $722,214 less than on Dec. 31, 1944.

Chicago Railway Equipment company had March quarter net earnings of $121,722, against $70,669 a year ago, A. C. Moore, president, said. Profits were computed after setting aside $50,000 for reconversion of subsidiary in the 1945 quarter and $25,000 a year ago.

LIFE INSURANCE TRENDS

Life insurance companies continue to make adjustments in their operations in response to the decline in the rate of yield on their investments. Over a period of years, premiums on new policies have been increased, or dividends to policy holders have been reduced, or both courses have been adopted.

The result has been to increase the cost of insurance protection, but higher premiums have enabled the companies to provide increased cash surrender and loan values in policies. Rates of interest assumed in calculating the guaranteed settlement options have been reduced. On older policies in some cases, options are understood to be based on assumed interest yield as high as 3½ per cent.

Many of the mutual companies have long calculated their reserve requirements on an interest yield of 3 per cent, this rate having been in effect for some firms since 1899. However, many other companies, particularly those writing nonparticipating policies, based reserves up to a few years ago on an assumed 3½ per cent.

Some of the big mutuals in later years have based their calculations on income rates below 3 per cent. Last year, for example, New York Life Insurance company adopted a new series of policies with premiums based on an assumed interest yield of 2½ per cent. Its report for 1944 disclosed that of its accumulated reserves, $2,091,838,998 was now computed on the basis of 2¾ per cent or lower interest, and $712,543,012 at 3 per cent.

The combined rate of net investment income of all United States life companies has been declining with little interruption for 20 years. In 1943 it amounted to 3.29 per cent. Statistics for 1944 are expected to show a further moderate decline, partly because of the large new investments made in United States government bonds yielding, at most, 2½ per cent. Net yields are reported after deducting investment expenses, but without regard to capital gains or losses. In recent years of rising bond prices, gains on sale or maturity of securities have been an important item.

Market statisticians figured recently that the average yield on the 30 leading industrial common stocks included in the Dow-Jones average amounted to 4.25 per cent. But despite the higher yields obtainable, it appears that there is little demand from life insurance companies for a change in state laws that prohibit or strictly limit investment of their funds in such equities.

Few Vets Get Loans to Start Business

Chicago area banks have made few loans under the G. I. bill of rights to finance new business ventures of veterans, a survey showed yesterday.

Bankers said they were receiving more inquiries than applications. Many veterans planning business ventures do not have matured projects. Others who have made inquiries are incompletely informed of the hazards involved.

Under the bill of rights act a veteran is eligible for a low interest rate loan guaranteed up to $2,000 by the federal government to finance purchase of a home or to finance a new business. The loan must be approved by the veterans' administration and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Termed Harm, Not Help

"We would be harming rather than helping some of the applicants if we should grant them loans," one bank official said. "It would be foolish to allow a man to start a business about which he knows nothing, fail, and find himself saddled with a debt."

Some prospective borrowers wish to set themselves up in business with a tavern, night club, or restaurant because it appeals to them, bankers said. Others wish to enter the trucking businesses because truckers get all the business they want now, not realizing that when tires, trucks, and man power once again are available, old established companies probably will be able to handle it all, it was said.

Many of the applicants have promising plans, bankers said. Some have a thoro knowledge of what they wish to undertake and are expected to receive loans without trouble. Some loans have been approved for men who later decided they did not want them after obtaining a good job.

Told to Get Experience

Without exception, bankers said their policy, if they believe an applicant is not ready to receive a loan, is to advise him to obtain a job in the field in which he is interested, work a year or more to obtain knowledge of the business, and then apply for a loan. Nearly every bank in the Chicago area has an employe specially trained to offer advice and help to veterans, and the larger loop banks have three or four.

Those in charge of the loan program, who meet periodically to discuss their problems and seek solutions, agreed that the bill is such a "maze of regulations" that few can measure up to its standards, and some advocated a widening of it scope.

WPB Revokes 41 More Bars to Production

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—The war production board revoked 41 more war time industrial controls today as reconversion activity surged ahead in step with the apparent disintegration of German strength.

At least a score of additional orders limiting various types of civilian manufacturing activity are scheduled for the scrap heap within the next week in line with preparations for wide relaxations after V-E day.

WPB announced 18 revocations, but its information division was unable to keep up with the flow. Twenty-three actions were filed with the federal register just before it closed its books for the day.

Materials Remain Rationed

The effect on civilian supplies will be slight, however, because none of the major curbs like bans on automobile and refrigerator production were lifted. Another obstacle to manufacturers' getting full benefit of the relaxations was the system for rationing materials which remained intact.

Major result of the initial steps was to put manufacturers in position to go ahead with expansion of peace time products as soon as munitions cutbacks make materials available and WPB relaxes its materials allocation machinery.

Twelve of the late revocations removed restrictions on the size and type of many steel products, including railroad rails, pipes, and reinforcing steel for construction. Another canceled the order controling manufactured gas production and delivery.

Announce Labor Parleys

Taking cognizance of possible unemployment during reconversion, WPB also announced a two month series of Washington conferences with some 300 labor leaders, starting May 7. Discussions already are under way with management spokesmen.

Chairman Krug announced his coördinator of automotive reconversion, Henry P. Nelson, would open meetings in Detroit Tuesday with the CIO United Automobile Workers on problems which will arise as war production is scaled down. An army air forces spokesman told UAW leaders no work was in sight for the giant Willow Run bomber plant after B-24 output ends Aug. 1.

The machine tool industry, newly authorized to take orders for peace time equipment, meanwhile reported that "many orders" already were arriving. They expressed doubt, however, that they could boost output beyond the high level of last month, almost all military work.

STRIKE OF 7,000 TIRE BUILDERS PERILS OUTPUT

Akron, O., April 28 (AP)—Approximately 7,000 employes of three Goodyear Tire and Rubber company plants and Goodyear Aircraft corporation were idle today as spreading walkouts threatened to halt all tiremaking operations. The strikes were to protest inconvenient location of a welding machine and tardiness of a recently negotiated wage rate.

Accepts WLB Order

Detroit, Mich., April 28 (AP)—Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company, scene of two strikes within less than three weeks, agreed today to abide by a regional war labor board order to rehire 13 discharged men but "only in the interest of war production." Management asked the WLB in Washington, D. C., to review the regional board's order, and said the directive was "interfering with management obligations to maintain discipline."

OPA Will Free 1,500 Cars in Shrinking Ration Pool

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—About 4,000 new 1942 automobiles remain in the ration pool, the OPA said today in announcing that 1,500 will be released in May.

CHICAGO PEACE RECONVERSION PROBLEMS FEW

Big Manufacturers' Plans Are Ready

Large Chicago manufacturing companies which converted all or most of their facilities to war production expect to return to peace time operations with a minimum of difficulties, a survey disclosed yesterday.

In most instances these companies plan to follow reconversion programs laid out last fall but shelved in the early winter when the Germans made their last major counter-attack in Belgium. With the war in Europe nearly ended, the plans are being reappraised and prepared for actual operations.

Ready to Supply Railroads

Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, which produced a large number of ships for the navy, is ready to manufacture railroad passenger and freight cars, trolley buses, and street cars as soon as government permission and materials and man power become available. A spokesman explained that shipbuilding operations, except for some minor assembly work, were carried on in a separate building and would not interfere with peace time work.

The International Harvester company also is in a favorable position to resume normal output. Its line of farm equipment was kept in production to meet the heavy food demands of war, and its truck division was busy meeting military needs.

A representative said war time specifications for trucks and for tractors and power units did not vary greatly from those of pre-war days, obviating extensive change-overs.

Won't Have Motors' Problems

"We won't have the terrific reconversion problem the auto industry will have," he explained. "Those people had to move their old machinery out in the yard, and move the new in. Now they will have to move the new machines out and bring the old back in. International Harvester never was completely out of its peace time lines."

A similar condition exists for Stewart-Warner corporation. Except for minor changes, it was able to continue production of its regular automotive goods altho they went largely to the army and navy. A company representative said its south plant is manufacturing shell fuses exclusively, but that it could be cleared completely and turned over to civilian radio production within 60 days.

Pre-war Level in 9 Months

Speedy reconversion also is anticipated by the Edison General Electric Appliance company. Ward R. Schafer, president, said limited production of appliances would begin within three months after reconversion starts and pre-war output levels would be reached in nine months.

He said the first products to reach the market would be electric ranges, automatic water heaters, and dishwashers.

The Norge division of Borg-Warner corporation, another appliance producer, has orders with a Chicago company for enough steel to produce 50,000 electric refrigerators. Delivery was asked as soon as production authorization was obtained.

Packard Motor Car company was reported to have placed orders with the same steel company for substantial amounts of steel in preparation for its post-war automobile manufacturing.

Ask Solution of Food Pinch; Crops in Europe to Be Small

Backs One Man Rule

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—The senate agriculture committee today instructed its food investigating subcommittee to draw up recommendations for improving meat supply and distribution.

Sen. Wheeler

A majority of the full committee apparently was convinced some action was needed, but its form was not certain. The subcommittee disagreed on one man direction for food management.

The action was taken at a closed meeting during which Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] is reported to have declared he feared a "complete breakdown" in food supplies unless a new government admininstrative structure is established soon.

Consolidation Advocated

Wheeler was said to have advocated consolidation of all food matters under one man. They now are divided chiefly between the OPA and the war food administration, altho some other agencies also are having a hand in them.

The Montanan is a member of the food subcommittee which is headed by Sen. Thomas [D., Okla.], also chairman of the full committee. Thomas told reporters he questioned whether it was advisable at this stage to create an entire new food administration.

Sen. Butler [R., Neb.], another of the food investigators, set out his views in a letter to Price Administrator Bowles. He expressed belief that OPA's new program, adding $34,000,000 to existing subsidies, will not meet the situation and suggested an increase in meat prices.

Would Encourage Feeding

Contending the first thing which should be done is to encourage feeding of cattle to heavier weights, Butler told Bowles:

"If more subsidies are paid instead of increasing the ceilings, there is a reasonable doubt who gets them, and the feeder is not convinced that any substantial portion gets thru to him.

"We have heard the old argument repeatedly that the 'line must be held' and that any increase in ceilings is inflationary. May I call your attention to the fact that if the wholesale beef price was increased $2 per hundred [and I believe this is the minimum that should be added] the resultant per capita increase in meat costs would be little more than 1 cent per day."

War Prevents Planting

Washington, D. C., April 28 (AP)—American officials have been advised in confidential reports from abroad that Europe will be less able to feed itself in its first year of liberation than at any time during German domination.

These reports said the continent will produce substantially less food this year than in many years because of the disruption of production and distribution caused by final stages of the war.

Many Areas Affected

Prolongation of Germany's hopeless war well into the spring planting season is expected to result in sharp reductions in production in wide areas of the Netherlands, Germany, Austria, northern Italy, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia.

Tending to aggravate food conditions, the reports said, is a breakdown in German devised systems of collecting foods from farmers and of providing supplies for urban consumers thru rationing. Those systems naturally disappeared as the allied armies moved across France and Belgium into Germany and as the Russians fought their way westward thru Poland into the reich.

As yet, the reports said, provisional governments of the liberated areas have been unable to get the situation under effective control. Farmers are said to be hoarding supplies or diverting their products into black markets where only the wealthy can obtain them.

Stockpiles Already Eaten

In the meantime supplies which should have lasted many weeks have been consumed or placed out of the reach of rationing authorities.

In many cities of liberated areas, civilian consumers were said to be getting food with an energy value of less than 1,500 calories per day. Americans, by comparison, averaged more than 3,000 calories in 1944.

The reports said that 1945 production will be adversely affected by a number of factors. In the first place, bad weather last fall held plantings of fall sown crops, such as winter wheat and rye, considerably below the previous year.

Secondly, thousands of farmers in areas involved in the fighting have abandoned their lands in search of safety.

Almost All Need Supplies

The reports said that virtually every country will need supplementary supplies from overseas if conditions of hunger and malnutrition are to be improved.

The reports said that food production will be hampered also by a shortage of processing facilities.

Stocks Surge to New Peaks in Big Volume

New York, April 28 (AP)—The stock market today finished a generally strong week with a push to a new peak for more than 7½ years in one of the broadest and most active Saturday sessions of 1945.

The trend was upward from the start and a majority of the issues traded held gains of fractions to 2 points despite profit taking in the final hour which trimmed prices from top levels. Transfers of 930,000 shares compared with 590,000 a week ago and were the largest for a Saturday since Feb. 3.

RAIL BOND TRADE LARGE

New York, April 28 (AP)—Activity in advancing railroad issues expanded today's bond market volume to the second largest for Saturday this year. Transactions of $8,760,000 face value compared with the Jan. 6 total of $8,824,000. Issues traded in large blocks included Chicago and Alton 3s of '49, which rose 1¾ on turnover of $801,000.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES

Prices advanced again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Leaders in a 22,000 share turnover included Admiral corporation, up ⅝; Cities Service, up ½; Central and South West Utilities, unchanged, and Chicago corporation, unchanged.

Chicago Bank Clearings Increase to 544 Million

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $544,200,000, compared with $511,200,000 in the preceding week and $463,300,000 a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The figures:

Date	Clearings	Balances
Monday	$ 76,700,000	$ 6,800,000
Tuesday	83,600,000	6,400,000
Wednesday	81,700,000	5,300,000

GRAIN MARKETS MOSTLY LOWER ON LATE SELLING

Prices of grains on the Chicago Board of Trade rallied after an early break yesterday, but commission house profit cashing and evening-up operations in preparation for the week-end caused a reaction during the final hour and most closing prices were lower.

Rye had a range of about 2 cents a bushel and ended ⅛ to ⅞ lower after rising about 1 cent early. Wheat prices ended ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, corn ¼ to ¾ lower, oats unchanged to ⅜ lower, and barley ½ to ⅞ lower.

Apprehension that V-E day might be proclaimed over the week-end induced speculators to even up their market position. Some pressure appeared at the opening, but when shorts started to cover they found little for sale.

GASOLINE, TIRE SUPPLY TO RISE AFTER V-E DAY

Early Civilian Gain May Be Moderate

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

Moderately increased amounts of gasoline and passenger car tires for motorists are expected with the surrender of Germany, informed persons in the petroleum and rubber industries said last night. Prospects for the near-by future were termed better for gasoline than for tires.

Robert E. Wilson

Predictions made by industry experts were based on reduced military requirements in Europe. They may be changed by unforeseeable circumstances in the Pacific fighting.

The situation may be summarized as follows:

GASOLINE—Prospects reported fair for an increase in the weekly ration for A card holders to nearly three gallons, a maximum allotment on a nation-wide basis of 475 miles a month for B card holders who can prove they need that much, and an unestimated mileagle increase for C card holders who prove need.

Gains to Be Progressive

PASSENGER CAR TIRES—Possible production of 20 million passenger tires this year, with the remote possibility of 25 million if cutbacks in war production make enough materials and man power available. Altho this means no more new tires for A card holders immediately after V-E day, their prospects should improve progressively in the succeeding months.

Dr. Robert E. Wilson, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company [Indiana] and one of the foremost authorities on petroleum, has estimated that as much as 25 per cent more gasoline may become available for civilian consumption after the Nazi defeat. He said last week the increase may run 200,000 barrels a day. Civilian consumption has been estimated to be near 1 million barrels a day.

Factors in Improvement

A number of factors will improve the American situation after V-E day. With many military planes in Europe grounded and great, fast moving armies largely immobilized, war gas requirement should drop materially. Further, new super gasolines for big new bombers are produced by processes yielding increased amounts of ordinary gasoline as a by-product.

The Pacific war will require a vast amount of gasoline, but some help should be obtained from near east refineries, it was said. British advances in Burma may clear some petroleum fields where the annual output was 1,100,000 tons before the war and removing the Japs from Borneo also would help.

The tire manufacturers consider reconversion from war to passenger car tire production a matter of days and believe they could make in one year 90 million auto and truck tires.

Synthetic rubber plants have an annual capacity of about 1 million tons, which ultimately will reach 1,300,000 tons. Normal annual consumption of rubber in the United States before the war was 600,000 tons.

Earlier Hopes Dashed.

Increased military demands and material shortages upset hopes last fall in Akron that rationing might be lifted by late this summer.

An acute shortage developed in carbon black—a natural gas by-product mixed with rubber to give tires longer life. The situation is improving

Rayon and cotton—used in tire bodies—are getting short because workers in southern plants left textile jobs for war plants that pay more, but the war production board announcement that war contracts will be cut back in many plants is expected to improve the textile labor situation.

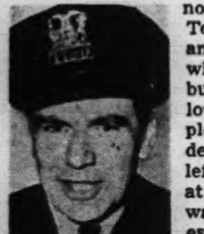
TRIBUNE HERO PRIZE GIVEN POLICEMAN, 34

$100 Awarded for March to James J. LaVigne

BY EDWARD SCHREIBER

An alert young Chicago policeman assigned to patrol duty near the Illinois Institute of Technology, 33d and Federal sts., who made it his business to follow school employes and students when they left the building at night on their way to the nearest street car line, has received the $100 Tribune hero award for March for his bravery in preventing a holdup and possible murder of the school's engineer on March 16.



James J. La Vigne

Each month THE TRIBUNE awards a $100 prize to a Chicago policeman or fireman performing an act of bravery beyond the call of duty. Last month's winner was Patrolman James J. LaVigne of the Stanton av. station, who was recommended for the award by both Police Capt. Harry Deas and officials of the institute.

Sees Sudden Attack

On the night in question LaVigne saw Cecil Driskell, 3124 S. 58th ct., Cicero, the engineer, leave the building and hurry toward the Wentworth av. car line, two blocks away. Following him at a distance of about 100 feet LaVigne saw a car pull up to the curb near his charge and, with a policeman's instinct, he broke into a run as a Negro alighted from the auto brandishing a long knife.

Without a word, the attacker, still not noticing the policeman approaching, threw his victim to the sidewalk and began a search of his pockets with one hand as he made threatening gestures with the knife held in the other.

Turns on Policeman

Near enough to interfere by this time, LaVigne shouted a warning at the Negro and drew his gun. The man jumped up and ran toward LaVigne, brandishing the knife and shouting curses. Two shots knocked him to the pavement, and as two of his confederates in the auto drove away the policeman fired several shots at them.

Driskell, altho shaken by his experience, was unhurt and helped the patrolman put the robber into a car for a hurried trip to Michael Reese hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

From fingerprints taken by the bureau of identification the man was identified as Richard Brookens, 22, 5649 Prairie av., a dishonorably discharged soldier and the possessor of a criminal record.

Two Previous Arrests

He had been arrested previously for burglary and murder, altho he had never served time in a penitentiary. The burglary charge was reduced to larceny and he was granted two years' probation; the murder charge had been nolle prossed in Criminal court.

LaVigne has been a policeman for less than three years. He is 34, married, has three children, and lives at 7636 Marquette av. Prior to his being a policeman he was a park district employe. A coroner's jury investigating the shooting returned a verdict of justifiable homicide and commended LaVigne for his action.

MICHIGAN FRUIT BELT IS HIT BY 22 DEGREE COLD

New Troy, Mich., April 28 [Special]—Severe frost damage to orchards in Michigan's fruit belt was reported this morning when temperatures fell as low as 22 in some sections.

L. A. Boyd, director of the Michigan Fruit Sponsors, said apple trees at Hartford and at Bangor, where an unofficial temperature of 22 was recorded, were seriously damaged. At Paw Paw, in the grape belt, the temperature went down to 23.

Sweet cherries, already the size of marbles, were blackened by the frost at New Troy. Boyd reported that strawberries, raspberries, and grapes "looked bad."

It will be several days before the actual damage can be estimated. Cool, partly cloudy weather yesterday helped reduce effects of the frost. Hot, sunny weather would have increased the plant damage.

2 SWANS DASH AT BOY; 1 DRAGS BIKE INTO WATER

Riding his bicycle yesterday in Lord's park, Elgin, Duane Hagen, 9, of 320 Dundee st., Elgin, didn't suspect the blitz qualities in the two swans swimming majestically on the lagoon.

He pulled up to watch them. The pair circled the island 70 feet from shore several times, then wobbled up onto the island to inspect their nest.

Tries to Ward Them Off.

Duane didn't notice that they had developed an interest in him, too. They waddled back into the water, watching him closely. At first slowly, then with wings flopping and feet paddling wildly, they made straight for the boy. He started to climb onto the bike, but was too late. He turned to ward off the 35 pound birds as they came charging and hissing out of the water.

One swan charged into the front wheel, catching its neck in the spokes and hooking one wing in the gears and chain of the sprocket. In a moment, the swan had dragged the bike into the lagoon and disappeared.

Follows Line of Bubbles

The other swan, Duchess, watched in amazement. When her mate, Duke, didn't reappear, she started back toward the island, following the line of bubbles that rose to the surface and moved slowly away from shore.

Some 10 minutes later, Park Commissioner John Zimmerli and park workers who had been summoned by Duane's shouts were watching when the line of bubbles stopped near the island. A moment later, the swan "surfaced," without the bicycle. He joined his mate on the island, flapped his wings weakly, and settled down near the nest.

Duke offered no protest when workmen, using a rowboat and grappling hooks, pulled the bike up from 10 feet of water near the island.

Duane was last seen peddling at full speed out of the park.

GARY SCHOOLS TO MAKE R.O.T.C. WORK ELECTIVE

The Gary, Ind., school board voted Friday night to abolish, effective in September, 1946, the compulsory provision for R. O. T. C. training in four Gary high schools. Effective next September, the rule of three years of compulsory training will be reduced to two.

The action was opposed by Lt. Col. Chauncey Hayden, who is in charge of the instruction, and Miss Verna Hoke, principal of the Lew Wallace High school. Miss Hoke told the board:

"The R. O. T. C. sergeants were the only people who have done a really good job in making boys spruce up and walk like men. Their personal appearance, posture, and neatness have improved 100 per cent."

Opponents of the compulsory training, which became effective in May, 1942, said that it encroached on other school activities, including athletics and the music program, and that the war time philosophy of some of the instructors was different from that of the school system.

RULES HABITUAL CRIMINALS CAN'T OBTAIN PAROLES

At the request of Gov. Green and Judge Donald S. McKinlay of Superior court for a formal opinion, Atty. Gen. Barrett yesterday ruled that habitual criminals are not eligible for parole and discharge prior to serving full terms.

The question has been raised in mandamus petitions filed by numerous prisoners serving habitual criminal sentences in an attempt to compel the state division of correction to grant parole hearings. They claimed eligibility because they had served one-third of their sentences.

Judge McKinley said he requested the opinion because if the ruling held the convicts ineligible for parole, it was his belief that legislative adjustment was necessary to make parole accessible to the convicts. The judge said the habitual criminal count in an indictment was often inserted at the whim of the state's attorney and might result in unjustly long terms for comparatively minor offenses.

BRACE—Leonard Ward Brace, S 1/C, U. S. N. R. In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who gave his life in the service of his country April 29, 1944.
Your life is a beautiful memory.
Your loss a great sorrow to us.
MR. AND MRS. FRED BRACE AND FAMILY.

DE LUE—Estella Walters De Lue. In loving memory of our dear one, who passed away one year ago.
In Rosehill softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
In her lonely, silent grave.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
Little do they know the heartache
That our smiles hide all the while.
Sadly missed by YOUR LOVING SON, EDGAR A. DE LUE, AND DEVOTED SISTER, HELEN WALTERS COHN.

FINKLE—James Finkle, 1936. In memory a daily thought, in our hearts a silent sorrow. SARAH, SYDNEY, PEARLIE.

KRUK—Frances Kruk. In memory of our dear wife, mother, and grandmother, who passed away one year ago today, April 29, 1944.
Gone is your face we loved so dear,
Silent the voice we loved to hear.
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a wonderful memory you left behind.
From this world of pain and sorrow,
To the land of peace and rest
God has taken you, our darling,
Where you have found your rest.
LOVING HUSBAND, CHILDREN, AND GRANDCHILDREN.

MILNE—Charles J. Milne, April 30, 1940.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
LOVING DAUGHTERS EVELYN, ALICE, AND DOROTHY, AND GRANDCHILDREN.

MULLEN—Theresa Mullen. In loving memory of my beloved wife, our dear mother and grandmother, who passed away one year ago today.
Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest;
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
Memories and treasures no one can steal;
Death leaves a wound no one can heal.
Loving Husband, Children, Grandchildren.

PIEL—Lt. Charles F. Piel, U. S. A. A. F. In memory of our dear son and brother, who left us suddenly one year ago today.
One sad, lonely year has passed
Since our great sorrow fell.
The shock that we received that day,
We still remember well.
It was bitter grief, a shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
You left us in your hurried way,
But trust in God we'll meet some day.
MOM, DAD, SISTER, AND GRANDMA.

REISING—Oliver Richard Reising. In memory of my beloved husband, who passed away 13 years ago today.
I have only a loving memory.
YOUR LOVING WIFE, DOROTHY BELLE REISING.

SBERTOLL—Judith Mooney Sbertoll. Tribute of love and remembrance to our dear sister, who passed away three years ago today.
FOND SISTERS, MARIE AND JOSEPHINE.

SBERTOLL—Judith Mooney Sbertoll. In cherished memory of my darling wife, who passed away three years ago today.
LOVING HUSBAND, ROBERT.

SCANLON—T/5 Edward Terence Scanlon, U. S. A. In memory of our soldier boy, who died of his wounds on April 28, 1944.
God, hold your loving arms about him,
Keep him in Your tender care,
Please make up all he had to suffer,
And everything that was unfair.
MOTHER, SISTER, AND BROTHER.

SCHOENWALD—Anna Schoenwald. In loving and everlasting memory of our beloved wife and mother, who passed away one year ago today. LOVING HUSBAND, SONS.

STAUDER—Sgt. Andrew W. Stauder. In loving memory of our son and brother on his 29th birthday. Killed in action Jan. 5, 1945, at Metz, France.
MOM, DAD, AND DICK.

INDUSTRIAL building, 110,000 square feet, located in one of the best industrial locations in Chicago, near north side; 4 car switch track; loading platforms; 3 freight elevators; sprinklered. Yearly rental $26,000; all leases have 60 day cancellation clauses, guaranteeing possession within 60 days after sale. Unusual circumstances force sale at this time at an unusual sacrifice price. A fair valuation on today's market would be in excess of $150,000. The price now for immediate sale, $105,000, one half cash, mortgage house liquidation.

Neighborhoods of the Future
Where Will They Be?
EVERY WAR has changed our mode of living . . . has produced new residential and business communities . . . areas unthought of a few years back.
BIG PROFITS are always realized by those who have the foresight to invest in the path of new development before the development begins.
WE BELIEVE we can help you uncover some of the "hidden values" in sensible land investments and suggest you call us for consultation. No obligation.
AS LITTLE as $500 invested NOW may be the start of financial independence for you in the future.

River Forest Manor

Located west of Harlem-av. and along North-av., this community is the desirable place to build your home and raise your family. It has the "must" qualifications: Schools, transportation, all improvements including concrete streets and alleys, and is conveniently close to Oak Park shopping center. Highly restricted, it has become a community of fine homes and neighbors. No development in the Chicago area has the assured future that this community has. Choose one of our wooded building sites now. Remember that land values have not yet materially increased. Rather than buy a home at a foolishly high price, be smart, be prepared to build your home before prices advance. Together with our building organization, Green Fields Homes, we offer you complete home service and specialize in homes of character and personal charm. Soon you can build your own home; perhaps this year. Act now. We have a plan of action for you. See this beautiful community today.

"WE WANT THE BIG ONES!"

These words, uttered by Rear Adm. Daniel J. Callaghan at the battle of Guadalcanal nearly two and a half years ago, appear today for the first time in the upper right corner of the main news section of The Tribune. They will appear there for several weeks as a slogan for patriotic Americans.

NEVER, perhaps, has the spirit of the American navy been expressed more appropriately than in the words of the late Rear Adm. Daniel J. Callaghan:

"We want the big ones!"

His determination to destroy if possible the more formidable ships of the Japanese who were opposing him before turning his attention to the lesser enemy craft was in full accord with the fine traditions of a navy that always has fought gallantly and never has quit, no matter what the odds were against it.

It was early on Nov. 13, 1942, that Admiral Callaghan went into action for the last time aboard his flagship, the heavy cruiser San Francisco, in the thrilling action that has come to be known as the battle of Guadalcanal. Officers aboard the vessels of Callaghan's force, a few cruisers and destroyers, were aware of the presence of the Japanese fleet off Guadalcanal and Savo Islands in the Solomons only 10 minutes before the action began. The enemy had crept up in the darkness of that moonless morning.

The American ships were in column formation and proceeding on a northwesterly course when the enemy was sighted in three groups approaching on an easterly course. There were two wing groups of the Japanese, leading a center group that was roughly about three miles to the rear. The San Francisco steamed directly between the two forward columns, followed by the rest of the ships of its force.

REAR ADMIRAL CALLAGHAN

The American vessels and those of the enemy opened fire simultaneously at 1:48 a. m., the San Francisco concentrating on a Japanese cruiser on the starboard beam as the searchlight rays of the opposing craft on all sides fished thru the darkness for targets. As the enemy cruiser continued on to the starboard quarter the San Francisco shifted its guns to a small cruiser or a large destroyer on its starboard bow.

Directly a Japanese battleship of the enemy's center column, unperceived before, was spotted on the starboard bow about 2,000 yards away, and Callaghan's flagship turned its guns upon the more important target, hitting it several times at this close range.

It was then that there came a comparative lull in the fighting—a lull that eyewitnesses say lasted about seven minutes. And it was during this suspense that Admiral Callaghan issued his historic order:

"We want the big ones!"

Hardly were his words flashed to the crew of the San Francisco and to the other ships of its squadron when a salvo of shells from an enemy battleship crashed into the flagship's bridge, killing Callaghan, Capt. Cassin Young, commander of the vessel, and a number of other officers and men.

Despite the damage it had suffered, the San Francisco kept on fighting, returning the fire of an enemy battleship, a cruiser, and a destroyer. The heavy fire of the San Francisco and other ships of the American force finally compelled the Japanese to break off this initial phase of the engagement and retire after 24 minutes of furious fighting.

The battle of Guadalcanal, despite considerable losses sustained by the Americans in inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, was a decisive action. Never afterward was the American position in the southern Solomons seriously threatened by the Japanese. In this engagement, which in its various phases lasted until Nov. 15, it was proved that American cruisers and destroyers could dare to slug it out with the heaviest of enemy battle craft.

"We want the big ones!" was the order that inspired our officers and sailors to victory in that memorable fight.

2-SECOND DISINTEGRATING ACTION GIVES FAST PAIN RELIEF!

Here's how Bayer Aspirin gets its 2-second disintegrating action!

3 STEPS INSTEAD OF ONE

Even though aspirin powder can be obtained from outside suppliers, it is not used in Bayer tablets. Instead, every grain of Bayer aspirin is made in Bayer's own laboratories. Similarly, even though aspirin tablets could be made from aspirin powder in its original state, Bayer scientists take three steps instead of only one:

1. Bayer makes its own aspirin powder, tests it, compresses it into giant tablets (like the one above) 18 times larger than normal.
2. These "giants" are reduced again to powder—which is passed through a fine screen.
3. After the "binder" is added the familiar Bayer tablets are made.

This painstaking 3-way operation gives Bayer Aspirin astonishingly fast disintegrating action—an action so swift Bayer Aspirin starts to work almost the instant you take it!

Here's proof that Bayer Aspirin gives you swift and sure relief from ordinary headaches, neuritic, neuralgic pain!

To prove its amazing 2-second disintegrating action, drop a Bayer tablet in water. You'll see it start disintegrating before it touches the bottom of the glass! The same thing happens in your stomach. You get fast relief because Bayer Aspirin is ready to go to work almost instantly!

Proof of Bayer Aspirin's dependability is a matter of record. It's the only aspirin used successfully by millions of people for more than forty years!

Next time you want swift, sure relief, remember to buy by name. Ask your druggist for Bayer Aspirin—never just for "aspirin" alone.

Always ask for Genuine

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: I must praise every one connected with the film "The Very Thought of You" for making it the best war problem picture in months. I sat thru this picture without squirming once and stayed to see it over again, something I haven't done since "Naughty Marietta." The photography, direction, sound, clothes, and acting just couldn't have been better. It made me feel as tho each person was interested in his job instead of just using film and names. First time I've written, so I hope I'll be lucky and see my name in print.

HARRIET CRUM.

Here's your name in print—try again some time.

Dear Miss Tinée: Can you please advise me what Frank Sinatra's last picture was? I don't believe it was "Higher and Higher." There was another one after that, I think.

(MISS) IRENE HLADIS.

Right you are. In 1944 Mr. Sinatra made "Step Lively" and "Anchors Aweigh."

Dear Mae Tinée: Can you tell me who played the male lead in a movie titled "Slim" which was filmed some years ago? If you do not have this information, can you refer me to the proper source?

W. E. H.

Pat O'Brien played the part of Red Blayd in "Slim," which was released in July, 1937.

THEY USED TO CALL HER FATTY

Almost unbelievable loss of weight is possible for most overweight people through a pleasant, absolutely harmless reducing method. While eating plenty, it is possible to take off as much as three to five unsightly pounds a week. No exercise, no starvation diet, no reducing drugs or cathartics are necessary for those who seek to regain a graceful, youthful figure. In fact, the Tremett Way is so confidently recommended that you may try Tremett without risking a penny. LET'S DANCE!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

Hollywood

THE DANCE is not only one of the seven lively arts; it's threatening to become the liveliest.

In the movies it's always an up-and-down career, if not actually tough going. Our producers have doled it out in fits and starts—a number here, a finale there—as if they were afraid we couldn't take it in more than five-minute doses. And except for the Astaire-Rogers musicals and an occasional "Cover Girl" we've had mighty few that can really be described as dancing films.

In this connection, the late Mark Sandrich was one of those rare producer-directors who had enough foresight to cry, "On with the dance!" He did the best of those delightful ballroom romances with Ginger and Fred, and just before he died he was preparing "Blue Skies," a cavalcade of hits by my old (but only in years of friendship) pal, Irving Berlin. How we shall miss Mark and his ability to transport us to a world of lilting melody!

But if Hollywood — and exceptions like Mark Sandrich only prove the rule—has failed to grasp the terrific possibilities of the dance, the rest of the country certainly hasn't. On Broadway and in the once so-called hinterlands something has been happening—something to which Hollywood cannot close its eyes much longer. Nor, with its genius for imitation, is Hollywood likely to! Out here we know a good thing when we see it; we just have to have our attention called to it by being whacked over the head maybe a couple dozen times.

What has happened, my dears, is that the dance has come into its own. And by dance I don't mean jive, altho that, my spies report, is doing all right, too. I mean—and it's perfectly safe to come right out and say it—ballet. Only it's ballet with the curse off—pantomime and jazz and the classics and the joy of living all rolled into one! An old art infused with new life, not only by the pioneering troupes which struggled so hard and long to make America dance conscious (the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Ballet theater, International ballet) but by half the sponsors of smash musical shows in Manhattan.

Today the big names are those like Agnes De Mille (who couldn't get a job in our studios, even with Uncle Cecil, one of our biggest big shots), Jerome Robbins, George Balanchine, and David Lichine, among choreographers, and Leonard Bernstein, brilliant young composer of "Fancy Free" and "On the Town." There are ballets in "Oklahoma," "Bloomer Girl," "One Touch of Venus," "Song of Norway," "Up in Central Park," "La Vie Parisienne," and "Carmen Jones." Anton Dolin and Alicia Markova are demonstrating terpsichore in Billy Rose's "Seven Lively Arts." Vera Zorina, that gorgeous, elflike creature, is posing in Shakespeare's "The Tempest." And Ruth Page and Sgt. Bentley Stone have set New York town—and Commissioner Moss—on their respective ears with a sensational interpretation of — what do you think? None other than that fine old piece of Americana, "Frankie and Johnny."

Sooner or later motion pictures and the dance are bound to get together. The very soul of both is rhythm. In one sense they already have. Isn't Walt Disney the greatest creator of rhythm of them all? And we've had our "numbers" and our "specialties" by Veloz and Yolanda, the De Marcos, Carmen Amaya, the Hartmans, Katharine Dunham, and countless others. We've even had a short or two with the Ballet Russe. And we've had Astaire, Gene Kelly, Jimmy Cagney, George Murphy, and that spectacular leaper Marc Platt of "Tonight and Every Night."

Our dancing daughters have been few but precious—Rita Hayworth, Betty Grable, Ann Miller, Ruby Keeler, Eleanor Powell, Ginger (of course), and little Joan McCracken, who highlighted "Hollywood Canteen" with her "Ballet in Jive" (but Warners let her go back to New York—and "Bloomer Girl").

Oddly enough, we have been more successful with the home-grown variety. The professional danseuse has never really clicked. And that holds true all the way from Anna Pavlowa (who I'll bet you didn't know acted in a picture entitled "The Dumb Girl of Portici" as far back as 1916) thru the Irina Baronova of Winnie Sheehan's "Florian" five years ago to the Zorina and Toumanova of today. In "Days of Glory," her one film under the auspices of Casey Robinson (and presumably he had her best interests at heart), Toumanova wasn't permitted to dance at all!

I doubt if many of you even remember that lovely Marilyn Miller did camera versions of her two great musicals, "Sunny" and "Sally." That was in 1930. The Brothers Warner had just invented the vitaphone and weren't quite sure what to do with it, as a result of which "Sunny," "Sally," and Marilyn all suffered. The fragile beauty fared somewhat better in "Her Majesty, Love" shortly before her untimely death, but never in a manner comparable with her brilliant triumphs in the theater. For that matter, neither did Ann Pennington.

Vera-Ellen and Danny Kaye do a Basin street version of a Balinese dance in "Wonder Man."

Except for the Astaire-Rogers musicals (such as "Follow the Fleet," above), we've had few productions that really were dancing films.

I was reminded of Marilyn the other day when I had the pleasure of watching a sequence from "Wonder Man," Danny Kaye's new one for Sam Goldwyn. Danny wasn't in it, but Vera-Ellen was. She sang and danced a number called "I'm So in Love." Sam hired her without even making a screen test after he'd caught her in "A Connecticut Yankee," and this time I'm betting on his judgment. Vera-Ellen (the last name is Rohe) is not only petite and blonde as Marilyn was, but she can put over a song with refreshing charm, and she's a dancin' fool. In fact, she made me think of that bouncing ball we used to sing to in the cartoons. You'll want to sing to Vera-Ellen, too.

If Warners ever get around to making that Marilyn Miller film they'll be wise to have a look at Vera-Ellen.

Incidentally, Goldwyn, who's something of a wonder himself, has already snapped up Jerome Robbins, who staged the dances for "On the Town," to design num-

Japan's Fatal Weakness

Revealing the Natural Deficiencies That Illustrate Fallacy of Her Military Hopes

By GLENN THOMAS TREWARTHA

(Professor of Geography at the University of Wisconsin.)

Small mountain-girt alluvial plain in Japan, covered with irregular rice fields—giving appearance of island to the rural village. (Photo by Glenn T. Trewartha)

THE AUTHOR AND THE STORY

● This is the second of a series of two articles on the geographic features of Japan which militate against her success as an aggressive world power. In the first article Prof. Trewartha discussed the topographical features, the infertile soil, the "almost fatal weakness in minerals" that is Japan's lot. The author has spent more than 20 years in his investigation and twice resided in Japan for extended periods. He now is serving as adviser to the army and as lecturer for its civil affairs training schools at the University of Chicago and Northwestern university. He is professor of geography at the University of Wisconsin. Prof. Trewartha's book "Japan, a Physical, Cultural, and Regional Geography" (University of Wisconsin Press, $5) is the source of the illustrations used with these articles.

JAPAN has been occupied by a civilized people for more than a millennium and a half, so that the land bears an indelible imprint of long tenure. The crowding of many men on little land is a dominant feature of Nippon and the works of men's hands are ultra-conspicuous. The present cultural scene is an incongruous one in many respects. Upon a base composed of feudal oriental forms there has been hastily and unconformably superimposed elements of a modern occidental machine-age civilization. Japan emerged only three-quarters of a century ago from a state of oriental feudalism, so that except for the downtown sections of a few great cities the ancient and indigenous features still prevail. Among the rural people the ways and standards of living are not much different from those prevailing under the Tokugawa shoguns.

The modern Japanese are a mixture of several racial strains, altho basically both in race and in fundamentals of culture they are of Mongoloid stock. From the south by way of the Ryukyu Islands came the earliest migrations, to be followed by subsequent invasions from northern China and Korea. The third element that entered into the compounding of the present Japanese people was the Ainu group, the aboriginal Caucasoid inhabitants of the islands at the time of the earliest Mongoloid invasions. The southern Oceanic element appears to dominate in the mixture, and this preponderance of the southern strains has far-reaching effects, for the whole mode of Japanese living—dwellings, clothes, and food—is closely adjusted to a rainy tropical or subtropical climate. Modern Japanese ways of living are less well adapted to cold northerly latitudes than they are to the constant summer of the regions nearer the equator.

The two outstanding features of Japan's population are: (1) the rapid increase in total numbers, and (2) the continuous migration from rural areas to the cities, particularly during the last few decades. For a century and a half prior to the restoration of the emperor in 1868 Japan's population had remained nearly constant at about thirty million. In view of the inefficient feudal agricultural economy that prevailed, this was about the maximum number of people that could be supported. The Meiji restoration in 1868 inaugurated a steady and spectacular growth of population which has continued almost to the present time. In 1940 it had reached 73,000,000. In the decade 1925-'35 the average annual increase in population was not far from a million, which is greater than that for the United States or for all western and northwestern Europe, where the population is two to three times as great. This is a rapid rate of increase but not an abnormal one, for it corresponds to that in the western world 50 to 75 years ago. It seems unusually large only because it comes at a time when population growth has begun to level off in many western countries.

Since 1930 there has been a steady decline in the birth rate in Japan, but despite this there was no corresponding falling off in the annual increment of population. The reason is that the mortality rate has declined more rapidly than the birth rate. During the last half of the '30s decade, as the Sino-Japanese conflict began to make itself felt and the war industries crowded more and more people into the great cities, the population increase slowed down markedly. Official circles became alarmed and plans were approved by the Japanese cabinet for stimulating the falling birth rate. It seems somewhat incongruous for a nation which proclaims its need for more room and resources because of its large population, and which attempts to justify its territorial robberies in eastern Asia on these grounds, to encourage reproduction by offering bonuses and bribes. Clearly the Japanese leaders are more impressed with the military handicap of a numerically inferior population than with the probable benefits of a declining birth rate.

Of unusual importance is the much greater relative growth of urban as compared with rural population. In the two decades 1920-'40 rural population (those living in communities of less than 10,000) remained practically stationary, so that the entire increase of 17,200,000 was absorbed by the cities, chiefly those of over 100,000. By 1940 nearly one-fifth of the nation's people were concentrated in the six largest cities (Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Osaka, Kobe, Kyoto). This reflects the increasing importance of industry and trade in Japan's economy and suggests that agricultural expansion and intensification has reached a ceiling. It will be impossible for Japan to support her population in the post-war period without again resorting to manufacturing and trade, which in turn necessitates access to raw materials and to world markets. The extraordinarily rapid rural-urban migration of the last few decades has numerous far-reaching effects, not the least of these being upon health and sanitation conditions and upon birth and mortality rates.

In 1940 Japan proper had a population density of about 500 per square mile. This was more than 11 times the density of the United States, higher than that of Germany, and nearly equal to that of industrial Britain. But even this figure of 500 per square mile is an underestimate of real density because of the prevalence of hill and mountain land, so little of which is closely settled. Only 20 per cent of the total area is classed as potentially cultivable, and only 16 per cent is actually under cultivation. This is not meant to imply that the rough lands are without some resource value, however. If cultivated area is substituted for total area in the denominator of man-over-land fraction, we arrive at the almost unbelievable figure of 3,000 persons per square mile of tilled land—the highest for any country of the earth. Even if agricultural population alone is considered, the density is still 1,200 to 1,300 per square mile. There is no question that Japan's chief national problem is one of supporting this unusually dense and rapidly increasing population in a small territory, poor in essential resources. The population problem has, on the other hand, been greatly aggravated by the maintenance of national policies inconsistent with the country's scarcity of resources. The whole economy of Japan is designed to benefit a few already wealthy groups and to build an invincible

Stands Super Heat of Jet Plane Engines...

Now part of the secret can be told—how the new jet plane was developed with its meteoric speed and climbing power...

The jet plane has no conventional engine...

It needs no propellers...

It is literally blown through space by firing compressed gases that blast out through a tube behind the engine.

The simple idea of jet propulsion is old, centuries old. Yet men have spent their lives trying but failing to make it work—repeatedly frustrated by lack of suitable metals.

Every metal tried was rapidly attacked and destroyed by the blast of fiery gases. But there was always the hope that sometime metallurgists would develop high-strength alloys that could endure such destructive heat without melting, warping, or burning away. Today that hope is realized.

To withstand the high temperatures of the jet engine combustion, designers have chosen high-Nickel alloys as the most suitable materials for vital parts.

...just as it stands up to heat in home appliances

The heating element in your electric stove, or toaster, is another example of Nickel's proven ability to resist heat. In this, and dozens of other ways, versatile Nickel is your "unseen friend"—as much a part of your daily life as the hot water tank in your basement or the gears in your car.

REDUCE 20 pounds or more yet eat plenty!

- Absolutely Harmless!
- No Exercise!
- No Reducing Drugs!

MEN and women all over this country are reporting remarkable results in losing weight easily. Many lost 20 pounds and more. They are following the Easy Reducing Plan of Dr. Edward Parrish, well-known physician and editor, former chief of a U. S. military hospital and state public health officer.

Dr. Parrish's Easy Reducing Plan makes reducing a pleasure because it has NO STRICT DIETS, requires no exercises. HARMLESS, too, because it calls for no reducing drugs.

Here is Dr. Parrish's Easy Reducing Plan EXACTLY as given over the air to millions: For lunch take 2 teaspoonfuls of CAL-PAR in a glass of juice, water or any beverage. Take nothing else for lunch except a cup of coffee, if desired. For breakfast and dinner EAT AS YOU USUALLY DO, but eat sensibly. Don't cut out fatty, starchy foods—just cut down on them. By following Dr. Parrish's Easy Reducing Plan, you cut down your daily caloric intake, thus losing weight naturally. You needn't suffer a single hungry moment. CAL-PAR is not a harmful reducing drug. It is a special dietary product, fortifying your diet with certain essential minerals and vitamins. Most overweight people are helped by Dr. Parrish's Easy Reducing Plan. Try it and your friends will marvel at the vast improvement in your figure.

THE QUESTION BOX!

By SHEILA JOHN DALY
(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

HERE COME the questions and answers again, kids. The first one:

Q.—I am a junior in high school and have liked a boy for over two years. He was graduated last year and during the year I dated him several times. Then suddenly he stopped speaking to me, passed me in the halls without a word, and I couldn't understand why.

"Later he began to speak to me again, and we became quite good friends, tho he ceased to ask me for dates. He is leaving for the army soon, and I do want to date him before he goes. If I don't have a date with him before that time do you think I should write to him? I do want him to be my friend.

A.—Any temperamental joe who is rude enough to just "stop talking" to a girl isn't worth worrying about as a friend. Let him worry about getting you for a friend. The value of male friendship has gone up with other war time inflation. Just try to keep your own standards till some of these big deal jacksons come down below ceiling.

Q.—I have been dating one girl for nearly a year now, and since we live almost next door, we see each other almost every evening. I am 18 and so is she, and neither of us has ever dated another fellow or girl. We have gone steady for about 10 months, but our friends tell us we are foolish and that we shouldn't make up our minds before we date more.

I can't see this. We enjoy the same things in life, and, most important, we enjoy each other's company. I expect to leave for the air corps soon and cannot make up my mind whether it is wiser to stop going steady before that time or just let things drift along.

A.—When you are in the air corps your love life will just "drift along"—so why not wait to see how it gets along when you're not home to guide it? You think you love this particular honey chile, so why let a thing like war come between you? When you are away you will be lonesome, not your friends who urge your giving the gal the brush-off. You're old enough to know your own heart—be sure you don't break it.

Q.—I'm only 17, but feel about 40. You see, I had been going for almost a year with a boy who is now in service, but he ditched me—that's the best word for it. I knew he liked me, and I took advantage of it—pretended to be angry when I wasn't, sulked, etc. Then suddenly he just stopped calling me and I saw him only once every three weeks just before he went into service. He hasn't written to me since he left.

I can't say that I blame him, for I realize now how stubborn I was. Johnnie is always on my mind and I automatically compare him with every other fellow I date.

A.—You might try one careful letter to this G. I. johnnie, without apologies or wordy explanations, just to let him know that you've finally grown up. Try to make the letter friendly—just the kind of letter he might expect from the gal he used to like. (Come out from behind that conscience. You're still the girl, you know.) He might forget your stubbornness in remembering how wonderful you are.

Q.—I'm just an average girl, growing up in the average way. I have many friends and no troubles—except one. I've been going with a boy for almost a year and a half, tho not steady—it was just one of those things. At first it was all moonlight and roses.

Then it came—that third party who helps form that well known triangle. She told him things about me that weren't true—things that made him believe I was becoming too serious about him. Of course he got scared, but instead of telling me about it, as we had both promised, he told her he didn't care for me any longer. Naturally, she told me. We didn't speak to each other for two months. Finally he came over one evening and apologized. He told me that he thought he didn't like me any longer, but that he was wrong. He wanted everything to be just like it used to be. But it isn't like that any more. Should I be content and give him time and hope things will change, or is there something I can do about it right away?

A.—There is something you can do—but you won't want to do it. Find yourself another boy, some one to date in between, before Joe Blow realizes for the second time that he "doesn't care for you" any longer. It's hard to back-track on a good dream, and once a boy has come in off cloud 8 it's hard for him to reconstruct that old and wonderful feeling "just as it used to be." You've been hurt once—don't wait around for that knock-out left jab to the heart.

Q.—After reading a number of articles about what girls should and should not wear I've decided to have my say about what fellows should and should not wear.

First of all, a fellow should also be obliged to be neat and well groomed. I do not like the current fad of pointed shoes and jackets that have all the girls' names on them. We don't expect "Sunday best," but neither do we like trousers turned up more than one cuff, plaid shirts worn tail out, and ghastly striped sweat shirts.

We don't like boys who wear baggy pants and unpressed coats; we don't like two-tone shirts and dress shirts without neckties—but why not ask the opinions of other girls on fellows' clothes?

A.—All right, this is it. What is your opinion of fellows' clothes? Send them in; we'll sort them out and let the fellows know just what they have to wear to become attractive to gals—the well dressed Van Johnson, j. g.

For You—An Important Discussion of Jazz!

Stan Kenton . . . center of controversy.

I AM indebted to a Mr. Jay Harris for today's text. His comments on me and on jazz make an excellent starting point for an announcement of especial interest to you all. In the March-April issue of Jazz Session Mr. Harris says: "Biggest blunder to appear in the newspapers concerning jazz appeared in The Chicago Tribune, where as record reviewer (and maybe you could label him as a 'critic,' altho we shouldn't waste such a lavish word on him) was Will Davidson, who throws the word 'jazz' around quite viciously—it was in his Feb. 18 column that he gave it gloriously to Stan Kenton as being 'true to jazz.'" Mr. Harris accents a basic controversy that is both good and bad for jazz. Too few persons really understand the importance of jazz. It is a major contribution to the world's music, and it is a contribution built firmly on the foundation of the instinctive cultural talents of the Negroes. In peculiarly favorable settings, jazz developed as the inevitable outgrowth of the Negro's need for artistic expression. Its roots go far back and draw life from the finest musical heritage.

Today jazz is a many-faceted thing. It is impossible to find agreement on a limiting definition. But if it is to flourish, those men who know jazz and create it must be encouraged. And, equally important, we must somehow widen its appeal, extend its influence. When I say Stan Kenton is "true to jazz" I am saying that of the commercial band leaders today he comes closer than most to adapting principles of true jazz to modern music. That I know he does not play as pure jazz as, say, Kid Ory is too obvious to need explanation except to the most captious. But I strongly feel that jazz needs sincere experimenters, sincere promoters. I am glad that there are magazines like Jazz Sessions to fight for what they feel is the only acceptable jazz. We need controversy; more, we need widespread knowledge and understanding of jazz. That is why I am so happy to announce today that the text of a speech by Dr. S. I. Hayakawa on the history of jazz has been made available free to all readers of "RECORDially Yours." It is one of the finest brief statements on the meaning of jazz I have ever seen. It is yours, and I urge you to send for it. You will find the details in the coupon at the right of this article.

HOW TO GET YOUR COPY

● In order to obtain your copy of "Reflections on the History of Jazz," send your name and address to Frank Wheeler, Illinois Institute of Technology, 3300 Federal st., Chicago 16. It will be sent to you free of charge. A coupon is attached for your convenience.

● The author, Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, has been associate professor of English at the institute for several years. His growing interest in the culture of the district in which the institute is located led to his discovery that jazz is a "tremendously important cultural contribution" that the Negroes have been making to the world. Dr. Hayakawa conducts a column of general interest in the Chicago Defender and is active in the coöperative movement. His interest in jazz stems in part from an early interest in folklore of European countries. He is the author of two books, "Oliver Wendell Holmes," a critical study, and, best known, "Language in Action."

BY ASSEMBLING recognizable parts of a number of German V2 rocket bombs that have descended on England, experts of the British air ministry, according to the March-April (1945) number of Army Ordnance, official publication of the American Army Ordnance association, have been able to determine how the rocket bombs are constructed and operated. The V2 is a sharply pointed, streamlined projectile 45 feet long and 5½ feet in diameter. With its one ton warhead and load of fuel it weighs about 13½ tons.

Its main components are: The one ton warhead (about the same as that in the V1 buzz bomb); a control compartment; two aluminum tanks holding 7,500 pounds of alcohol and 11,000 pounds of liquid oxygen respectively; a turbine and pump assembly, with a gas generator to drive the turbine; a large combustion chamber and venturi into which the alcohol and oxygen are forced thru jets; and two sets of control vanes, one set operating internally in the jet stream and the other on the edges of the stabilizing fins.

In launching, the V2 rocket bomb is stood vertically on a concrete platform. Then the turbine, which is driven by superheated steam created by mixing concentrated hydrogen peroxide with a solution of calcium permanganate, is started and drives the pumps. The pumps in turn force the liquid oxygen and alcohol into the combustion chamber. This mixture is ignited by electricity and the rocket takes off. The products of combustion are forced at high speed thru the orifice in the rear end of a venturi (a type of tube with flaring ends). The energy thus liberated produces a thrust of 26 tons, which propels the rocket upward at high velocity.

After the V2 has traveled upward vertically for a short time a gyroscope operates the control vanes and curves the projectile toward the target until it is pointing upward at an angle of about 45 degrees about one minute after launching. At this point the fuel is cut off and the rocket is moving at a speed of about 3,000 miles an hour. It continues up thru the stratosphere to a height of about 60 miles and finally descends, following the same parabolic path a shell would take.

The V2 has a range of about 200 miles, the descriptive article in Army Ordnance concludes, and the time of flight from launching to impact is about five minutes. Since the rocket's speed is much greater than that of sound, it cannot be heard until after it has landed and exploded.

"GOD IS MY CO-PILOT"

Starring

DENNIS MORGAN

2 That day finally comes and Scott (Dennis Morgan) is sent from West Point to Randolph field for flight training. He wins his wings and a bride, Catherine (Andrea King).

1 One of the most energetic boys in Macon, Ga., Robert Lee Scott Jr. (Bobby Burroughs), risks his young life in umbrella jumps and home-made gliders, hoping some day to be a flyer.

3 At left: Scott flies the mail, he flies the jungle; and when the Japs attack Pearl Harbor he gets an assignment to India and eventually to the Flying Tigers under General Chennault (Raymond Massey).

4 Under wise General Chennault, Scott learns the special fighting tricks of the Tigers, and becomes known as "the one-man air force."

5 One bit of sanity he finds amid the chaos of war—"Big Mike" Harrigan (Alan Hale), a missionary priest. To Big Mike he reveals his worries as to what war and killing will do to him as a human being.

6 Scott's answer comes when a storm forces down his plane, in which he is taking Big Mike to a mission outpost. They are saved by a miracle.

7 Grateful Chinese rescue them and pay honor to the American pilot who already has downed 13 Japs and received China's highest award.

8 Armed with his new knowledge that God is his co-pilot, so to speak, Scott returns to his group and carries on the war in the air. (THE END)

PIGS IN NEW BLANKETS!

By MARY MEADE

YOU'VE probably made "pigs in blankets" by wrapping sausages in baking powder biscuit dough, then baking them. Even more appetizing are frankfurters blanketed with a tomato-flavored yeast dough and baked a light golden brown.

Serve a jellied cucumber and radish salad with the frankfurter rolls, and add creamed fresh asparagus as your green vegetable. For dessert, fresh pineapple, or strawberries and cream. There's a really appealing spring meal for you!

FRANKFURTERS IN TOMATO ROLLS
(One dozen)

2 cakes compressed yeast (or 1 household size package)
1 tablespoon sugar
¾ cup tomato juice
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon onion juice
3 tablespoons melted lard or drippings
2⅛ cups sifted flour
1 egg
12 frankfurters
Grated sharp cheese, minced parsley

Crumble yeast into bowl and add sugar and tomato juice heated just to lukewarm. When yeast has softened (in about five minutes) add salt, onion juice, and lukewarm fat. Add half the flour and beat several minutes. Add remaining flour with egg and beat until mixture is smooth and shiny. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk. Roll dough on lightly floured board to a circle about ¼ inch thick. Brush with fat, sprinkle with grated sharp cheese and minced fresh parsley. Cut circle of dough, pie fashion, into 12 wedges. Roll each piece of dough around a frankfurter, starting at wide end. Place on greased baking sheet with pointed ends underneath. Brush with melted fat. Let rise until double in bulk and bake 12 to 15 minutes in a hot oven, 400 degrees.

Other interesting ways in which to serve frankfurters include as a topping on a vegetable casserole, baked or broiled, heated in a barbecue sauce, sliced and scalloped with potatoes or other vegetables.

TURN IN WASTE FATS!

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

CHOCOLATE ANGEL PIE
(Serves six)

CRUST:
2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup sugar
½ cup finely-chopped nuts (optional)
½ teaspoon vanilla

FILLING:
4 ounces sweet chocolate
3 tablespoons hot water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup cream or evaporated milk

Beat egg whites until foamy. Add salt and cream of tartar and beat until mixture stands in peaks but is not dry. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until very stiff. Fold in nuts and vanilla. Pour into a greased nine inch pie plate and smooth batter over bottom and sides of plate. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, 50 to 60 minutes. Cool. Melt chocolate and blend well with hot water. When cool add vanilla and fold into whipped cream or evaporated milk. Pour into meringue shell and chill.—CAROLYN H. EISOLD, 1537 Blocki ct., Sheboygan, Wis.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Tuscaloosa, Ala.

SO FAR as this observer is concerned the co-eds—and this year there are 2,000 of them—at the University of Alabama offer final proof of the truth of the legend that southern girls generally are better groomed, better mannered, and better schooled in attractiveness of personality than their sisters in any other section of the country. There is a pattern at all colleges and universities. At Alabama the pattern, the fashion, the unwritten law—or whatever you want to call it—seems to popularize, for the women, not only the development of the brain but the practice of poise, good grooming, and beautiful, gracious manners. We like it.

And many other things about "the Capstone," as it's popularly known, because it served as the capstone of Alabama's educational system. Opened in 1831, 12 years before Alabama was admitted to the Union, the university of that time was probably modeled after Jefferson's pattern for the University of Virginia. But Alabama adopted the military system—and that in part periled its existence during and after the Civil war. During the last year of the war federal troops poured into Tuscaloosa for two purposes—to destroy the manufacturing centers there for clothing and ammunition and to destroy thoroly and relentlessly the university which was furnishing good soldiers and officers to the Confederacy.

Library, classrooms, offices, equipment—all were destroyed, except the president's house, a small observatory, and one tiny building which had no important purpose. The president's house, which had been saved by the pleas and the adamant courage of the war time president's wife, is still in use—an ante-bellum jewel of architectural beauty.

Alabama's present plant is an ideal blend of efficiency, handsomeness, and southern beauty. Right now, of course, its enrollment is well down below its peak figure of 5,500, but it expects to reach even larger totals after the war. It will shortly open a medical center in Birmingham. It has already graduated two veterans.

There is a comfortable, casual atmosphere at Alabama. The dogs, for instance. There must be dozens of them—at home, in the classrooms, the union, on the sunny steps of most of the buildings. And the friendliness which is general among faculty and students alike. But it is an alert university, of tremendous educational importance and activity to its state, and its friendly, drawling students get things done, too. The girls, for example, who are in its junior hostess corps, which has functioned since 1943 at the near-by Northington General hospital, do a consistent and admirable kind of war work, devoting in rotation a Sunday afternoon and a Friday evening to the injured soldiers.

USE YOUR SCENTS

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

FROM the sales record for 1944 on perfume consumption you'd almost believe that women bathe in it, use it for cocktails, dilute their dishwater with it—the figures are so overpowering.

While some women know all the tricks of making it work its magic with the potency intended, some still are in the dark about its application.

With a beflowered hat and flattering veil, a sweetly insistent scent, fragile yet tantalizing, should make you feel e'en more the poetic dream.

A pungent scent, exciting, would be the choice for the sailor or new cloche hat. It's a young looking hat, and the vibrant perfume promises a brighter outlook, the young outlook.

Then, for the moment when one dares to wear clothes that are different, sophisticated, a smoky, smoldering perfume, as sophisticated to the costume, would be the right complement.

The quiet, lingering fragrance of a jasmine type perfume adds to the ladylike atmosphere of classic design clothes.

"Whichever type perfume a woman chooses," says one of the leading American perfumers, "its effectiveness depends on how she uses, when she uses it. Like the dress or suit, it must be worn in the proper manner. Like her accents of scarf, hat, handbag, a woman's perfume must be subtle rather than flamboyant, suitable to the occasion on which she wears it. Too much perfume at one time is offensive; too little is ineffectual.

Perfume on handkerchiefs is almost a must for every well groomed woman. Place the scent inside elbow, behind knees, inside wrist, on the neck.

Never use it on clothes or furs. The dyes in wearing apparel very often change the scent of the perfume. Also the alcohol of the perfume often affects the dye and other chemical ingredients of rayons, which tends to discolor the cloth.

Wear perfume every day, all day. It's as much a part of every day grooming as lipstick, for it helps a woman's own self-confidence, making her more attractive to herself as well as to others.

Nothing lasts forever; neither does perfume. When it starts to fade on the skin, more should be applied—more of the same scent.

At left: A pungent scent, exciting, would be the choice for the sailor hat. It's a young looking hat, and the vibrant perfume accents the young outlook.

MISS AMERICA

She was born and raised practically across the street from one of Hollywood's biggest studios, but Rosemary La Planche had to be judged the most beautiful girl in America before the movies gave her a break. She won her first beauty prize when she was 11 years old and from then on practically made beauty contests her career. She studied dancing, singing, acting, and won nearly 75 local and national contests before the climactic one that made her Miss America.

Then followed two years of glorification by commercial artists and theater appearances as a dancer. When RKO signed her they put her thru a seasoning course of small parts, gave her her first good break in Lum 'n' Abner's "Two Weeks to Live." Soon you'll see her in "Having Wonderful Crime."

Rosemary is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, has a 24 inch waist, 34 bust, 36 hips. She's just 20.

JAPAN'S FATAL WEAKNESS

military power. A nation that spends so much of its income on armaments will naturally have less for the welfare of its people. Japan cannot afford both military preëminence and a high standard of living for her population.

Within Japan there is a general decrease of population north of latitudes 37° or 38°. In these regions the increasingly severe climate makes living conditions harder and land less productive, particularly for a people strongly bound to subtropical agriculture and housing. South of latitude 37° there is a very marked concentration along the Pacific side of the country in an irregular belt about 800 miles long reaching from Tokyo on the northeast to about Nagasaki on the southwest. This is the most urban and industrial part of the country, contains its modern and ancient capitals and its most important ports. Over the country as a whole the population distribution pattern is a very discontinuous, fragmented, or clotted one, with the dense clusters almost perfectly coincident in both size and shape with the alluvium-floored lowlands. It is almost possible to reconstruct the relief pattern of Japan from a detailed population map.

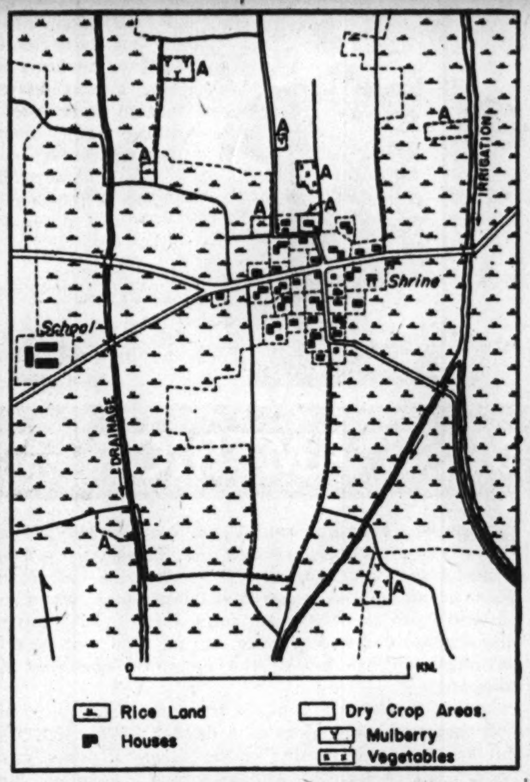
Agriculture employs 40-45 per cent of the Japanese population, represents nearly half the nation's invested capital, is an important element in foreign trade, and provides more than 80 per cent of the nation's staple food. There can be no doubt that agriculture is vital in the Japanese economy. Yet rural Japan presents a picture of frugality, impoverishment, economic distress, and social unrest. The fundamental reasons for this unhealthy situation are the scarcity of agricultural land, a condition which cannot be greatly improved, together with such remediable factors as absentee land ownership, the heavy and disproportionate tax load borne by agriculture, the huge indebtedness accompanied by exorbitant interest rates, and an agricultural income largely dependent upon two products, rice and cocoons, the prices of which fluctuate greatly.



Lay-out of a representative Japanese farm. Farmer A lives in a small rural village. He has eight scattered parcels of land. The most distant fields are about a mile from his dwelling. (After Nasu.)

Over the last three or four decades the area of cultivated land has increased only very slowly—from 1905 to 1939 about 242,000 cho (1 cho equals 2.45 acres), or 4.6 per cent. Very little agricultural land remains to be reclaimed, and what little there is is of poor quality. Thus while Germany, France, and Italy are able to cultivate 40-45 per cent of their total area, hilly Japan has only 16 per cent of its area under tillage. With nearly 5 million farm families and only 14-15 million acres of cultivable land, the average Japanese farm family has a plot of only 2.7 acres to cultivate. This is only one-thirtieth the size of the average cultivated farm unit in the United States.

The characteristic Japanese farm of two to three acres is not a single compact plot, but is composed of several little unfenced parcels, scattered in many directions from the village where the peasant farmer lives. Unlike an American farmer, who lives somewhat isolated on his individual farm, the Japanese peasant usually resides in a little hamlet or village of farmers.

Altho agriculture in Nippon is extremely intensive in character, it is on the other hand relatively unscientific. Much of the work is done by hand and nearly one-half of the farmers have neither an ox nor a horse. The number of agricultural workers averages slightly more than one per acre. Medium-grade rice land is priced at about $1,000 per acre. A number of common agricultural practices testify to the scarcity of tillable land and the resulting intensiveness of farming. Striking to a foreigner's eye are the artificially terraced hillsides, where the tiny fields rise one above the other for hundreds of feet in the form of great stairs. Only by the most arduous labor has this terracing been accomplished. Multiple cropping of fields is a widespread practice thruout subtropical Japan, so that two or more harvests are obtained from the same plot during a year. Not infrequently multiple cropping is accomplished by interculture methods, a kind of simultaneous rotation in which alternate rows of different crops sown at different times are grown together in the same field. Such an intensive use of the land can be maintained only by frequent and abundant applications of fertilizer. In recent years about 35 per cent of the total cash expenditures of the farming population has been for fertilizer. Especially noteworthy is the extent to which human excrement or "night soil" is used for fertilizer, amounting to over half as much as animal manures.

Japan's agriculture is a subsistence type based upon the raising of cereals for home consumption, nearly 75 per cent of the crop area being in cereals. Animal industries and pastures play an insignificant role. Japan is one small unit of the earth's greatest rice growing region, the monsoon lands of southeastern Asia, where over 95 per cent of the world's rice crop is produced. In 1937 rice occupied about 53 per cent of the total cultivated area in Japan and it normally represents 55 to 60 per cent of the value of farm products. Nearly all the rice is of the irrigated paddy variety, so that there is a high coincidence between rice distribution and the flattish alluvial plains. For a crop requiring months of inundation, sloping sites are not satisfactory. On the flattish plains multitudes of diminutive fields, usually irregular in outline and each inclosed by tiny dikes a foot or more wide and of similar elevation, form a landscape which is a faceted mosaic in pattern. Most of Japan's rice is started in seedbeds and the young seedlings later set out in the larger paddy fields, altho the latter may not be more than the size of a tennis court. Thirty-five to 40 per cent of the rice fields are replanted to winter crops of cereals or green manure crops.

The combined acreages of the small grains—wheat, barley, naked barley, and oats—amounts to about one-half that of rice. Oats is a crop of the northern island, Hokkaido, and is spring sown. The other grains are also spring sown in Hokkaido, but farther south they are very largely fall sown. Vegetables are an increasingly important group of crops in Japan, with sweet potatoes, beans, white potatoes, and daikon (giant radish) ranking among the most important single crops. Mulberry, the exclusive food of silkworms, is by all odds the most important nonfood crop in Japan, occuying nearly 9 per cent of the total cultivated

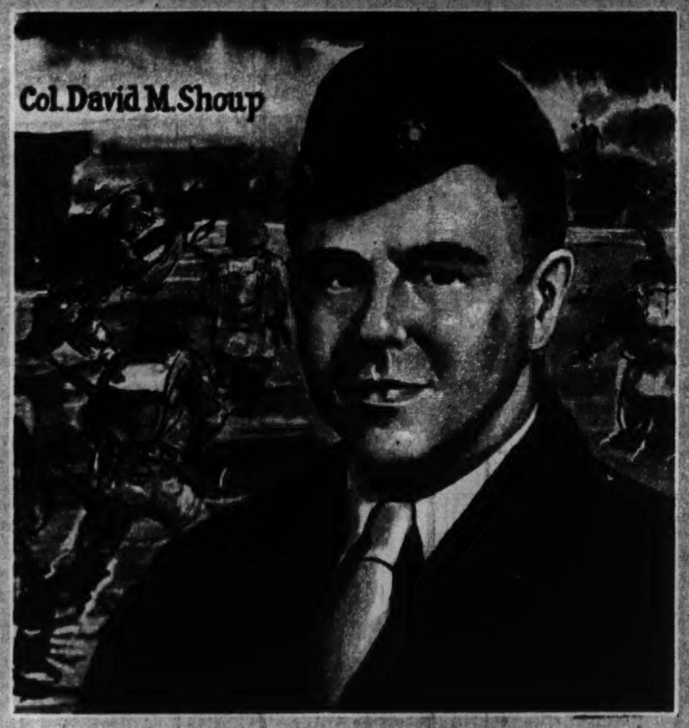
AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.



This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of the present war. Subjects for the series are chosen from among heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Varnak.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

AMERICAN marines had just come within range of Japanese fire at bloody Betio Island in the battle of Tarawa a year ago last November when one of their leaders, Col. David M. Shoup of Covington, Ind., was seriously wounded by the explosion of a Japanese shell. He had reached a pier extending some distance from the shore when he was hit.

Colonel Shoup previously had suffered a painful leg wound which had become infected. Despite his injuries, however, he fearlessly exposed himself to terrific artillery and machine gun fire from hostile shore emplacements, rallied his troops by his own inspiring heroism, and gallantly led them across the fringing reefs of the island. At the head of his men he charged the enemy and helped carry their fortified positions.

He was largely responsible, according to a navy citation, for the final defeat of the Japanese at Tarawa.

On Jan. 22 of this year Colonel Shoup was awarded the medal of honor (congressional medal), the presentation being made in Washington by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal. Present at the ceremony were the marine hero's wife and two children.

Colonel Shoup was born in the village of Battle Ground, Ind., and was graduated from DePauw university with the class of 1926. He was the 25th marine to win the medal of honor.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

This black standard poodle with the fancy haircut is Ch. Estid Jason of Russmah, photographed at a recent dog show.

ALTHO many dog owners may feel that they are competent to diagnose some of the minor ailments which their pets have, when it comes to figuring out those baffling skin troubles known as dry eczema, moist eczema, follicular mange, and sarcoptic mange we've always thought it wise to get a decision from a veterinarian before attempting treatment.

Judging from the many letters we receive from owners who are treating their dogs for skin irritations and not having much success, the common diagnosis is "red mange." Pity the poor dog that gets his skin coated with a "mange cure" when he most likely has one of the numerous types of eczema.

Eczema is another word loosely used to describe a wide field of skin irritations. One veterinarian tells us that almost any skin trouble that isn't contagious may roughly be classed as an eczema. Some of our dogs have had mild cases of eczema, probably due to inactivity and overfeeding in a kennel. At least that's about the nearest any one can come to the cause of it. Your veterinarian will tell you that causes behind an eczematous condition are numerous. We have had one of the most skilled veterinarians we know tell us frankly that he didn't know exactly why our Labrador developed a dry eczema. But we followed the treatment he recommended and the animal soon got back to normal.

There is a dry and also a moist eczema. Moist eczema appears in patches like the dry, but the patches are raw and red. A clumber spaniel which we owned several years ago flared up a couple of times with this type of skin trouble. The veterinarian treated the dog internally as well as externally. We've been fortunate in that in every case of skin trouble in our dogs recovery has been accomplished within a fairly short time. But when we hear about the trouble some owners encounter in treating eczema in their pets it's evident that some cases can be very stubborn.

Just to make it very tough for the amateur diagnostician who wants to figure out all these baffling skin ailments, true mange may look much like dry eczema, and vice versa. That's why we believe it pays to have a veterinarian look over a dog developing a skin irritation, because the veterinarian may want to take a skin scraping and look at it under a microscope. That will tell him whether it's true mange or some other form of skin trouble.

When summer comes, and with it lush growths of vegetation, some dogs get a type of skin trouble that seems to be due to their running, playing, and rolling in the grass.. From the grass they pick up a tiny fungus plant which may irritate the skin. We know of one wire-haired terrier that has a bad time every summer because it apparently is allergic to some type of vegetation or pollen. This wire is miserable for a while, with inflamed eyes, and his nose is affected much like a person with hay fever. To make the poor pet even more uncomfortable, he develops this "summer" skin trouble. Such an irritation, with inflamed patches on the skin, falling hair, and other obvious symptoms, is being treated successfully with a remedy prepared in an oily base which clears it up. We tried this remedy last spring when we noticed that our Labrador had a big inflamed patch on her stomach. This spread up to her breast, and as it increased in size and intensity the hair came out.

This dog had slept just one night on straw that had got damp, so it was a perfect medium for producing a fungus growth apparently the cause of many of these summer skin irritations. We had a veterinarian examine the inflamed area of skin. He was quite sure that the trouble was due to a fungus growth in the old straw, altho he was unable to see the tiny fungus plant under a microscope. But we went ahead with the remedy that kills this fungus plant and the Labrador showed immediate improvement.

Dancing never got very far in the silent era, not only because most movies stuck to straight story telling, but because producers didn't know what kind of musical accompaniment, if any, the nickelodeons could provide. And yet I sometimes think those flickers came closer to attaining that basic rhythm than we ever have since. Certainly Doug Fairbanks Sr. was rhythm incarnate. And the incomparable Valentino made himself practically immortal with a tango that lasted a matter of seconds in "The Four Horsemen."

With sound we were treated to the early Lubitsch musicals, and these, too, developed a rhythm pattern to a degree in which our present ones are sadly lacking. I hardly need name them—"Monte Carlo," "The Smiling Lieutenant," "Love Parade," and the others with Jeanette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier. One of the sweetest in this vein was "Love Me Tonight," which Rouben Mamoulian directed.

In Germany the Lubitsch formula was being copied in such tune films as "Congress Dances" and "Two Hearts in Waltz Time." From France, much later, we got "Ballerina." Hollywood adapted the same theme for Loretta Young in "The Men in Her Life."

When Sam Goldwyn and Warner Brothers were competing for more and more lavish musicals Busby Berkeley directed the dances for both. His creations in the Eddie Cantor pictures, from "Whoopee" thru "The Kid from Spain" and "Kid Millions," set a pace that stood for a long time.

Then there was "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," in which Fred and Ginger undertook to show us what had made their predecessors click. We have the Castles, as well as Astaire-Rogers, to thank for bringing the ballroom dance many steps closer to popularity, just as we owe Gene Kelly and "Cover Girl" a debt for helping to do the same with ballet.

The Negroes, too, have done more than their share. Their contribution is a tradition that stretches from the Mississippi levees to "Carmen Jones" and from Bill Robinson to Tip, Tap, and Toe. Long before we recognized it for what it is they were acquainting us with the ballet of yesterday and tomorrow—American style.

And so I say—on with the dance!

CORNED BEEF HASH

2 tbsp. fat
¼ cup minced celery
¼ cup minced onion
3 cups cooked corned beef, ground
¼ tsp. pepper
2 cups cooked potatoes (chopped or mashed)
1 cup milk, corned beef stock, or tomato juice
½ tsp. salt.

Brown onions in hot fat in frying pan, add celery and saute for 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Put in individual baking dishes or large casserole and bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) for 15 to 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve hot, garnished with parsley. Hash may also be cooked in frying pan until browned on bottom, folded over as for omelet and served on hot platter.

FROM Jane Foster's NOTEBOOK

Ideas for these Meat-Scarce Days...

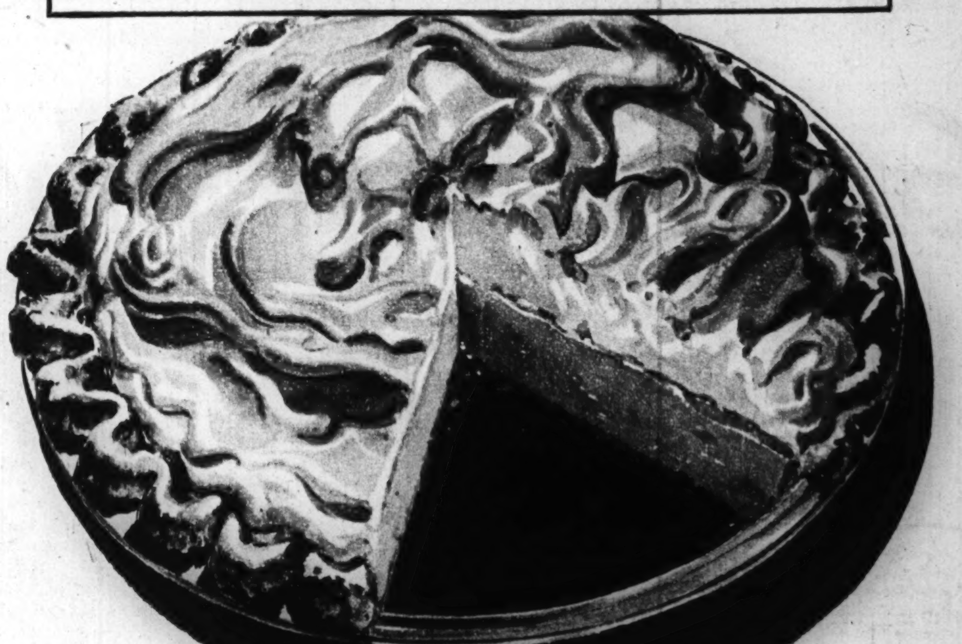
Rice, a good meat stretcher, makes a moister meat loaf than bread crumbs. Use rice, too, as a filler for croquettes—top with white sauce and cheese.

Good Sunday brunch idea: Serve no-point frozen hash with poached eggs, broiled tomatoes, and grapefruit salad.

Potato souffle is a good meat extender. Fold in finely-ground meat and fluffy egg to left-over mashed potatoes. Bake slowly at 300° F.

Vegetable soup made with rich stock and colorful vegetables makes a grand one-dish supper. Serve with fried mush and stuffed prune salad.

Potatoes contain more food value than most starchy foods. Especially rich in vitamin C and calcium. No loss of C in deep fat frying.



LEMON MERINGUE PIE

1¼ cups sugar
5 tbsp. all-purpose flour
4 tbsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
2 cups boiling water
3 egg yolks
⅓ cup lemon juice
2 tsp. grated lemon rind
2 tbsp. margarine

Mix flour, cornstarch, salt, sugar and add boiling water. Cook on low heat, stirring frequently, until thickened (about 15 minutes). Add slightly-beaten egg yolks, lemon juice and margarine and cook 5 minutes longer. Cool and pour into baked 9-inch pie shell.

MERINGUE: Beat 3 eggs whites until frothy, add ¼ tsp. cream of tartar and continue beating until stiff enough to hold a point. Add 6 tbsps. sugar gradually, beating until stiff and glossy. Pile lightly on pie filling so that meringue completely covers filling. Swirl with fork to make it look decorative. Bake in 325° F. oven until delicately browned (15 to 20 minutes) and cool at room temperature away from drafts.

Japan's Weakness

area. Only rice and wheat exceed it in acreage and only rice in value. This high rank of mulberry reflects the unusual importance of raw silk in the agricultural economy of Japan. As late as 1931 40 per cent of the Japanese farm families raised silkworms, altho by 1939 this was down to 30 per cent. The sale of cocoons was their prime source of cash income. The Japanese silk industry is extremely vulnerable, first because over one-half the product is marketable abroad and second because the export is so largely concentrated in one market, the United States. During the 1930s the depression first, and later the competition of artificial fibers, caused such a serious decline in silk prices that the financial, social, and political repercussions in Japan were of national scope.

Fish and fish products constitute the main animal food of the Japanese, being second only to rice in the nation's diet. Japan is not only the greatest fishing nation but a larger percentage of its population is engaged in, or directly or indirectly supported by, fishing than in any other country. This emphasis upon fishing is attributable to a number of conditions: The dense population in conjunction with the small area of tillable land and the meagerness of natural resources in general; the insular character of the country and the concentration of the population along the ocean margins; and, most important, the existence of excellent fishing grounds off eastern Asia.

As of about 1930, and before she had started that expansion and reconversion of her industries made necessary by her quickened imperialistic policy and the dangers of war which were associated with that policy, Japan was not a highly industrialized nation. At that time agriculture supported half her population, whereas manufacturing supported less than a fifth and commerce about 17 per cent. Light industries, particularly textiles, greatly predominated and the heavy metal and machine and tool industries were much less important. To a much larger extent than in other industrial countries Japanese manufacturing was still carried on in a multitude of pigmy factories, many of workshop size. In 1930 about half the workers in industry were in establishments employing fewer than five workers. Japan's industrial structure was very dependent not only upon foreign raw materials but upon foreign markets as well. A large part of the population was too poor to buy the domestic manufactures and thereby provide a large home market.

Japan's important silk industry is badly designed for an aggressor nation, being too dependent upon one customer nation, America. (Scene in a Japanese weaving factory.)

After the invasion of Manchuria in 1931, which marks the beginning of an active expansionist policy in continental Asia, Japan's industrial structure underwent some remarkable changes. Without these changes, which involved both a major expansion of industry and fundamental changes in its structure, the present war in the far east would have been impossible. Between 1931 and 1937 the number of factories employing five or more workers increased 66 per cent, the number of workers in industry nearly doubled, and the value of manufactural output more than tripled. Geared to this expansion was a greater diversification of manufactures; with light industries, particularly textiles, suffering a relative decline as metals, machines and tools, and chemicals skyrocketed. Metal manufacture, which accounted for only 8.4 per cent of industrial production in 1931, was up to 23.8 per cent in 1938; machinery and tools rose from 9.6 to 19.4, and chemicals from 11.7 to 17.6. In the same period textiles dropped from 37.3 to 20.3 per cent. With the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese war in 1937 many of the industrial trends conspicuous in the earlier years of the decade were intensified. The total volume of manufactured goods increased 13.5 per cent between 1937 and 1939 and 32 per cent between 1936 and 1939. Between August, 1937, and August, 1939, the volume of metals and machinery manufactured increased 45 per cent. Clearly Japan was girding her industrial structure for war and at breakneck speed.

Manufacturing in Nippon is concentrated largely in a thin belt nearly 800 miles long which extends from the Tokyo area on the northeast along the Pacific coast to Nagoya and thence thru the Osaka area and along the shores of the Inland sea to Nagasaki in northwestern Kyushu. This belt contains over 50 per cent of the country's cities of over 25,000 population, 75-80 per cent of its factory workers, and produces around 85 per cent of its manufactured goods. About three-quarters of the pig iron of Japan proper and probably 90 per cent of its steel originate here.

Within the general industrial belt are four nodes of concentration. Farthest to the northeast, and located on the largest plain of Japan, is the Kwanto node, from which center come about 30 per cent of the nation's manufactures. Within the Kwanto node there is the greatest concentration of cities to be found anywhere in the country, 25-30 in all, including Tokyo with a population of 6.8 million and Yokohama with about a million. The latter city is one of the two greatest ports of Japan. The region is characterized by a great variety of manufacturing industries, but with metals, machines and tools, and chemicals holding the first three positions. Probably 10-15 per cent of the nation's pig iron and 11-12 per cent of its steel originate in this center. In addition there are great shipbuilding yards, oil refineries, machine shops, and airplane and chemical factories.

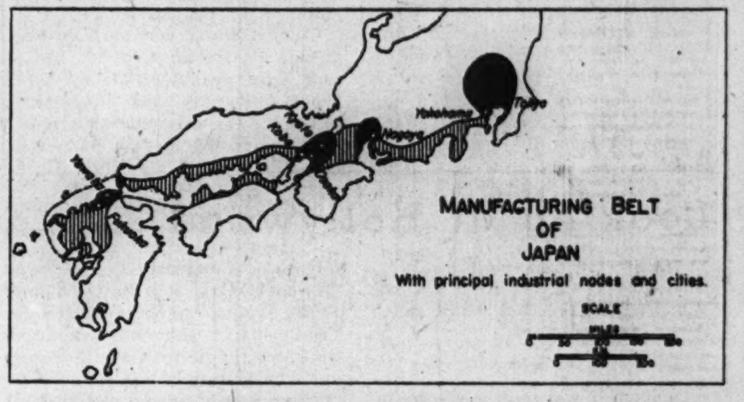
To the south and west of Tokyo about 235 miles is the Nagoya industrial node, located on the Nobi plain at the head of Ise bay. This center accounts for about 10 per cent of the nation's factory production. It has always been primarily a textile focus and as late as 1938 it was the only one of the four industrial nodes in which textiles still held first rank. Blast furnaces are lacking and steel is unimportant. Nevertheless machine and tool manufacturing has increased rapidly in importance and Nagoya has become one of the greatest aircraft centers of Japan. The industrial area is handicapped by its lack of a great deep-water port such as Yokohama or Kobe. The improved harbor of Nagoya, altho it can accommodate ships of 10,000 tons, is still far from first class.



To the southwest of Nagoya 140 miles is the great Kinki industrial node, which in output of goods is about equal to Kwanto. Here there are three great cities of a million or more; Kobe, the deep-water port; Osaka, the industrial metropolis (3,252,000) and also an important port, and Kyoto, an inland city and the old national capital. The region is characterized by a great variety of industries, but while textiles formerly held first rank, that group has now been surpassed by metals and machines and tools. Blast furnaces, steel mills, ship yards, foundries, machine shops, oil refineries, and aircraft factories are typical forms of industry.

Far to the southwest, at the western end of the Inland sea, is the North Kyushu node. In factory output it is about on a par with the Nagoya center. This is Japan's principal center of primary heavy industry, probably one-third of her pig iron and 40-50 per cent of her steel being produced here. Large factories are characteristic. Textiles are very unimportant and metals and chemicals far outdistance other forms of production. North Kyushu has the great advantage of being situated in close proximity to the nation's most important coal field. It has no great metropolis, and there is no deep-water port.

Pond's Make-up Pat

CYNTHIA McADOO: "Such a wonderfully smooth, velvety look to my skin. I didn't know cake make-up could be so natural and 'unstagey'!"

GLORIA VANDERBILT DE CICCO: "Pond's Make-up Pat seems different from other cake make-ups. So smooth—and no dead yellow-tan look!"

"smooth . . . unstagey . . . different" say Young Society Beauties

New double-formula discovery gives Make-up Pat foolproof flattery in Every Shade!

Dozens of cake make-ups popping onto the market—yet Pond's took their time.

Pond's tested—and compared—and improved—and tested again, over and over until—now Pond's new Make-up Pat emerges from the laboratory—a perfected cake make-up.

Right away you'll notice the extra-smooth, soft way "Make-up Pat" washes on. Its practically poreless look. The almost uncanny way it stays on and on.

But the shades will be your greatest thrill!

Because Pond's found that no one formula worked equally well on all shades!

—the lighter shades of Pond's Make-up Pat are made in a feather-weight formula to go on sheer—fresh—never chalky.

—the darker shades are made in a richer formula—to give rosy glow. Never that sallow "jaundice-y" look!

We know of no other cake make-up that gives you this essential shade-and-formula fit.

That is why we believe you will like Pond's new "Make-up Pat" better than any make-up you have ever tried. On sale now—in 6 perfected shades. 69¢, 39¢ (plus tax).

It protects your skin!
Pond's "Make-up Pat" acts as protective "buffer" against outside dirt and weather!

Wear it every day!
"Make-up Pat" is as easy to use as powder! Just smooth it on with a damp sponge or cotton. When dry, blend it out with your fingertips. Doesn't streak—doesn't "clog"!

"Camouflages" little blemishes away—freckles, large pores. Without "coating" your face!

"De-Shines" a shiny face into one that keeps its fresh, velvety, just-made-up look almost indefinitely.

"Water-colors" your skin smoothly with a gorgeously clear, natural tone.

DOCTORS PROVE 2 out of 3 women can have Lovelier Skin* in 14 Days!

14-DAY PALMOLIVE PLAN TESTED ON 1285 WOMEN WITH ALL TYPES OF SKIN!

"My complexion had lost its soft, smooth look," says Mrs. Radford Stone of New York. "So I said 'yes' when I was invited to try the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan—along with 1284 other women of all ages—from fifteen to fifty! My group reported to a New York skin doctor. Some of us had dry skins; some oily; some average. After a careful examination, we were given the Palmolive Plan to use at home for 14 days.

"Here's the Palmolive Plan: I washed my face 3 times a day with Palmolive Soap. Then—each time—for a full 60 seconds—massaged onto my skin Palmolive's lovely soft lather, as you would a cream. Then rinsed. This cleansing massage brought my skin the full, beautifying effect of Palmolive's lather. After 14 days, my doctor agreed my skin was smoother, finer-textured, less oily. You must try the 14-Day Palmolive Plan!"

YOU, TOO, may look for these skin improvements in only 14 Days!

 LESS OILINESS, LESS DRYNESS!

"Less oily," says Roberta Binkley of Burbank, Calif. "Less dry!" says Ann Baker of San Francisco. Of the 1285 women who tested the new 14-Day Palmolive Plan, 696 had too oily or too dry skins to start, according to examining doctors. At the end of 14 days, 566 of these women showed definite improvements!

 FINER TEXTURE, BETTER TONE!

Ann Haley of Boston reported both these skin improvements after trying the Palmolive Plan for just 14 days! The 36 doctors reported 63% of all the women gained better texture ... 65% better tone. Reason enough for every woman who longs for a lovelier complexion to start this new proved way of using Palmolive!

 SMOOTHER! FEWER BLEMISHES!

"Skin smoother!" reports Lucy Adams of Los Angeles. "Fewer blemishes!" says Mary Louise Cole of Boston. The 36 doctors found gratifying evidence of increased smoothness in almost two-thirds of the women who tested the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. And over half of the skins had fewer blemishes.

 FRESHER, CLEARER COLOR!

"Skin fresher!" reports Shirley Brooks of Chicago, listing her complexion's gains from testing the 14-Day Palmolive Plan. The 36 examining doctors report this same important improvement for 2 skins out of 3 among the 1285 women. See if this Plan won't bring you fresher skin—in only 14 days!

NOW!.. Palmolive comes in a New, Big Bath Size!
Try it—for tub or shower. It's solid. Thrifty. Long lasting. And how a man enjoys its rich, generous lather!

DOCTORS PROVE PALMOLIVE'S BEAUTY RESULTS!

Winning America! This new natural way to keep regular

Over 8,000,000 now take lemon and water, national surveys show. And no wonder! This simple fruit drink in most cases makes harsh laxatives entirely unnecessary.

Most people find they can enjoy prompt, normal elimination just by taking the juice of a lemon in a glass of water when they first get up in the morning. And unlike harsh laxatives, lemon and water is good for you.

Lemons are Health Builders

Lemons are among the richest known sources of vitamin C, and supply valuable amounts of B_1 and P. They alkalinize, aid digestion. Lemon and water is surprisingly refreshing, too—clears the mouth, wakes you up.

Why take harsh laxatives when lemon and water offers healthful aid? Try it ten days.

Tonight and Every Night ~ GIVE YOUR DINNER NEW GLAMOUR WITH THIS CHOICE Burgundy

★ GOOD TASTE WITH ANY FOOD ★

Few households keep an assortment of table wines. Many choose Burgundy because they like its flavor best. So—forget the "do's and don'ts" you've heard about serving wine and just remember that "Valliant Burgundy is good taste with any food."

The soft glow of candlelight! Sparkling glasses of Valliant California Burgundy! Such an easy way to bring romance to your table—every night. Valliant Burgundy is so smooth, so well-rounded, so full-flavored.

If you acquired a taste for choice Burgundy abroad, Valliant Burgundy will revive happy memories. Its authentic character is a heritage of vineyard cuttings imported long ago from Europe. Its fine flavor reflects the care with which it is blended and developed. And to protect its precious bouquet, it is bottled by the winery in California.

As you know, Burgundy is a dry (not sweet) wine. Sip Valliant Burgundy with food, and see how delightfully its pleasant tartness blends with main course dishes. Here, indeed, is a wine that wins men's favor . . . and compliments for the cook.

Also try these distinguished Valliant California wines: Valliant Dry Sherry, Valliant Port, Valliant Muscatel, Valliant Sherry. Sole distributors for U. S. A., W. A. Taylor & Company, New York City.

A short Ad on the subject of Tampax

Frankly, we want you to know the good points of this kind of sanitary protection

You may be satisfied with your present kind of monthly sanitary protection—we mean the external pad style, pinned up to a belt and used with a sanitary deodorant. But we do ask you to consider how different Tampax is. It has no belts, pins or pads. It causes no bulges or wrinkles and can be worn in tub or shower. Odor cannot form. . . The reason for all these improvements is that Tampax is worn internally. Perfected by a doctor, it is made of highly absorbent cotton compressed into an applicator for quick insertion—so dainty that your hands need never touch the Tampax. . . . Young women particularly seem attracted to Tampax. Office girls and war workers, too, find it convenient to keep in desk or locker. Tampax is quick to change and easy to dispose of. Buy it at drug stores or notion counters. A month's supply (average) will go in your purse. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

"MUCHIE TOO MUCHIE"

THE Teenie Weenies would never take on the responsibility of hatching and raising another chicken. That, the little people were all agreed on. Of course, the young chicken kept the Teenie Weenie village free of bugs and worms, but that wasn't enough food to satisfy its mighty appetite. It ate everything in sight, and the little people had to guard every morsel of the food they expected to eat themselves, for the chicken would, as likely as not, pop its head thru the kitchen door or thru a window, and grab victuals right off the Teenie Weenie table. It couldn't be kept out of the Teenie Weenie garden, and the little folks had to go to considerable trouble in building a fence around their vegetables. Within a week after the fence had been built the chicken was big enough to hop over and gobble up a number of their early plants. The Teenie Weenies forgave the chicken, but a few days later it did something that the Chinaman said was "Muchie too much to forgive."

One pleasant morning the Chinaman, Gogo, and the Dunce decided to go fishing in the creek. Of course, they would have to capture a fish worm, for that is considered the best bait. It takes a lot of hard work for such little men as the Teenie Weenies to unearth a fish worm, for it means much digging and shoveling with their tiny tools. The three little chaps dug all morning before they uncovered a worm. They found one after they had dug down fully three inches into the ground. They uncovered one end of the worm and, while Gogo and the Dunce held it, the Chinaman frantically dug and shoveled the earth away from the other end of its squirming body. At last they managed to pull the worm from the ground, but they were so tired from the effort they all threw themselves onto the soft moss to rest.

While the three Teenie Weenies rested the chicken happened to stroll by. It saw the worm and, before any of the Teenie Weenies could stop it, it picked up the worm and ran off with the screaming Teenie Weenies after it. The chicken raced around the Teenie Weenie village with the three angry Teenie Weenies chasing it. The Chinaman was very angry and he managed to get close enough to give the chicken a couple of smacks with a Teenie Weenie shovel. The long legged chicken was able to outrun the Teenie Weenies, but the little men did manage to chase it quite a distance from the Teenie Weenie village, and to the Teenie Weenies' relief, it hasn't been seen since.

BROTHERS TELL JOY OF MEETING AFTER 3 YEARS

Other Families Get Reunion News

Hands raised in salute, their hearts too full for speech: Thus is recorded the meeting of Edward H. Vallmar, boatswain's mate 1st class, and his brother, Marine Corp. Kenneth A. Vallmar, on an island in the South Pacific.

Separated by the war which took Ed from his job as saxophonist with an orchestra and Ken from his studies at the University of Minnesota, the brothers had not seen each other in three years.

Telling of the reunion, Ed wrote his mother, Mrs. A. A. Vallmar, 2706 Leland av.: "When we docked at the island, I inquired whether any marines had been there. I was told the 6th division had a camp 12 miles inland, but had been moving out with several companies leaving a few days before we landed."

Hitch-Hikes to Camp

On a chance that Ken might be one of the few remaining marines, Ed hitch-hiked to the camp, arriving at about 9 p. m. He went to headquarters and asked for his brother. The officer in charge sent a man to the barracks. "Then I saw the messenger and Ken coming across the grass," wrote Ed describing the reunion. "When he came into the room we both stood at attention, our hearts filling. Neither of us could speak. Then the officer in charge left the room and we fell into each other's arms, crying like babies."

The Vallmars had five days together, then were separated, only to meet again. This time Ed, who is assigned to an LST, was aboard ship when another boat, filled with marines, slid in alongside. Ken was on the other boat. He spent a day and a half with Ed on the LST. During that period Ed wrote another letter in which he said Ken hoped this would be his last operation before returning home. The letter ended with a postscript in Ken's handwriting, "Mother, I hope to see you soon."

No Recent Word

Since then no further word has come from the boys. Mrs. Vallmar has never seen Ken in uniform. Enlisting from the university, he was sent to the west coast for training and shipped from there 22 months ago. Ed has been at sea since December, 1944.

The tides of action also reunited Sgt. Morton J. Markman, 3416 Elaine pl., with his brother, Corp. Arthur J. Markman, 511 Melrose st. With the 31st general hospital on New Hebrides, Morton wrote home, "I had the biggest surprise of my life when Art came over to visit me last Sunday morning. I was asleep in the barracks when he arrived, and when awakened it was hard for a minute or so to remember just where I was." Morton joined the army in June, 1942, and has been overseas since November, 1943. Arthur entered service in December, 1943, and left for overseas duty in January, 1945.

Reunion in Italy

Aviators, the Gordon brothers are accustomed to being up in the air, but their recent meeting in Italy set them on clouds. Lt. Joseph F. Gordon served as pilot of a 15th reconnaissance photographic squadron from May, 1944, until his recent return home. Second Lt. Eugene T. Gordon, co-pilot on a B-24, left the United States in January, 1945, to fly across the Atlantic. He made stops at Trinidad, Brazil, Liberia, and Morocco, but finally arrived and was stationed in Italy.

When he discovered he was but 70 miles from his older brother, Joe, he got in touch with him, and until Joe was shipped home this month, the boys spent several week-ends togther.

Joseph has completed more than 40 missions over enemy territory. He holds the distinguished flying cross and air medal with five clusters. Eugene has completed 15 missions. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gordon, 6504 N. Leavitt st.

Met on Leyte Island

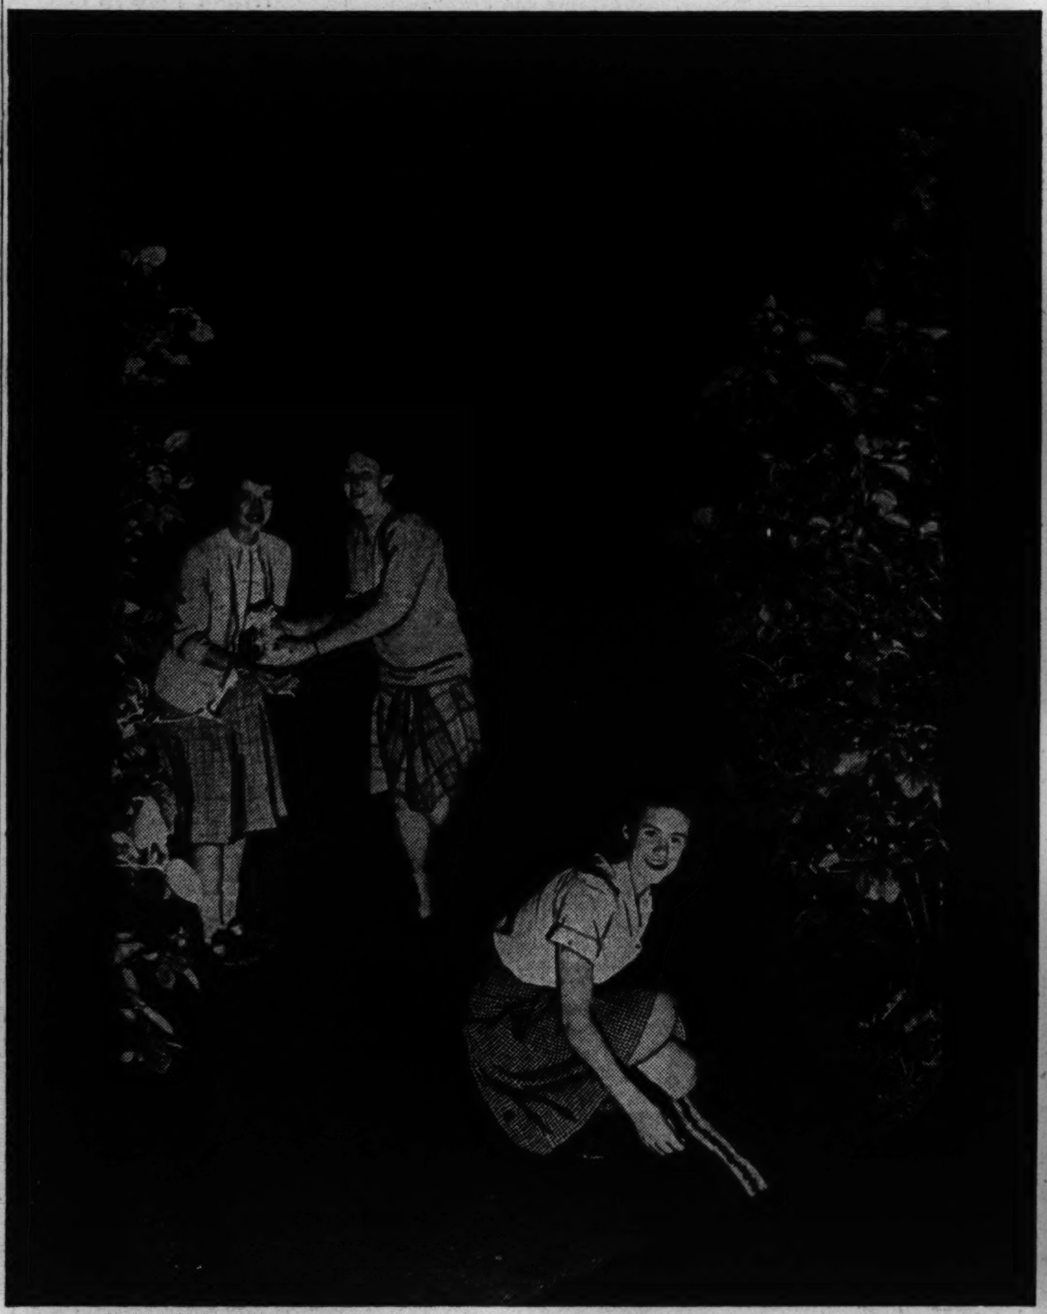
Pvt. Evo Pisani, 1714 Melrose st., met his cousin, Staff Sgt. Lido Accari of Geneva, on Leyte. It was their first meeting in four years. Evo, with the anti-tank company of the 17th infantry, is a veteran of the Aleutian, Kwajalein, and Leyte campaigns, and is now in the invasion of Okinawa.

A reunion in France was experienced by cousins Sgt. Robert Hermann, 4604 Beacon st., and Sgt. Charles Hermann, 5726 N. Melvina av. The boys had not seen each other for seven years. Charles is an engineer of a division whose flag has been decorated with the Legion of Honor and the croix de guerre by the French government.

CHURCH OBTAINS PARISH BUILDING IN NORTH SUBURB

The Grace English Lutheran church of Evanston has purchased a parsonage at 1003 Dobson st. in the suburb. The Rev. H. C. Duwe, pastor, and his family will occupy the first floor, while the basement rooms will be turned into club lounges until priorities allow for the erection of a clubhouse and church at the southwest corner of Ridge av. and Cleveland st. Present church services are conducted in quarters leased at Nichols school.

Lake Forest Students Learn Raising Money Is Serious Business—Or Is It?



Pennies make dollars, Lake Forest college students declared last week as they emptied piggy banks and dug into pockets to raise a self-set goal of $500 for the world student service fund to help educate young persons in liberated areas. As one of several money making schemes, they collected pennies to pave a double line from Durand Commons to College hall, 500 feet away. Norma Sohn, student drive chairman, shakes her bank to get the last coin as Dorothy Huggett of Flossmoor catches the overflow. Patricia Howard, 2506 N. Harlem av., places pennies on the line.

Tho she took the clothes drive seriously, she says, Lila Spannenberg, 2423 N. Avers av., didn't seem worried by the manner in which she left the International dinner. Probably it will start a campus fad!

"How about making it more?" urges Auctioneer Joan Thrasher in an effort to raise the bid on Dean of Women Kathryn Klink's services as a typist. Dean Klink, at right, was knocked off to Mrs. Margaret B. Morris, sophomore of Wilmette, for $7.25. The auction of faculty services netted $168.50 for the fund which has a national quota of $500,000.

REAL GRANDDAD OF SAXOPHONE FOUND IN LOOP

BY RUTH LOGAN

While many juke box fans and of today consider the name Jimmy Dorsey synonymous with saxophone, they no doubt are unaware that Tom Brown, 229 E. Superior st.—the man who probably did more than any other to promote the saxophone's popularity—may be heard nightly in a loop entertainment spot.

Tom Brown

Chicagoans who count among their fondest recollections the evenings spent at such vaudeville houses of another day as the Haymarket, the Olympic, the Majestic, and the old Palace, remember Brown as the leader of the Six Brown Brothers, a saxophone sextet famous for three decades on this continent, in Australia, and in England.

Five Still Living

Five of the brothers are living, three of them in Chicago. Their father, Allan, 86, lives in Toronto, Ont.

A small white haired man with a pleasant manner, Tom at 62 is the only one still in show business. He plays request numbers each night in the Red Lion inn, 61 E. Adams st., using two saxophones alternately. One, considered the oldest in existence, was given him by a California surgeon who found the instrument, made in 1812, in a museum in Norway. The other was bought by Tom in a pawn shop and gave him the idea for the sextet.

Two brothers, Bill, 64, and Vern, 53, both of 1813 Erie st., are war workers. Alex, 60, has retired and lives in Irvington, N. J. Fred, 51, an army warrant officer, is a band master at Fort Dix, N. J. Percy, the other one time member of the act, died of influenza in 1919 at the age of 36. His place was taken by a succession of performers, one of whom was Tom Jr., now an accountant and a resident of St. Louis, Mo.

Learns Sax by Ear

Tom Sr. was playing clarinet in Ringling Brothers circus band when he bought a saxophone, then an obscure instrument. After learning to play it by ear, he bought saxophones for his brothers and taught them to play. The ensemble started about 1904 by touring cities the size of Peoria, Ill., and Dubuque, Ia.

The brothers soon went to big time circuits and made the saxophone famous in every city of any size in the United States, Canada, England, Australia, and New Zealand. They appeared in such Montgomery and Stone shows as "Chin Chin" and "Jack O'Lantern." They made about 60 phonograph records.

At Century of Progress

Vaudeville began dying in the depression, and the brothers disbanded about 1935 after appearing at the Century of Progress in Chicago. Tom declares he misses the road. "I've lived in a trunk all my life," he said. "I can't get used to a house!"

The act's popularity was due partly to the novelty of using six saxophones, Tom said, and partly to the fact that they let the audience be the final judge. "I chose the songs and routines," he said, "but the minute we felt the audience didn't care for a particular part of the show we cut it out."

5 NORTH SIDERS WIN D. F. C.S FOR SERVICE VALOR

63 Mission Vet Is Among Those Rewarded

North side airmen who recently received the distinguished flying cross for valorous service in combat include: 1st Lt. Leo Fogelman, 740 Bittersweet pl., who also was awarded the Purple Heart; Capt. George S. Weart, 906 Argyle st.; Lt. Joseph P. Gordon, 6504 N. Leavitt st.; 1st Lt. Philip R. Hunt, 605 Hinman av., Evanston, and 2d Lt. Richard B. Rhody, 902 Reba pl., Evanston.

Lt. Rhody

Lt. Fogelman

Lt. Fogelman received the award in a Miami Beach, Fla., convalescent hospital. Lead navigator for a 15th air force Flying Fortress group, the officer stuck to his post in spite of severe flak wounds until the group reached its target, a bridge in Yugoslavia.

Also Wins Purple Heart

The lieutenant previously had been given the Purple Heart. He also wears the air medal with two clusters and has two battle stars on his campaign ribbon. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fogelman, 742 Bittersweet pl.

Since receiving the decoration at 13th air force headquarters in the Philippines, Capt. Weart has returned to this country to attend general staff and command school, Fort Leavenworth, Kas. The son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. D. L. Weart, he was graduated from the United States Military academy at West Point in January, 1943.

A fighter pilot, Capt. Weart won the D. F. C. when he protected a formation of low flying aircraft by strafing enemy anti-aircraft batteries and a cargo vessel in the Halmahera Islands last September. He is credited with shooting down three Japanese planes in the Philippines.

63 Mission Veteran

Veteran of 63 missions as a fighter reconnaissance pilot, Lt. Hunt was decorated for checking the condition of 15 bridges over the Saar river between Trier and Saarbrucken—which he executed in spite of heavy fog. The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hunt of the Evanston address, Lt. Hunt, overseas since August, wears the air medal with nine clusters.

Lt. Gordon won the award for a photographic reconnaissance mission over Austria when he evaded attack by three German planes to photograph 13 targets for the 15th air force. He has flown 40 missions as a pilot, and holds the air medal with four clusters and the distinguished unit citation. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Gordon Sr., he has been overseas a year.

A fighter pilot, Lt. Rhody was decorated at a 7th air force base in the Marianas Islands for participation in 30 strike sorties against the enemy. He entered service in January, 1943, and also holds the air medal and one cluster.

Fun Night Will Be Held Friday at Loop Y.W.C.A.

Fun night with roller skating, square dancing, and community singing will be held by Y. W. C. A. students Friday at the loop Y center. Ruth Morrison, president of the Inter-College council, is dance chairman, and Marion Saul, assistant health director, and Janet Burton form the committee.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, April 30

Now is the time to put out a few plants that will have a chance to live if light frosts should come. It is better not to force plants by planting out of doors. Harden them off in the frame, protecting them at night if sudden cold weather approaches.

Tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, cucumbers, and other tender kinds seldom respond during cool weather, but if planted when the soil is warm they grow rapidly and become established quickly.

Tuesday, May 1

Continue cultivating the garden to kill weeds. Do this when the weeds are small, cultivating no more than an inch deep. As the plants grow, whether they are vegetables or flowers, do not cut too close to the plants or the roots may be injured.

Wednesday, May 2

When sowing fine seed, such as poppy or mignonette, mix it with three parts of sand. Poppy seed is very fine and because of that the gardner usually sows it too thick and is obliged to cut the plants.

To thin, when the seedlings are about an inch high, hoe the bed across in lines about 18 inches wide, leaving thin lines of plants. Then hoe across the other way so that the lines will be from 12 to 18 inches apart.

Thursday, May 3

If nasturtiums are sown in too rich a soil an abundance of foliage will be produced but few flowers. The same is true of the California poppy, statice, and portulaca.

Friday, May 4

A good tropical annual for planting along a fence, or to hide the sunny side of the garage, is the common castor bean. The large, handsome leaves develop rapidly. It may be used as a center plant in a bed, with cannas next to it and fountain grass as a border. Plant after May 20 but not much earlier.

Keep on cultivating the garden even tho no weeds are visible. Keep the yard in good condition by weeding walks, flower beds, and borders.

Saturday, May 5

Plunge all small pots of annuals to their rim in the coldframe. Plunging keeps moist soil around the plants, preventing their drying out.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

CARBOLA
The Disinfecting White Paint

KILLS ENEMIES YOU CAN'T SEE

Don't wait for disease to appear. Prevent loss of production now. Invisible germs cause more losses than lice and mites.

CLEAN UP NOW!

Fall and winter mean a great breeding of disease germs if they are left alone. A spraying or brushing with Carbola will destroy billions of these invisible profit eaters. Carbola painted onto all interior surfaces kills germs, dries white. 1 pound covers 100 square feet. Best for laying houses, brooder houses, dairies, hog pens, rabbitries, pigeon lofts. Kills by contact such invisible germs as tuberculosis, bronchitis, dyphtheria, abortion, hog chloera, colds. ALSO USE AS A DRY DIP AND AS A DRY DISINFECTANT BY DUSTING.

Hardware, seed, feed, drugstores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write for free handy egg-laying chart.

DON'T LET YOUR HENS DIE!

CARBOLA
HELPS KEEP BUGS AWAY

HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS

Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.

TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS

In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.

Hardware, seed, feed, drugstores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write or free handy garden chart.

Tommy Dorsey M. C. for WMAQ Musical Series

Tommy Dorsey will be master of ceremonies on the Music America Loves Best show over WMAQ-NBC at 3:30 p. m. today. He will introduce Duke Ellington, pianist; Genevieve Rowe, soprano, and Johnny Hodges, saxophonist, as guests. Ellington, Hodges, and Dorsey will do solo portions of Donaldson's "You're Driving Me Crazy"; Miss Rowe will sing Rodgers' "Lovers."

Zino Francescatti Is NBC Symphony Soloist

Zino Francescatti, violinist, will be soloist on the Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Frank Black, will offer Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture, Barlow's "The Winter's Past," and "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's "La Gio-Gioconda."

RADIO'S JARGON IS EXPLAINED IN MBS GLOSSARY

BY LARRY WOLTERS

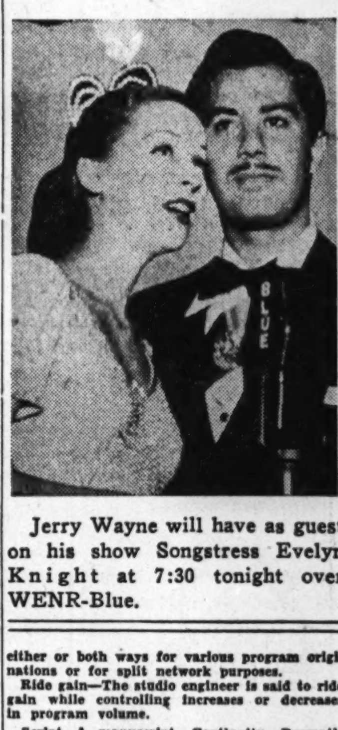
Know what a "leg" is as applied to broadcasting? Nope, it has nothing to do with pinups of radio beauties. It means a regional chain, or part of a bigger network. "Cold" in radio doesn't refer to a congestion in the head. It means without preliminaries or embellishment. It is applied to a program that begins in such a manner.

A glossary of several hundred radio expressions [with definitions] has been compiled by Gilbert McClelland of the Mutual network staff to serve as a handy guide to personnel—particularly new persons who are likely to be a bit baffled by the lexicon of broadcasting. Below are a few selections from the booklet which may be of general interest:

Across the board — Radio program booked daily at the same time.
Ad lib—To improvise, to speak lines not in the script.
Breaks—Any interruptions in a program.
Bridge — A piece of transitional music or sound effect to link scenes.
Bugs—Trouble in equipment caused by something not immediately obvious.
Channel—An electrical circuit.
Clear a number—To obtain official permission to use a certain musical selection.
Cushion—A flexible musical number near the end of a program which can be lengthened or shortened.
Cow-catcher — Advertising messages carried just before a specific program plugging some auxiliary product of the sponsor.
Dawn patrol—Those concerned with early morning programs.
Dress—The final complete rehearsal.
Dubbing—Transposing recorded matter to a new record.
Electrical Transcription—An electrical recording made especially for broadcasting.
Fade—A diminishing of program volume.
Feed—To send a program over the air, to other stations or groups of stations.
Fill—Added program material.
Fluff—Missing a cue, or stumbling over a line.
In the mud—Too little tonal volume or lack of definition.
Key station—The station where the network program originates.
Live—As opposed to recorded or transcribed.
Local—A program presented from a single station.
Log—An accurate journal of every minute of broadcasting; required by law.
MC—Master of ceremonies.
Mike—A microphone.
Mike Hog—One of a group of performers who elbows others from the microphone.
Mix—Combining the input of two or more microphones to effect a complete balance.
Monitor—To check the program by means of audio equipment.
On the button [head, nose]—Ending [a program] exactly on time.
P. A.—Public address or talk back system. Also press agent, or personal appearance.
Pancake turner—The sound technician controling the playing of double faced records.
Platter—A phonograph record or a transcription.
R. & R.—Record and Repeat.
Round Robin—A wire loop going from one point thru various points and returning. It can be broken at any point and programs sent either or both ways for various program originations or for split network purposes.
Ride gain—The studio engineer is said to ride gain while controlling increases or decreases in program volume.
Script—A manuscript. Continuity. Dramatic score.
Segue — The transition from one musical number to another without break or interruption.
Signature—Musical number or sound effect identifying a program.
Sneak in—To introduce music softly and then bring it up full behind dialog.
Stand-by—A substitute program ready to put on the air in case of an emergency. Also used as a warning to performers to get ready to go on the air.
Stretch — Slow up the concluding musical number so that the show will finish on the nose.
Take it away—The cue from studio engineer to engineer of succeeding program.

One expression not included but often heard around radio studios is "in conference." As we recall, it was Fred Allen who defined a conference as "a meeting of vice presidents who singly can do nothing and who together can only decide that nothing can be done."

Musical Team



Jerry Wayne will have as guest on his show Songstress Evelyn Knight at 7:30 tonight over WENR-Blue.

OFFER 'MAYTIME' NEXT ON W-G-N THEATER OF AIR

Sigmund Romberg's popular operetta "Maytime" will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air from the stage of Medinah temple before an audience of about 4,500. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Among the familiar numbers to be sung by Marion Claire, prima donna of the series, and her supporting soloists and chorus, are "Will You Remember?," "Windy Day on the Battery," "Our Little Sweet Home," and "Road to Paradise." Richard Tucker, star of the Metropolitan opera, will sing the tenor lead and Earle Wilkie, the baritone part.

The background music will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber.

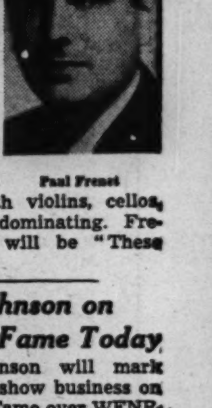
In the dramatic cast will be Sondra Gair, William Everett, Forrest Lewis John Barclay, Laurette Fillbrandt, Hope Summers, John Mallon, and Lee Bennett. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

Hail Von Steuben High on Citizens' Program

Von Steuben High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N at 10 a. m. Saturday Miss Varian M. Shea, principal, will be the hostess. Philip Maxwell, conductor of the show, will name two more students to the roll of honor: Elaine Samson, valedictorian at Von Steuben, and Marcella Binder, Plymouth, Wis. Star student entertainer will be Joan Frankel, marimbaphonist. The Symphonic choir, directed by Clare John Thomas, will sing. Vera Krupnik will read interscholastic news.

OPEN MUSICAL BOUQUET SERIES ON WENR TODAY

Paul Frenet, young French singing star, will be soloist on the new Musical Bouquet show which will have its premier over WENR at 2 p. m. today. Frenet will sing a romantic song each Sunday—in French. He also will join Lois Marlowe in a duet. The orchestra will be led by Earl Warren who specializes in music with violins, cellos, harp, and oboe predominating. Frenet's solo today will be "These Foolish Things."



Paul Frenet

Olsen and Johnson on Hall of Fame Today

Olsen and Johnson will mark their 30th year in show business on the Radio Hall of Fame over WENR-Blue at 5 p. m. today. Milton Cross, guest master of ceremonies, will present Georgia Gibbs and Merry Macs. The program will include a Latin-American review, starring Cordova, songstress.

She's Lovely... She Will LIVE!

She's just six years old . . . her childish eyes look up at you so lovingly from underneath a thatch of golden hair . . . the velvet touch of her warm, moist fingers beams a thrill of joy to your heart . . . there's a smile on her lips that must have been born in the dream of a dew-washed morning . . . in the windows of her little soul you see a reflection of your immortality . . . she is your faith re-born . . . your courage restored . . . your hope—that star of life's tremulous ocean—renewed . . . she is your Life . . . SHE WILL LIVE!

Yes, she will live even though one day she may succumb to an insidious malady which will halt her rosy, restless feet . . . Yes, she'll live in spite of a dreaded disease, known as Rheumatic Fever —an affliction that causes a large proportion of heart defects in children between the ages of 6 and 15 and kills annually ONE CHILD OUT OF EVERY HUNDRED . . .

She will live . . . because THE LA RABIDA JACKSON PARK SANITARIUM has waged a ceaseless, unheralded, little publicized, but gallant fight down through the years to discover why, in one of our large cities, the death rate from rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease has been almost twice as high in a single year as the death rate from infantile paralysis IN A WHOLE DECADE . . .

She will live . . . because La Rabida has continued its search for the reason why this fever left its scar on the hearts of upwards of one million humans in this country with the result they must live more or less handicapped lives or must die before they have lived out their normal span of life . . .

She will live . . . because this great institution—the only one of its kind in Chicago that provides exclusively convalescent care for the child with heart disease—has continued its work for forty-three years with the help of a truly great staff of Medical Specialists who have given freely and unselfishly of their invaluable, life-saving services . . .

She MUST live, because, today . . . with a hundred thousand sorrows touching the hearts of mankind . . . with the rich, red blood of youth flowing in a gigantic torrent down the spillway of life . . . the salvaging of the diseased and weak hearts of little children afflicted with Rheumatic Fever has assumed a new and vital importance . . . these children must be saved . . . their precious lives will be vitally needed in the re-building of a better world . . .

To insure the continuance of this great work of La Rabida, The Variety Club of Chicago is staging a benefit performance Sunday, May 6th, at the Civic Opera House. Every Top-Flight Star of Screen, Stage and Radio who can possibly make it will be on hand to entertain. To mention their names would take a column of space. That it will be a glittering array of Million Dollar Talent is a mild form of understatement. Tickets for this great benefit performance are now on sale at the Civic Opera House, or, they can be obtained from members of Variety and the Woman's Auxiliary of La Rabida. A call to Mrs. Black at Hyde Park 9600 will furnish you with additional information. Why not plan to attend this benefit for this truly splendid La Rabida Sanitarium . . . You can be sure it will be an unforgettable moment in your life.

SELL FACULTY UP THE LAKE IN FUND CAMPAIGN

Piggy banks were left disconsolate, and wallets took on an emaciated appearance last week as students of Lake Forest college contributed their pennies, dimes, and dollars to the World Student Service fund for benefit of students in liberated countries.

Collegiate ingenuity had a field day as Lake Foresters contrived a variety of money raising methods. Faculty members learned their worth when their services were sold at auction for prices ranging from 89 cents to $20. A student employment bureau was set up and every one from freshmen to seniors was eligible for hire at 50 cents an hour, with the proceeds going into the fund.

Money large in bulk and denomination was welcome when students collected pennies to pave a double 500 foot line from Durand Commons to College hall. The entire student body also tightened its belt and ate a dessertless dinner Monday night, thus contributing $20 to the fund.

The motley crowd which attended an International dinner Thursday night presented an even more striking appearance as the curfew hour approached. Some guests, who arrived wearing old habiliment, left in barrels after donating to the United National Clothing collection for war refugees. Other collegians wore gala costumes of foreign nations. Chopsticks were sold, and books also were collected for youths of other lands.

During the week all library fines went into the fund. A committee canvassed dormitories asking each resident to give a sum equivalent to one day's expenses in college—about $5.

Faculty Goes at Bargain

Dr. William D. Copeland, assistant to the president, estimated that the $500 goal set by students would be more than doubled. The national quota is $500,000. Dr. Charles A. Young was faculty advisor for the campaign, and Norma Sohn, sophomore, was student chairman.

Proceeds from the faculty auction were $168.50. A shortage of escorts—Lake Forest has 260 women and 50 men students—drove several co-eds to pay top prices of $15 to $20, for dinner-and-show dates with professors. Not even President Ernest A. Johnson could command such a price when he was hired for $5.25—to carry books on the campus.

Camille Oliver, Oak Park sophomore who paid $15.25 for a dutch treat show date with Prof. Frank L. Klement, also bought Dr. Johnson's squiring. Patricia Johnson, daughter of Col. and Mrs. E. E. Johnson, Fort Sheridan, paid $20 for the company at dinner of Dr. Richard Handke, history professor.

What, No Barbers?

A dinner date with Prof. Harold Jensen of the physics department cost Carol Wilson $10. Faculty members also were hired to wash cars, shine shoes, wait tables, run errands, and type term papers.

Margaret Tomlinson, junior, had charge of the employment bureau. In order to have company, most students worked in pairs at no extra cost. Tasks included window washing, baby sitting, spading gardens, all kinds of house work, and lawn mowing.

The student committee which canvassed dormitories was headed by Jean Hamer, Dorothy Broberg, Margaret Dickett, O'Ray Baxter, Rose Petty, Eleanor Middleton, Margaret Flood, Stanley Paust, John Reuss, Francis Heckman, Dorcas Brausch, and Daisy Morris.

Ensign and Bride

Ensign and Mrs. H. S. Wandling.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Eilert, 904 Castlewood terr., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Virginia, to Ensign Harold S. Wandling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Wandling of Terre Haute.

Adriels Club

A mothers and daughters dinner, sponsored by the Adriels club of Rogers Park Lutheran church, 1701 Morse av., will be held at 6:30 p. m. Thursday in the church parlors. Mrs. Preston Fox is group sponsor, and June Kringle is president.

INSPECT WALLER R. O. T. C. FRIDAY IN LINCOLN PARK

Annual inspection of the Waller High school R. O. T. C. battalion, with the presentation of awards to outstanding cadets, is scheduled for 9:30 a. m. Friday in Lincoln park. Departmental and Chicago Tribune medals are among the awards to be given.

Cadet Col. Richard E. Kutz is commander of the Waller batalion, and Sgt. R. J. Lenz is R. O. T. C. inspector. Lt. Col. Oscar N. Taylor, professor of military science and tactics for Chicago high schools, will attend.

Inspections at Waller, South Shore, and Roosevelt High schools will be the first in Chicago this year. Dates for inspections at other north side schools are May 7, Sullivan; May 8, Senn; May 9, Lake View; May 10, Amundsen, and May 15, Lane.

Evanston Music Club Will Install Officers

The Evanston Music club will hold a luncheon and installation of officers at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Georgian hotel, Evanston. Mrs. Floyd A. Owens is the new president; Mrs. Ray Pardee, vice president; Mrs. Clarence Mohr, recording secretary, and Mrs. Bruno Prosche, historian. Musical recital by Muriel Cousins, soprano; Jean Van Shick, pianist, and Louella de Windt, contralto, will complete the program.

PEIRCE SCHOOL WILL RECEIVE WAR BOND FLAG

Capt. R. E. Hutchison of North Shore American Legion post will present a war flag to Peirce school, 1425 Bryn Mawr av., at 1 p. m. Friday.

The banner will be accepted by Miss Mildred Fahy, principal, on behalf of the pupils, 90 per cent of whom made war bond and stamp purchases during the last war bond drive.

Pat Rand of the treasury department will be speaker. The ceremonies will open with the presentation of colors by the Peirce color guard.

MARK CHICAGO BOOK WEEK AT ALL LIBRARIES

Exhibits, Forums to Be Held

Libraries and affiliated groups thruout the city will celebrate Chicago Public Library week, which begins today and runs thru Saturday. The general theme of the week, which has been set aside by proclamation of Mayor Kelly, is: Books were never more important to this country than they are today when the questions and issues which must be resolved can best be presented to all citizens thru the forum which the printed page provides.

Representative of the many cultural activities at Woodlawn library, 6247 Woodlawn av., will be the special program given by the poet's corner of the Woodlawn Writers club at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

"Place of Poetry"

Opening the program will be Mrs. Boris Duskin, 6856 Cornell av., who will give a talk on "The Place of Poetry in Our Lives," illustrated by some of her own poems. Mrs. Walter W. Schaible, 6635 University av., will read her sonnet entitled "White Birds," to the musical accompaniment which was composed and will be played by Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell.

Other members of the poets corner who will read selections from their original verse are, Paulette Astroff, Neva Taylor Blaine, Anna Deegan, Mrs. Walter J. Evans, Mrs. Arch H. Hilsabeck, Mary Moulton, Lorena L. Ouellette, Adelyn Richards, Elizabeth Richards, Thirza Riggs, Edna M. Rohde, and Charles R. Wakeley.

Plan Book Carnival

The young peoples' department of Oakland library, 700 E. Oakwood blvd., will hold a book carnival. There will be a display of new books, numbered and arranged by subject. Children will pull slips from a fish bowl to which new book they will have the privilege of reading first.

The adult department has arranged two special displays. One at the Ida B. Wells Housing project, entitled "Books to Make a Home," will show books on interior decoration, cooking, sewing, and personal living. The other will be in the south side office of the Chicago Urban league and will consist of a map showing the location of the library and listing the services offered. Each of the displays will be captioned, Visit Your Library During Public Library Week.

Librarians Turn Tables

In addition to the regular posters South Shore library, 2505 E. 73d st., will display a large poster bearing the words, "Your help is requested. Drop suggestions for better service in the box below." The staff will turn the tables by requesting the public to recommend books as librarians have been asked to for years.

Displays have been arranged in neighborhood theaters mentioning books that have been made into movies and adding that South Shore is the nearest library servicing the community. Many restaurants also are coöperating during the week by suggesting a visit to the library at the bottom of their menus. The South Shore Library forum will meet Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium. Mrs. William G. Barry will discuss, "Russia and World Organization."

Use Parley Theme

There will be a special exhibit during the San Francisco conference with peace as the theme. Each day an account of what happened at the conference will be posted on the library bulletin board and books on the problems of peace will be listed.

A program has been planned at Hall, 4801 S. Michigan av., for 8 p. m. Wednesday. Mrs. Dorsey McCarthy will speak on "Authors in Review."

Avalon Park, 1425 E. 81st st., will help readers to become more familiar with the numerous services and resources offered in its many publications. A list of the best books of 1944 has been posted and colorful posters and displays of the newer books will be exhibited. A special exhibit entitled "The Peoples of the World Thru Books" will aid in helping the general public to understand the world's peoples and the problems confronting them.

Tuley Park Plans Displays

Tuley Park, 90th st. and St. Lawrence av. will celebrate with book displays of special interest. Displays will be held on new juvenile editions as well as books worth reading for adults.

Special exhibits at the Washington Park library, 448 E. 61st st., will stress services of the Chicago public library, Pan-American neighbors' courtesy week, and a service men's display entitled "Our Boys and Where They Are." At 7:30 p. m. Friday Joseph D. Bibb, Chicago Public Library director, will speak in the library assembly.

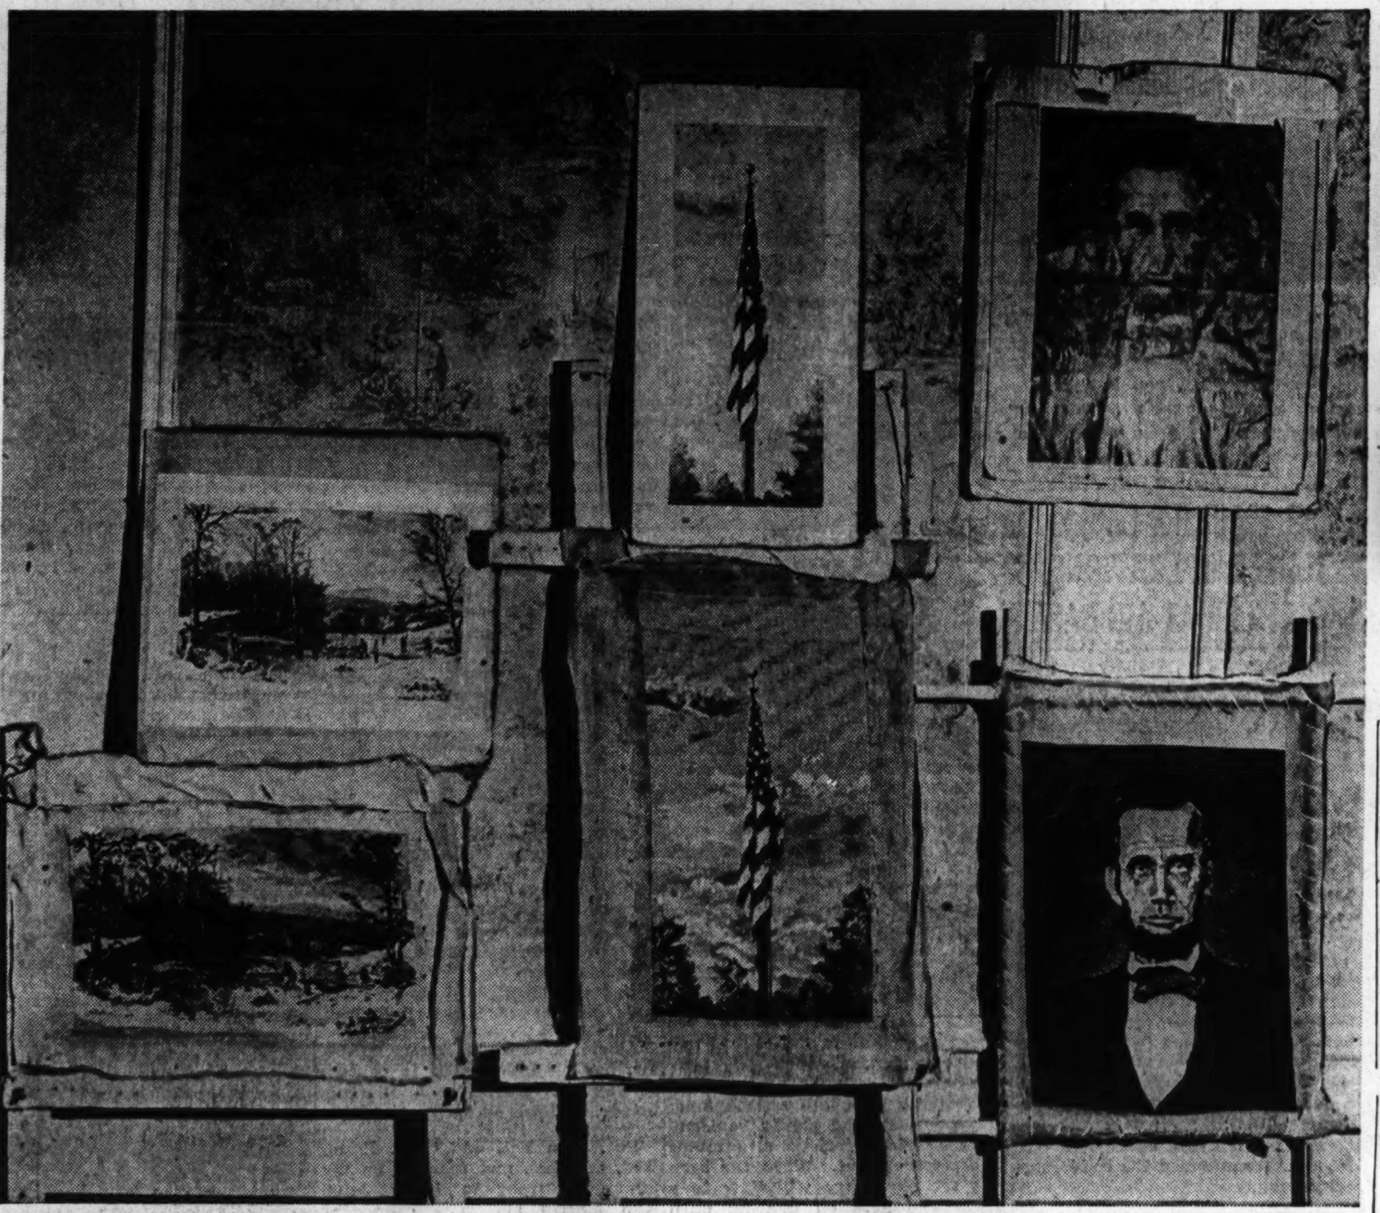
The Book Review and Forum at Blackstone library, 4904 S. Lake Park av., will hear Mrs. Jennie F. Purvin review "Apartment in Athens" at 8 p. m. Friday. A special program will be held in observance of the week.

Will Stress Services

An exhibit entitled "What Your Library Offers the Community" will be shown this week at South Chicago library, 9055 Houston av. Mrs. Evelyn M. Wolter, librarian, feels that books play an important role in supplementing current subjects under discussion and therefore those thought to be most important will be on display.

The children's department in coöperation with the Library club of Bowen High school will sponsor a program at 3 p. m. Friday at which Mrs. Genevieve Foster, author, will speak.

Artist Produces Portraits on Canvas with Needle and Thread



Three of the needle point pieces made by Miss Nellie Meyer, 7746 Cregier av., are displayed with pride by their creator. The pictures are reproduced as tapestries from photographs without so much as a single line on the canvas to guide her needle. She uses petit point on the finer details of the pictures, and gros point for the remainder. Miss Meyer says she inherited her many talents from her mother who was seldom "without a piece of pickup work."

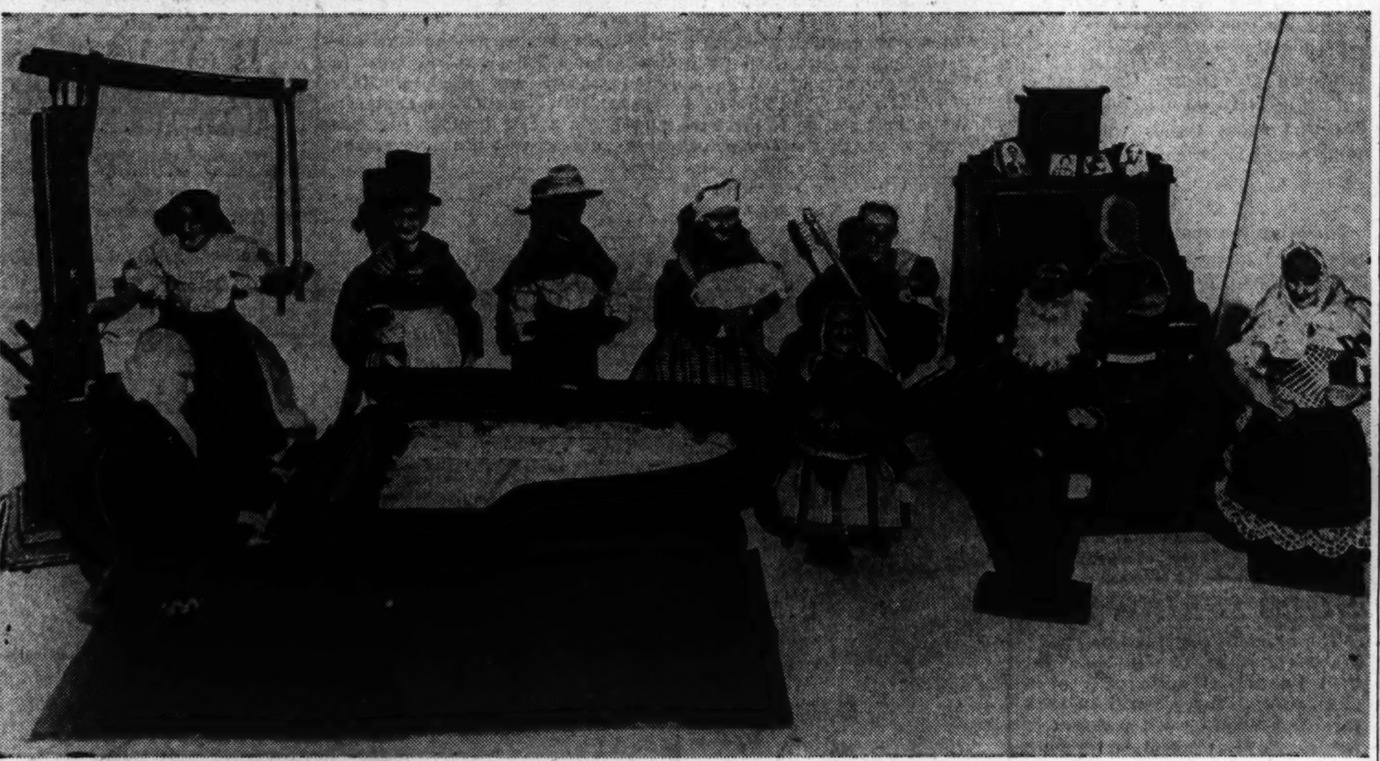
Miss Meyer is working on a picture of George Washington. After she chooses the picture she wishes to embroider she simply fits the canvas on her frame and sets out to make it without any preliminary drawing. The finer, the more delicate the work, the more she seems to enjoy it.



Almost as if listening to Paderewski play are these lifelike figurines representing Austria (at pump), West Hungary, Brazil, Finland, China, Nova Scotia, and America. The dolls are made of old silk stockings and scraps, and are modeled after persons pictured in a national magazine. All work on the dolls, from the facial features to the fingers and toes, is done with a needle.

NEW HYDE PARK JEWISH CENTER FUNDS SOUGHT

More Space Needed for Post-War

To serve better the needs of the rapidly growing Jewish population in the area, members of the Jewish Community center of Hyde Park are working on post-war plans for a new and larger building to replace their present one at 5227 Blackstone av.

The center, which serves 500 members, was organized 12 years ago by a group of nine business men. Five years ago, with a membership of more than 100, it became necessary to purchase a permanent location for the center. During the last five years the facilities of the present building have been outgrown.

Raise Half of Quota

Fourteen months ago building committees were formed. A finance drive was launched with a $150,000 goal. To date almost half that amount has been collected.

A modern three-story building has been planned with a 500 seat synagog, large classrooms for youth and adult education groups, a library, banquet hall, the recreation rooms for community activities. In addition to religious services held daily at the center, classes are conducted in Hebrew, the Talmud, and Jewish history. Post-war plans also call for a kindergarten.

Houses Other Meetings

Other groups meeting at the center include Boy Scout troops and a Red Cross unit. The following are the inter-center clubs and their presidents: Jewish Men's club of Hyde Park, Sol Ashbach; Women's division of the center, Mrs. David B. Bapaport, and the Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. Sam Kelner.

Officers of the center include Ben Z. Ginsburg, president; Bernard H. Goodman, vice president; Bernard Bloch, treasurer; Edwin Weinstein, Jack Markus and Leo R. Cohen, secretaries; Albert Goldblatt, sergeant at arms, and Albert S. Kroll, superintendent. Morris B. Margolies is rabbi.

Work for Building

Officers and members of the building committee include: David Eichner, chairman, Mrs. David B. Rapaport and Leo R. Cohen, secretaries, Albert S. Kroll, treasurer.

Sol Ashbach, Ben Ginsburg, Isadore Goldstein, Bernard H. Goodman, Joseph M. Komornik, Manny Lezak, Mrs. Isadore Markus, Benjamin H. Meyer, Ald. Moss [5th], David G. Rapaport, and Mrs. Irving Wallace.

Fun Night Will Be Held Friday at Loop Y.W.C.A.

Fun night for members of the Y. W. C. A. loop center, 203 N. Wabash av., will be held Friday night. Activities will include square dancing, roller skating, games, and community singing. South side girls on the planning committee include Edith Mitchel, 5414 Ingleside av.; Ruth Markovitz, 4736 Ingleside av.; and Ellen Silverman, 7329 Yates av.

CAP WILL STAGE AIR SHOW TODAY AT HARVEY POST

Event Will Climax Recruit Month

An air show at 1 p. m. today at Harvey's Ruginham airport will climax a month of recruiting by the civil air patrol in Illinois. More than 30 planes piloted by members of the Rubinkam squadron will take part in landing, flying, and stunt exhibitions.

Events have been arranged by Lt. Theo Farrington, operations officer, and Warrant Officer William Jacobs, flight officer and airport manager.

Plan Aerial Review

Opening the show will be an aerial review in which plane power available for local emergencies and war missions will be demonstrated. At 1:15, p. m. contestants in the powder puff Derby are scheduled to cross the finish of a 75 mile triangular course race. Participants will include Warrant Officers Elaine Smith and Cyrilla Knudtson, Lt. Frlyne Conel, and Privates Ruth Spietz, Lucille Schubbe, and Bernice Jacobs.

Warrant Officer Danny Kladis of the Harlem airport squadron, will make a 3,000 foot parachute jump following which there will be an exhibition of formation flying and aerobatics. Guests flying from the Harlem squadron will include Lt. Fred Chase Lt. Conway Bird, and Flight Leader Charles Compton. There will be a balloon pursuit by planes, cadet ground maneuvers, ribbon cutting by planes, and a message pickup which will demonstrate how planes in combat pick up messages, mail, and even human cargo without landing.

Speaker to Describe Action

Delayed parachute jumping, parachute package dropping, and parachute opening demonstrations also will be given. A spot landing contest will be held. All events will be described over a loud speaker.

400 FRIENDS ATTEND GOLDEN WEDDING OF SOUTH SIDE COUPLE

GET OUT PAPERS FOR 'BOMBERS—NOW OVER TOKYO'

Two Church Groups Edit News for Fighters

If military regulations permitted the use of more specific information than A. P. O. and F. P. O. numbers in overseas addresses, directions ranging from "foxhole—not far from Berlin" to "bomber—now over Tokyo" would be included in the mailing lists of two amateur publications edited by southwest area residents.

The two mimeographed news letters, Blue Star for service men from the Morgan Park Presbyterian church, Longwood dr. and 111th st., and the Roseland Pres for those from the Roseland Presbyterian church, 11200 State st., are edited by former school friends and neighbors of fighters.

Eight Get Out Blue Star

Eight young women, headed by Miss Lillian Penn, 10747 Kedzie av., spend their evenings writing and mimeographing the Blue Star for 100 service men and 100 civilian friends and relatives of the men. In the group are Mrs. Jeanette Isles, whose husband, Pvt. William Isles, was killed last July in France, Mrs. Muriel Jack, Miss Betty Barmore, Miss Sarah Jane Barmore, Miss Clara Lee, Miss Dorothy Richards, and Miss Pearl McGonigle.

The first issue of the Blue Star was printed immediately after Pearl Harbor, and it has been published once or twice each month since. Two girls are assigned to each of the four pages, one of which contains home news, one quotations from service men's letters, and a third jokes. On the fourth page are chatty columns and a message from the church pastor.

Several of the men who receive the Blue Star have been able to arrange meetings overseas after reading of each other's whereabouts in the news letter.

Send Wake of News Items

Copies of In the Wake of the News and A Line o' Type or Two, saved carefully by church members from their own Tribunes, are mailed each month with the Roseland Pres. According to Mrs. Frank C. Stevens, 10827 Normal av., the editor, the men await the columns almost as eagerly as they look forward to reading news of their community and fellow fighters in the mimeographed publication.

From the first one and a half page edition in February, 1943, of which Mrs. Stevens, working alone, printed 50 copies, the Pres has become the war project of more than 19 members of the Roseland church, and 300 copies of from 12 to 24 pages are published monthly.

Much of the Pres is made up of letters from service men, with a reply to each by Mrs. Stevens. Messages from other members of the church also are included, as well as community and family news, lists of promotions, and poems.

Also Works at Hospital

Mrs. Stevens, who works on the news letter after putting in long hours as an assistant in the maternity ward of the Roseland Community hospital, is the mother of two service men on the Pres mailing list. Lt. Frank Stevens, 23, is recuperating in a convalescent center at Fort Logan, Colo., after an airplane crash in which he was severely burned. Pvt. Ray Stevens, 21, is with the infantry in Germany, and has been awarded silver and bronze stars and the Purple Heart.

Several other Pres staff members are also parents of service men. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCutcheon, 10917 Wabash av., have a son, Edgar, serving as a radio technician, 1st class, in the Pacific. Pvt. George Johnson, son of Mrs. Lillian Johnson, 11033 Parnell av., is a paratrooper. Lt. Kenneth Greear, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Greear, 11317 Indiana av., has been reported missing in action in the Pacific. Another son, Vernon, is in the navy.

8 South Siders Named to Travelers Aid Group

Eight south siders were elected recently to the voluntary advisory committee of the Travelers' Aid society. They are: Mrs. Louis Forpeano, 8240 Clyde av.; Miss Alexandra Duncan, 5401 Cornell av.; Mrs. Lazarus Krinsley, 6723 Oglesby av.; Mrs. Sam Messina, 1323 E. 55th st.; Mrs. W. J. King, 7427 South Shore dr.; Mrs. Harold B. Moran, 5836 Stony Island av.; Miss Evelyn Full, 6445 Kimbark av., and Mrs. Warren Eggers, Whiting, Ind.

Five Generations Hold Conference

WHOLE FAMILY HELD IN INFANT LENDER'S PALM

But They Hold Her in Their Hearts

One year old Lender Jones not only has a mother and a grandmother to spoil her, but a great-grandmother and a great-great-grandmother as well. All insist, however, Lender is not the type who will spoil readily.

The matriarch of this five generations is Mrs. Carrie Hyman, 82, of 6131 South Park way. Mrs. Hyman, originally from Alabama, has, according to her family, young ideas. She doesn't look her age, as do none of the women, and is one person who thoroly approves of young people. Until recently when she was injured in a fall, she went out regularly and would let no one see her unless she were primped up a bit.

Married at 15

The great-grandmother, Mrs. Hyman's daughter, is Mrs. Mary Lee Arrington, 62, of 5915 Calumet av. Mrs. Arrington was married at the age of 15. She came with her husband to Chicago in 1918 and has lived on the south side since. For years after her husband died, Mrs. Arrington worked to support her three children, Mrs. Mabel Colum, Winston G., now Republican senatorial committeeman [5th], and Hyman, named after his grandmother.

Mrs. Colum, 6328 Langley av., is the grandmother. She has most of the care of Lender, as her daughter, Mrs. Connie Jones, Lender's mother, attends Lewis institute. Mrs. Jones, who with her husband and baby reside at 6414 Langley av., will graduate this summer to become a home economics teacher.

Look Like Sisters

Mrs. Colum and her daughter look like sisters. Mrs. Arrington says it used to be that way with her mother and herself also. Every one in the family feels that by far the most interesting member is Lender. "For a person with such a tiny hand," said her great-grandmother, "she certainly holds a lot of people in its palm."

As with many families, get-togethers are held on holidays, when each member takes turns doing the honors. Also there is an heirloom that has been handed down thru the generations. In this case it is an antique pitcher which belonged to the great-grandmother's grandmother—if you can figure that out.

42 Bryn Mawr Children Given Health Certificates

Forty-two kindergarten children at Bryn Mawr school, 7355 Jeffery av., recently were awarded health certificates by Mrs. Alfred P. Williams, PTA health chairman, and Miss Mary D. Mulroy, principal.

MAJ. MAURICE CASEY NAMED OPERATIONS, OFFICER AT AIR BASE

Maj. Maurice F. Casey Jr., 8415 Euclid av., recently was appointed group operations officer at an 8th air force Liberator station in England. The 24 year old bomber pilot and former squadron commander will be responsible for the supervision of all combat and noncombat flying in the organization and for the training and assignment of all combat men at the station.

Maj. Maurice Casey

Maj. Casey is a veteran of more than 30 bombing operations and has previously been awarded the air medal with three clusters and the distinguished flying cross with one cluster. He attended the University of Chicago.

500 GIRL SCOUT TROOPS TO SEEK SAFETY AT HOME

Chicago Girl Scouts will begin their "Every Home a Safe Home" campaign this week. Coöperating with the National Safety council, 500 Girl Scout troops will check their homes by lists compiled by the council on health and safety hazards.

Directing the south side campaign are Mrs. William Swanson, 1524 E. 59th st.; Mrs. Philip Mathisen, 7336 Bennett av.; Mrs. Norman Hilberry, 5737 Dorchester av.; Mrs. James Schoenberger, 4711 Ingleside av.; Mrs. Guy Kinney, 8117 Avalon av.; Mrs. Fred Warren, 1744 E. 84th st.; Mrs. E. J. Gleason, 7922 Muskegon av.; Mrs. Joseph Poney, 9323 Harper av.; Mrs. Mildred Johnson, 7712 Oglesby av., and Mrs. C. H. Buckles, 7801 Euclid av.

WABASH AV. Y. M. WORKERS WILL HOLD SPRING TEA

The religious work section of the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A. will hold its annual spring tea at 3 p. m. today. Proceeds will be used for the religious work program of the Y. E. M. Graham is religious work chairman.

Among the churches and clubs which will be represented at the tea are Carter temple, Quinn chapel, George Arthur institute, Y. M. C. A. girls, Tri-Hi-Y, Coppin chapel, the Paducah club, Bethesda's Excelsior club, and Carey temple. Chairmen for the tea are Mrs. Ashby B. Carter and Mrs. Cortez D. L. Bradshaw.

ACTS AS DECOY WHILE PLATOON FLANKS GUNNER

His platoon was ordered to take and hold three houses in the line of the company's advance. Facing heavy fire, Pvt. Albert Grillo crawled forward to the third house, engaging an enemy machine gun. He held the enemy's attention, permitting the rest of his platoon to flank the machine gun nest.

For this, Grillo, son of Mrs. Carmella Grillo, 324 W. 25th pl., was awarded the bronze star. Similar awards also were made to five other south siders, all serving with the 5th army in Italy. They are: Pvt. Jerome M. Stein, 6903 Merrill av.; Lt. Elliott H. Jurgensen, 7311 Oglesby av.; Corp. Albert Radis, 7657 Phillips av.; Pvt. Frank Ponziano, 7331 Kimbark av., and Sgt. William C. Smith, 1949 E. 72d st.

Cite Litter Bearer.

The bronze star was awarded Pvt. Jerome Stein, son of Morris Stein, for his services as a litter bearer in the medical detachment of an infantry regiment. Pvt. Stein and three others carried a litter thru heavy German fire to evacuate a wounded comrade. A machine gun bullet smashed the litter handle, but all four carriers completed their mission unharmed.

The citation accompanying the medal presented Lt. Elliott H. Jurgensen reads as follows: "On his own volition he left his observation post, carrying a radio, and alone scaled a slope to establish a better observation post. Altho subjected to hostile fire and lacking both cover and concealment, Lt. Jurgensen stayed in his position, directing the fire of his company so accurately the advance was completely successful." He directed the laying of smoke shells to assist a squad which he observed in imminent danger, thus permitting their escape. The lieutenant's wife, Betty Louise, lives at the Oglesby av. address.

Fortify Barn for Foe

Pvt. Frank Ponziano received his award as a member of a 14 man machine gun section which fought its way into an assigned position and converted a barn into a stronghold. For four days and nights Ponziano and his buddies resisted all attemps to drive them out. When the barn was set afire they withdrew to a house and kept on fighting until relieved. Pvt. Ponziano is the husband of Mrs. Viola Ponziano.

"For meritorious services in support of combat operations," Sgt. William C. Smith, husband of Mrs. Emily W. Smith, was awarded the bronze star. Sgt. Smith is a communications wire chief. According to the citation, he exercised "Outstanding judgment and a high degree of initiative in adapting a small communications section to meet the expanding needs of the command."

Corp. Albert Radis, a radio operator with an infantry regiment, received his award for heroic achievement in action. The corporal's wife, Mrs. Sadie Radis, lives at the Phillips av. address.

TINIEST STITCH BREATHES LIFE INTO HER DOLLS

Gossamered Elegance Is Fashioned from Bits

BY JANET PECK

Some artists are associated with a paint brush, a piano, or a violin. Others with a pencil or typewriter. The fine work done by Miss Nellie Meyer, 7746 Cregier av., has been recognized as art, and her medium is a needle.

Like many artists, her talent is an inherited one. It is, in fact, a family tradition that seems to have reached its fulfilment in Miss Meyer's delicate work. Her gift is a many faceted one. For years she crocheted finely patterned tablecloths and bedspreads, later working petit and gros point. Most recently her hobby has become the making of incredibly lifelike character dolls, all done, from facial features to fingers and toes, with a needle.

Uses Petit and Gros Point

Her needle point is done without a single line to guide her. She simply chooses the picture she wishes to reproduce and applies her needle. For faces and other points she wishes to emphasize she uses petit point; for background and clothing, gros point.

Miss Meyer has reproduced two finely detailed Currier and Ives prints, one of which hangs in the Stuyvesant Peabody residence in Chicago. Among her other works are a tapestry of an American flag, noted for its exquisite coloring, and a likeness of Lincoln made from a picture which appeared in the Tribune rotogravure section. At present she is working on an embroidered portrait of George Washington.

Dolls Are Different

It was when she noted the crudity in the making of a doll she received as a gift Miss Meyer decided to try her hand at making figures. She chose as her model foreign characters pictured in a national magazine. "I have always felt," she stated, "that dolls should not look alike. A Chinese doll, for instance, should have very different features and skin coloring than a French or Italian figure.

She set about to correct this error by molding the facial structure and features of each of her dolls with the aid of a needle and thread. The warm tones of silk stockings give the dolls a lifelike skin color, the darker shades being used for dolls representing Latin countries, and the lighter ones for the fairer types.

No Features Painted

Not a feature is painted. The eyes, ears, mouth, hair, fingers, and toes all are embroidered by hand. They are dressed to the minutest detail as pictured. "The costumes have to be authentic," she said, and then related an experience at a school exhibit. "One of the little boys seemed fascinated by the Gen. MacArthur figure," she said. "Finally he turned and noted, to my embarrassment, that the general wears five stars whereas the doll had only four. After that I went all out for authenticity."

In making her dolls Miss Meyer carries out the magazine photograph as far as she can. Her little Dutch girl for instance. The doll, with long blond braids, is dressed in a starched blue and white costume and is tending a dogcar. The wooden cart and make-believe cans of milk she had made to order. The black shaggy dog she created from pieces of fur scraps.

Or her shepherd, who represents Greece. He is about 8 inches tall and carries the traditional shepherd's crook in one hand while in the other arm a baby lamb, just as he did in the picture. The lamb was made of a piece of sheep skin.

Ingenuity plays a large part. Shoes are made from finger tips of old gloves. Straw hats and baskets Miss Meyer weaves herself. One little old Finnish peasant woman carries a pig to market. "I was puzzled about how I was going to make that pig," she admitted, "when a load of scraps arrived from a friend. In the bag was a piece of white velour. It was too white for a pig, but with a piece of pink silk underneath it had just the right coloring."

Paderewski Doll Lifelike

One of her most popular dolls is the Paderewski figure. Fashioned from a portrait of the artist, the doll bears a striking resemblance with its long white mane and bushy eyebrows. It is dressed for a concert and seated at a grand piano. The setting is complete to the special chair which the master carried with him when on concert tour.

Another character figure is Abraham Lincoln. The resemblance is notable. He is seated in the pose of the statue in Lincoln park.

One doll Miss Meyer will never part with [and seldom exhibits] is the portrait figure she made of her mother shortly before her mother died. She has placed the doll in a pose natural to her mother, sitting in a rocking chair doing a bit of handiwork. The costume is made of scraps of one of her mother's dresses. She is working on a tiny crochet piece. The model is detailed even to the shape of her mother's face, her hair style, and eyeglasses. It is kept in a small glass case.

And Lots of Patience

Miss Meyer's bedroom is her workshop and her tools are scraps, a needle and thread, a pair of good eyes, and lots of patience. She figures in the three years she has been making dolls she must have completed at least 200. At present she has for exhibit purposes about 40 or 50. When showing the dolls at a club or church, Mrs. O. F. Glaubitz, her sister, gives a short educational fact about each doll.

The figures recently were exhibited at the National Geographic exhibition in Washington, D. C. They also were shown at the Chicago Geographic exhibit.

Mother Tells of Engagement

MARION SULLIVAN.

The engagement of Marion Sullivan, 6625 Blackstone av., to Robert E. Benson, radio man 2d class, has been announced by her mother, Mrs. George Thomas. Mr. Benson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Benson, 1452 E. 71st pl. He attended De La Salle High school until his enlistment in the navy and now is serving aboard a destroyer escort. Miss Sullivan attended Aquinas High school.

GLASS OF PEAR PRESERVES HAS 71 YEAR HISTORY

Ornamenting the living room of Mrs. Ethel L. Liggett's apartment at 2348 E. 70th pl. is an old fashioned jar of preserved pears.

To her, however, these are not ordinary pears . . . rather a family heirloom. These preserved specimens of the Pyrus are 71 years old, have won a blue ribbon, been handled by Indians, trundled back and forth cross country, and eventually will be saved for posterity in a museum case.

Family history on the fruit began one canning day in 1874 at the Plymouth, Ind., home of Mrs. Liggett's grandmother. Canning in those days was an all-day job. The fruit had to simmer slowly and be watched constantly to be kept from burning. The grandmother, then a mother, let her daughter watch and stir the fruit, promising if the preserves turned out well that she should have a jar to save for her wedding day.

Puts Away Two Jars.

Evidently daughter did a good job, for when the fruit was jarred and sealed not one, but two jars were put away for her. She was married three years later and one of the jars was opened. The other, the bride whimsically decided, would be saved and opened at the marriage of her first son.

When the young couple traveled west the jar of fruit went along and was always kept a little apart from the other jams and jellies.

When the family returned to Indiana, the pears went right along with them and remained there until the mother's death. "Mother was sentimental over the fruit by that time," Mrs. Liggett said, "and I guess I inherited it from her. After she died I decided to keep the preserves until my brother married."

Brother Never Weds.

But her brother is nearing 60 and never has married. It looks like the jar is destined never to be opened.

In 1933, the preserves were entered in a contest sponsored by the Ball brothers, makers of glass fruit jars. The contest held at the World's fair was to determine the oldest jar of fruit. The 2,000 entrees were narrowed down to nine and finally the blue ribbon was awarded Mrs. Liggett's jar.

Whenever Mrs. Liggett takes a trip, the jar of fruit, carefully packed, goes along. Therefore, in addition to its age, it is to be valued for the unusual mileage it has traveled. She plans to present the jar to the Ball Bros., company someday to be put on permanent display in the museum of their plant in Muncie, Ind.

COUPLE WITHOUT SIGHT SEES WAY TO HELP IN WAR

Work at Tooling, Pack Tractor Parts

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kunter, 3019 62d st., wanting to make a direct contribution to the war, but blinded since childhood, were unable to look for work in the usual way. Turning to the state employment agency for the blind, they obtained positions from Charles Gratten, himself blind.

Mrs. Kunter began work at the International Harvester company a year ago in the pre-packing department and now works eight hours a day, six days a week. Along with 50 other women, she weighs, sorts and packs parts of tractors, weighing from 1 ounce to 25 pounds, for shipment overseas. Company officials have said her work is as free from errors as that of the others.

Her Only Job

This is the only full time job Mrs. Kunter ever has held. Previously she was employed by the Red Cross to proofread braille books in her home. She was blinded in an accident when 5. Mrs. Kunter is a graduate of Wendell Phillips High school.

A childhood disease took Carl Kunter's vision. Later he attended State School for the Blind at Jacksonville, Ill. Learning the piano tuning trade, he practiced it until the war. Then he worked concession stands, obtained thru a society for the blind, in the Merchandise Mart and the County building. His present position, obtained thru a state agency, is with the Hinsdale Tool company, 1728 Walnut st.

Meet in Social Group

In 1929, Carl and Nettie were married. They had met thru a social group for the blind. They have one child, Cecile, 8, a student at Marquette school. A maid calls Cecile each morning and gets breakfast for her while the parents are at work. A cocker spaniel completes the family group.

Apart from cutting down on the family food consumption, ration points and colored tokens have not made shopping any greater a problem than it is for other housewives. Mrs. Kunter's daughter, or sister, Mrs. William Golden, accompanies her to the stores. "Kind and considerate grocers help me, too, when I am alone," Mrs. Kunter declared.

Couple Enjoys Movies

In off hours, the movies are the family's favorite form of recreation. Not being able to see the screen doesn't hamper the enjoyment of the blind couple. They describe their enjoyment as being similar to the pleasure other people obtain from listening to the radio.

At home they read a great deal. The Reader's Digest is their choice for magazine reading. Light novels are the favorite type of book. Altho Cecile is now learning to read, she remembers the time when her mother read fairy stories to her, in braille books. Young as she is, Cecile realizes that even tho sight reading is hard to learn, finger or braille reading, is more difficult.

HOLD LUNCHEON OF WOOD SHORE CLUB SATURDAY

The Woodshore Woman's club will hold its annual spring luncheon at 1 p. m. Saturday at the Swedish club, 7330 Ridgeland av. Mrs. C. A. Williams, social chairman, is in charge of arrangements.

Newly elected officers and chairmen who will be introduced are Mrs. William Greer, president; Mrs. W. W. Schwartz and Mrs. Leslie Curtis, vice presidents; Mrs. George Crowe and Mrs. Al Frederickson, secretaries; Mrs. Joseph Maguire, treasurer; Mrs. William Dickson, American home chairman; Mrs. W. G. Gustavson, art and literature; Mrs. Stanley Tanan, music; Mrs. Walter Nelson, philanthropy.

Miss Ethelyn Ahern, press and publicity; Mrs. Charles Molter, program; Mrs. Thomas Field, ways and means, and Mrs. Stanley Johnson, house and door. Luncheon guests will include Mrs. W. E. Smith, vice president of 2d district, and Mrs. John Walsh, Woodshore Jr., president.

SOUTHEAST PTA COUNCIL WILL HEAR REPORTS

Presidents in the Southeast Council of Parents and Teachers will report their outstanding parent-teacher accomplishment of the year at the presidents report tea Wednesday afternoon in the Sexton school, 641 E. 69th st.

Newly elected council officers will be presented. They are Mrs. Cecil Dawson, president; Mrs. Max D. Engelhart, vice president and program chairman; Mrs. H. E. Balback and Mrs. L. C. Gesbeck, secretaries; Mrs. W. J. Seligman, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles A. Keyes, historian.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 30

Now is the time to put out a few plants that will have a chance to live if light frosts should come. It is better not to force plants by planting out of doors. Harden them off in the frame, protecting them at night if sudden cold weather approaches.

Tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, cucumbers, and other tender kinds seldom respond during cool weather, but if planted when the soil is warm they grow rapidly and become established quickly.

Pansies should be in the ground and flowering; the half hardy annuals can be sown. Perennials should be transplanted.

Tuesday, May 1

Continue cultivating the garden to kill weeds. Do this when the weeds are small, cultivating no more than an inch deep. As the plants grow, whether they are vegetables or flowers, do not cut too close to the plants or the roots may be injured.

Wednesday, May 2

When sowing fine seed, such as poppy or mignonette, mix it with three parts of sand. Poppy seed is very fine and because of that the gardner usually sows it too thick and is obliged to cut the plants.

To thin, when the seedlings are about an inch high, hoe the bed across in lines about 18 inches wide, leaving thin lines of plants. Then hoe across the other way so that the lines will be from 12 to 18 inches apart.

Thursday, May 3

If nasturtiums are sown in too rich a soil an abundance of foliage will be produced but few flowers. The same is true of the California poppy, statice, and portulaca.

What to plant in shade is always a problem, but for a quick growing garden of annuals there is nothing quite as satisfactory as the nicotiana sylvestric. It is a fine plant of pyramidal habit, grows up to 6 feet, with heads of tubular white flowers and fine, green leaves.

Friday, May 4

A good tropical annual for planting along a fence, or to hide the sunny side of the garage, is the common castor bean. The large, handsome leaves develop rapidly. It may be used as a center plant in a bed, with cannas next to it and fountain grass as a border. Plant after May 20 but not much earlier.

Keep on cultivating the garden even tho no weeds are visible. Keep the yard in good condition by weeding walks, flower beds, and borders.

Saturday, May 5

Plunge all small pots of annuals to their rim in the coldframe. Plunging keeps moist soil around the plants, preventing their drying out.

Watch for insects and begin spraying as soon as the first one is sighted. It is absolutely necessary to combat insect pests the minute the plants are attacked.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

BEST INTERIOR PAINTS REFLECT THE MOST LIGHTS

BY LOUISE BARGELT

In choosing colors for the walls and ceilings of a house, it is well to keep on hand a check guide which shows just how much light each color reflects. In studying this chart one should remember that all colors which have a rating of 70 per cent or more are considered suitable for ceilings. And the darker the shade you select for the walls the lighter the ceiling should be.

White reflects 89 per cent of light; ivory, 82 per cent; canary yellow, 77 per cent; cream, 77 per cent, caen stone, 76 per cent; orchid, 67 per cent; cream gray, 66 per cent; ivory tan, 66 per cent; sky blue, 65 per cent; buff, 63 per cent; pale green, 59 per cent; shell pink, 55 per cent; silver gray, 46 per cent; olive tan, 43 per cent; forest green, 22 per cent, and cocoanut brown, 16 per cent.

Check Danger Signs

This is the season when the exterior of the house needs attention as well as the inside. Here are a few danger signs which will tell you whether your house needs painting:

If window sills show broken, cracked layers of paint, sand away the old paint before you repaint. Putty all cracks and holes.

If you find rusted nails and dirt streaks on exterior siding you can be certain that water is creeping behind the siding and causing the paint film to break down.

Replace Cracked Wood

Before one starts to paint the exterior walls of a house, trim and siding should be well nailed and if any wood has cracked and broken it should be replaced. Copper or galvanized gutters and downspouts should be given two coats of metal paint before the final finish coat is applied.

Before painting all loose paint should be burned or scraped off. [And better let an expert do the burning if you decide on that method. It is dangerous work.]

PARK SQUIRRELS GIVE MILK FED KIN RUN AROUND

Saucy Jimmy Also Has Housing Problem

BY JANET PECK

Altho a resident of the Japanese gardens at Jackson park for six months, Jimmy II, a chipper, bright-eyed squirrel, has not as yet been accepted into the exclusive society of his species.

It seems to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shirley, his guardians, that the other squirrels sense that Jimmy was raised differently. And he was. Jimmy's life took an unusual turn when he fell out of the parental nest. The caretaker picked him up, a tiny baby, his eyes not yet open, and offered him to Mr. and Mrs. Shirley, 6359 Kenwood av. He was sure the couple would be good to him because they had been weekly visitors at the park for 15 years.

Thrives on Daily Milk

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley took the baby home. In their four room apartment they fed him his milk, first with an eye dropper and later with a bottle and nipple. Jimmy thrived like a baby in a milk ad. The Shirley's are experienced squirrel raisers, having had a similar experience with another squirrel baby, Jimmy I, four years ago.

The older Jimmy II grew, the more mischievous he became . . . gnawing at furniture and pictures and scattering things around until the couple never knew just what to expect when they returned home from work at night. Neither wanted to admit it, but the time was coming when he must be returned to his natural habitat.

In order that he might become acclimated before cold weather, one morning last fall with heavy hearts they plopped Jimmy into a waste basket, covered him with a towel, and took him back to the park.

Tell of Worries

They let him loose at a tree they knew was tenanted by other squirrels. "My," related Mrs. Shirley, "how we worried over that squirrel! We were pretty sure he'd get enough to eat, for the caretaker promised to watch out for him, but we weren't sure he would know enough to drink."

"So," continued Mr. Shirley, "we'd come over at night after work with a bottle of milk in my pocket just to be sure. We'd go to the tree and call his name, and down he would scamper to see us." Asked how they knew it was their squirrel, both emphatically stated they'd know him anywhere . . . even if he didn't have a scar on his back.

Jimmy Likes People

People are a little afraid of Jimmy, because he isn't afraid of them. He jumps on their shoulders, runs up their arms and scampers around them as they sit on the benches. "Probably a result of early spoiling by us," the couple believe. . . But Jimmy has taken a lot of punishment from his brothers.

"The first thing we knew," related Mrs. Shirley, as Jimmy sat up to receive a walnut meat, "Jimmy had moved to another tree . . . he was probably put out of the other one. It was cold weather so I brought strips of flannel down for his nest and stuck them at the base of his new home. Next day they were scattered all over the tree—his old trick—so I was satisfied he'd found them.

Moves Third Time

Now spring has come to the gardens, and altho Jimmy seems to be getting along a little better with the other squirrels, the couple still wonders if he has been wholly accepted inasmuch as he has moved again. This time to a lonely tree stump on the edge of the lagoon. "We just can't be sure," the couple said, "inasmuch as he always was very independent."

As if to prove their point, Jimmy scorned their latest nut offering, declined to show off any more, and with a flip of his tail scuttled off about his own business.

Student soloist will be Claire Hultgen, and roles of nuns will be played by Dolores Brooks, Patricia Creighton, Patricia Connaughton, Sally Cummings, Virginia Dunne, Noanette Ehret, Annamae Graver, and Marilyn Horsch.

Miss Sweeney also played a leading role in the academy's production of "Undertow," which won second place in the Illinois High School association dramatic festival this month.

PHYSICIAN TAKES HORSE FOR RIDE (BEFORE MEALS)

It is a good doctor who follows his own advice, the saying goes, and Dr. Frank P. Hammond, 1518 E. 59th st., does just that. Six years ago, ill health made him give up his favorite sport, golf, and he was on the look-out for another recreation.

Dr. Hammond loves horses and even tho it then was 40 years since he had been in the saddle, he felt sure he had the right prescription. The 66 year old physician has ridden one or two hours daily since.

Ride Horses for Health

"Horseback riding is an all-year hobby, surpassing golf," he said. "Those who ride, stay sound and healthy, inside and out."

Dr. Hammond always wanted to share his riding pleasure with his wife, Connie, but she was afraid of horses. Three years ago she decided to learn to ride. Beginning with walking horses, she took daily lessons until she not only conquered her fear but became a proficient rider. Thrown once, when a dog frightened her horse, she proved her former fear was conquered by remounting immediately.

The couple has belonged to Olympia Fields Country club more than 20 years. They have lived in their cottage on the club grounds from early May to late September. For the last two years they have journeyed from their home to the club on horseback, making the 25 mile trip in about six hours.

Make Yearly Migration

The doctor and his wife planned to make their annual migration yesterday. Altho the longer part of the trip will take them on congested roads, the horses are not afraid of automobile traffic. Part of the ride will be made on the shoulders of roads. For those who pity the horses because of the long ride, Dr. Hammond says the riders, not the horses, are the ones to be pitied.

Altho the Hammonds are the only club members who ride to the club from their home, many others keep their horses on the grounds. The doctor's Royal Scott, a chestnut gelding, was purchased last summer. Justa Darlin, Mrs. Hammond's filly, was her husband's former horse.

In keeping with the aims of the Town and Country Equestrian association: to stimulate riding by recording the hours one rides, Dr. Hammond knows he has ridden more than 160 hours this year. Last year he won second prize for riding more than 600 hours.

Must Master Horses

In discussing reasons why more people don't ride, Dr. Hammond placed fear and the uncertainty of how to handle horses as the chief barrier. He advises never to let a horse have its own way or break gait. Ninety per cent firmness and aggression, but not cruelty, and 10 per cent kindness, not indulgence, is the best guide, he said.

GREIG, STERLING CHORUSES WILL GIVE CONCERT

The Greig Male chorus, directed by Peter Olson and augmented by the Sterling Male chorus conducted by Richard Wesselius, will give a concert at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the United Lutheran church, Greenfield and Ridgeland avs. in Oak Park. Soloists will be Rose Arzoomanian, soprano, and Ray Rheinhartsen, baritone. The Greig chorus was chosen the best male chorus in the 1937 Chicago Music Festival contest. The Greig group is a northwest side organization and the Sterling chorus is a south side group.

FOUR BROTHERS SERVE OVERSEAS, FIFTH IN ILLINOIS

On Dec. 7, 1941, the five army age sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morrell were exchanging views on the world series when the radio brought startling news—news that would mean their separation from the home at 503 W. 81st st., where all of them were born, and where their parents had lived 40 years.

"Here we go, fellows," observed Albert, youngest of the five. The others nodded soberly.

Albert's prediction came true soon. First to go was Leo, who left in January, 1942. In May, Eugene was inducted, and next, in September, was Albert. William went into the air forces in January, 1943, and Samuel into the medical corps the following September.

Four of the boys are overseas. Leo, 27, a technician 5th grade, is with a cannon company in France, Sgt. Eugene, 25, is in an infantry headquarters finance office in India, and Pvt. William, 29, is in England.

Corp. Albert, 22, was wounded in Germany last Dec. 19 when a bomb exploded, and since then has been in an army hospital in England. He has received the Purple Heart.

Pvt. Samuel, 35, is on the staff of Mayo General hospital, Galesburg, Ill.

Plans for a family reunion—the first since Leo went into service 39 months ago—at the close of the European war are already being made by Mrs. Morrell. Present to welcome their brothers will be Henry Morrell, 504 W. 81st st., a war worker; David, youngest of the family, who attends Calumet High, as did all his brothers; Genevieve, also a war worker, and Mrs. Eva Workman, 8824 Union av.

RADIO'S JARGON IS EXPLAINED IN MBS GLOSSARY

'Leg' Means Something Else in Studios

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Know what a "leg" is as applied to broadcasting? Nope, it has nothing to do with pinups of radio beauties. It means a regional chain, or part of a bigger network. "Cold" in radio doesn't refer to a congestion in the head. It means without preliminaries or embellishment. It is applied to a program that begins in such a manner.

A glossary of several hundred radio expressions [with definitions] has been compiled by Gilbert McClelland of the Mutual network staff to serve as a handy guide to personnel—particularly new persons who are likely to be a bit baffled by the lexicon of broadcasting. Below are a few selections from the booklet which may be of general interest:

Across the board — Radio program booked daily at the same time.
Ad lib—To improvise, to speak lines not in the script.
Breaks—Any interruptions in a program.
Bridge — A piece of transitional music or sound effect to link scenes.
Bugs—Trouble in equipment caused by something not immediately obvious.
Channel—An electrical circuit.
Clear a number—To obtain official permission to use a certain musical selection.
Cushion—A flexible musical number near the end of a program which can be lengthened or shortened.
Cow-catcher — Advertising messages carried just before a specific program plugging some auxiliary product of the sponsor.
Dawn patrol—Those concerned with early morning programs.
Dress—The final complete rehearsal.
Dubbing—Transposing recorded matter to a new record.
Electrical Transcription—An electrical recording made especially for broadcasting.
Fade—A diminishing of program volume.
Feed—To send a program over the air, to other stations or groups of stations.
Fill—Added program material.
Fluff—Missing a cue, or stumbling over a line.
In the mud—Too little tonal volume or lack of definition.
Key station—The station where the network program originates.
Live—As opposed to recorded or transcribed.
Local—A program presented from a single station.
Log—An accurate journal of every minute of broadcasting; required by law.
MC—Master of ceremonies.
Mike—A microphone.
Mike Hog—One of a group of performers who elbows others from the microphone.
Mix—Combining the input of two or more microphones to effect a complete balance.
Monitor—To check the program by means of audio equipment.
On the button [head, nose]—Ending [a program] exactly on time.
P. A.—Public address or talk back system. Also press agent, or personal appearance.
Pancake turner—The sound technician controling the playing of double faced records.
Platter—A phonograph record or a transcription.
R. & R.—Record and Repeat.
Round Robin—A wire loop going from one point thru various points and returning. It can be broken at any point and programs sent either or both ways for various program originations or for split network purposes.
Ride gain—The studio engineer is said to ride gain while controlling increases or decreases in program volume.
Script—A manuscript. Continuity. Dramatic score.
Segue — The transition from one musical number to another without break or interruption.
Signature—Musical number or sound effect identifying a program.
Sneak in—To introduce music softly and then bring it up full behind dialog.
Stand-by—A substitute program ready to put on the air in case of an emergency. Also used as a warning to performers to get ready to go on the air.
Stretch — Slow up the concluding musical number so that the show will finish on the nose.
Take it away—The cue from studio engineer to engineer of succeeding program.

One expression not included but often heard around radio studios is "in conference." As we recall, it was Fred Allen who defined a conference as "a meeting of vice presidents who singly can do nothing and who together can only decide that nothing can be done."

Kirkwood Is Radio Guest

Jack Kirkwood, comedian, will be a guest on the Andrews Sisters snow over WENR-Blue at 3:30 p m. today.

Musical Team

Jerry Wayne will have as guest on his show Songstress Evelyn Knight at 7:30 tonight over WENR-Blue.

OFFER 'MAYTIME' NEXT ON W-G-N THEATER OF AIR

Sigmund Romberg's popular operetta "Maytime" will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air from the stage of Medinah temple before an audience of about 4,500. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Among the familiar numbers to be sung by Marion Claire, prima donna of the series, and her supporting soloists and chorus, are "Will You Remember?," "Windy Day on the Battery," "Our Little Sweet Home," and "Road to Paradise." Richard Tucker, star of the Metropolitan opera, will sing the tenor lead and Earle Wilkie, the baritone part.

The background music will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber.

In the dramatic cast will be Sondra Gair, William Everett, Forrest Lewis John Barclay, Laurette Fillbrandt, Hope Summers, John Mallon, and Lee Bennett. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

Stassen to Talk Today on Quiz Kid Broadcast

Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, a delegate to the San Francisco Security conference, will be cut in from San Francisco for a report on the historic meeting during the Quiz Kid show over WENR-Blue at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Contestants on tonight's broadcast will be Richard Williams, Harve Fischman, Ruthie Duskin, Patrick Conlon, and Jim Strock. Joe Kelly will be quiz master.

FAMILY OF FOUR DECIDES NAVY IS PLACE FOR THEM

With a record of service in two wars, the Crowell C. Dacus family, 8823 Michigan av., is 100 per cent navy. Both parents served during World War I. and Mr. Dacus is again on active duty. One son has been honorably discharged and the second is on an aircraft carrier in the Pacific.

Heading this quartet of sailors is Chief Warrant Officer Crowell Dacus Sr. As a chief pharmacist's mate, he served in the navy from Sept. 13, 1913, to Nov. 20, 1920. On reserve status during peace time, he was recalled to active duty Jan. 1, 1941.

At present he is stationed at Navy Pier.

Mrs. Dacus joined the navy nurse corps on July 5, 1916, and during the first World War worked in naval hospitals at Annapolis, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa.

Crowell Jr., now 25, enlisted in the navy Oct. 2, 1940, just three months before his father was recalled. He received training at Great Lakes and in the yeoman school in Toledo, O

The fourth sailor in the family is Chief Quartermaster William Dacus, 22, who enlisted in July, 1942. A former Morgan Park junior college student, he started his navy career as an apprentice seaman, and recently received his present rating for meritorious service in the Pacific.

American Women at War

Katherine Porter Allen, daughter of Charles L. Porter, 5708 Kimbark av., was recently promoted to lieutenant commander in the WAVES, and assigned as officer in charge of the largest WAVE quarters in the country, at Washington, D. C. Comdr. Allen helped guide the growth of the quarters from the original four barracks to its present 30 barracks, an administration building, mess hall, recreation hall, and swimming pool. She is a graduate of Ohio State university.

Katherine Allen

WAC Sgt. Kathleen I. Spear, daughter of Mrs. Christina Spear, 7628 Colfax av., is serving at the Philippine headquarters of the far east A. A. F. A member of the original WAAC, Sgt. Spear received her basic training at Fort Des Moines, Ia. She has served at Camp Ruxton, La., Kellogg field, Mich., and Columbia, S. C. Her brother James is a sergeant in the army medical corps.

Dorothy E. Abrahamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Abrahamson, 8029 Woodlawn av., has been promoted to first lieutenant at the general hospital in New Guinea. She is a graduate of Hirsch High school and Augustana nursing school. She entered service in November, 1943.

Recently promoted to sergeant was Martha V. Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hughes, 5631 Dorchester av., who is serving with the WAC at the Pine Bluff Chemical Warfare arsenal. Sgt. Hughes, a graduate of St. Thomas the Apostle High school, has been in service since February, 1943.

WAC Pvt. Verna L. Levy, 6100 University av., has finished her basic training at Fort Des Moines, Ia., and has been assigned to Pámpa, Tex.

ENGLISH WIFE OF YANK LIKES 'LAND OF PLENTY'

"Everything seems backwards to me here in America," laughed Mrs. Elizabeth Watt, English wife of Lt. Maurice Watt. Mrs. Watt recently arrived in this country with her two children, Judy, 1, and Jill, 2 months. She will make her home until after the war with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Watt of Hammond, Ind.

"The door knobs," she went on to explain, "seem to be on the wrong part of the door, the light switches work backwards, and I very nearly flooded the house the other day forgetting that the water taps turn differently."

Met Husband in 1942

She met Lt. Watt, a control tower operator in the air forces, in October, 1942, while she was serving in an administration unit of the ATS, English equivalent of the WAC. They were married in January, 1943. Her husband's parents applied for her visa last summer. They hoped she would arrive for Thanksgiving, then for Christmas, but had to wait until spring.

"I came across aboard a troopship," related Mrs. Watt, "with 60 other English wives, most of whom had children. There were six of us to a cabin and the children slept in boxes or suitcases." There were two sub alerts and the babies formula ran out when the trip took longer than expected. Mrs. Watt insisted in her soft British voice, however, that it "wasn't half bad." She continued, "When the boys aboard saw the Statue of Liberty they were hilarious, laughing and hugging one another. One couldn't help but feel happy for them."

"A Land of Plenty"

"My first impression of America is one of plenty," she said. "There seems to be a variety and abundance of food, clothing, and simple necessities such as I haven't seen since the war began." And her father-in-law now has some one to share his enthusiasm for ice cream. "I haven't tasted such ice cream as you have over here for a long time," she said.

Also living at home for the duration is the Watt's daughter, Mrs. Charles Cavin, whose husband is also in England, and daughter, Pat, 4. Mrs. Cavin declares Betty is a wonderful morale builder. "She thinks everything we have as wonderful, including, or I should say, especially, our washing machine."

The Watt's have another son in service, Charles, who is a sound officer's mate 2d class serving on a mine sweeper in the Southwest Pacific.

FOREST PARK'S 'OLD FIRST' WILL MARK 80 YEARS

Lutherans Recall Early Years

First Evangelical and Reformed church, "Old First" of Forest Park, is planning its first real anniversary celebration since its founding in 1865 on Morgan st. in old Chicago. The 80th anniversary program will include four special services starting July 18 and will feature a homecoming.

Rev. W. F. Kieker

In the westward trend of the church location from Morgan st. to Des Plaines av., then to Hastings st. and finally to Forest Park in 1920, the church has retained on its rolls 35 families who attended its services in other west side neighborhoods.

Scan Early Records

The Rev. Walter F. Kieker, pastor of the church; his son, the Rev. Walter W. Kieker, assistant pastor; Roy Carstens, president of the congregation and chairman of the anniversary, with their committees, have been gathering data regarding the organization's early days.

Early records show that a Rev. Mr. Winter organized the church and that a Rev. Mr. Kuenzler was the first pastor. During the pastorate of a Rev. Mr. Hansen three lots were purchased on Hastings st. near Ashland av., then the western boundary of Chicago.

Times were hard and the Rev. Mr. Hansen opened soup kitchens for the needy. When the Des Plaines st. property was sold for $6,000 the building of a new church house was undertaken. The Rev. H. A. Maier, then pastor, obtained a loan of $2,000 from the Milwaukee and Sheboygan classes.

Move Into Basement

In 1877 it was possible to hold church and Sunday school services in the completed basement, the pews being rough benches. A parochial school soon became self-sustaining. Membership doubled. The new $7,400 church was dedicated.

Factional strife hampered the pastorate of a Rev. Mr. Zimmermann, according to records, but progress was made in religious education. Two members took charge of the Sunday school and Miss Lucy Zinn became a leader of the Young Peoples' group.

During the pastorate of the Rev. Christian Keller the congregation prospered, but the parochial school had to be discontinued. It was while a Rev. Mr. Heinemann was pastor that $1,000 in revenue was acquired by dividing the church basement into rooms for the accommodation of World's fair visitors. The Rev. Paul Traeger became pastor in 1897.

Pastor Stays 37 Years

Thanksgiving day in 1901 marked the beginning of the long and fruitful 37 year pastorate of the Rev. Frederick Kalbfleisch.

But members of the church were gradually moving westward and, to meet the change, the Hastings st. property was sold for $17,500 and the site for the present church in Forest Park purchased. In 1922 a portable chapel was dedicated and the cornerstone of a new building laid June 3, 1928.

E. H. Luebeck became superintendent of the Sunday school which, since 1933, has been a graded school. Mr. and Mrs. Luebeck worked untiringly and the death of Mr. Luebeck last year came as a shock to the congregation. Franklin Wolfgram assumed the many duties which Mr. Luebeck had performed.

Reduce Church Debt

The Rev. Robert Vitz succeeded the Rev. Mr. Kalbfleisch in 1938 and during his pastorate 149 members were added to the rolls and the church debt was reduced to $10,000. The Rev. Mr. Vitz is now a navy chaplain and serving at a captain at El Centro, Cal.

The present pastor, the Rev. Walter F. Kieker, came from Falls City, Neb., June 1, 1943, to assume his duties at the church. Given cooperation by the membership, and especially the consistory and officers of the church organizations, his pastorate has seen the addition of many new members. The church debt has been reduced to the vanishing point.

Young People Carry On

Many of the young men of the church have been called to war, but under leadership of Miss Agnes Daehn the Youth Fellowship has become an important organization. Other groups include the Sunday school, the Ladies' aid, the Sewing circle, the Tamahs, the Los Amigos, the Girls' guild, the Men's club, and the choir.

Dr. William Rest, president of the Illinois synod, will speak at the anniversary service on the evening of July 18. Civic and fraternal organizations of the village will be invited to Community night, July 19, when Dr. Louis Sittler of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church, will preach. Homecoming night will be held July 20. Dr. Louis Goebel, president of the Evangelical and Reformed church will give the anniversary Sunday address, July 22.

Paper Will Go Overseas If You Buy Posie, Please

INSPIRES UNIT BY ZIGZAG DASH ON GUNS OF FOE

Wins Silver Star for Storming House

The silver star for gallantry has been awarded Pvt. Daniel T. Lilly, 143 N. Menard av. Serving with the infantry in Italy, he was the first to leave the comparative safety of his foxhole and rush toward a house which had been fortified by the enemy.

Pvt. Daniel Lilly

"Despite artillery and machine gun fire, Pvt. Lilly leaped out of his foxhole and zigzagged across an open field toward an enemy held house 150 yards away," his citation says in part.

Dashes Thru Gunfire

"Inspiring his platoon to follow him, he ran thru gunfire that missed him by inches to a pile of rubble 10 feet from the house. After being forced by hand grenades to withdraw about 15 yards to the cover of a shellhole, he killed two of the enemy with tommy gun fire. He then rushed the house, tossing a grenade into it as he ran. Four more of the enemy immediately surrendered to him."

In addition to the silver star, Pvt. Lilly also wears the Purple Heart with cluster. He was wounded last Aug. 18 and also on Sept. 25 while in action in France. At present he is at the 300th general hospital in Italy.

Attended Loyola U.

Pvt. Lilly is a graduate of St. Bebe's academy at Peru, Ill. Before entering service he was a pre-medical student at Loyola university.

He is the son of the late Dr. John M. Lilly. His mother, Mrs. Marie C. Lilly, lives at the Menard av. address.

GLENBARD HIGH PUPILS VOTE ON FUTURE HOMES

When they have completed their education, 79 per cent of Glenbard High school students who were recently interviewed expect to leave their community and go elsewhere.

Asked why they planned to leave, 43 per cent gave better job opportunities as the reason. A desire to live in another part of the country or in another part of the world was expressed by 22 per cent.

A South American country was the choice of 21 per cent of the boys and girls. France was next with 12 per cent, and Mexico was third with 10 per cent. Less than 2 per cent expressed a desire to visit an African country.

Altogether, 104 boys and 106 girls took part in what was the ninth student opinion poll taken at the school.

MASS WILL OPEN COLLEGE DAY ON ROSARY CAMPUS

Seven hundred students of Rosary college, River Forest, will open their annual College day tomorrow with an outdoor high mass at which the Rev. Frederick Klueg, college chaplain, will officiate.

Special event of the day will be a horse show, directed by Sarah Ellen Beaton, sophomore. Miss Beaton will ride in the exhibition, but is not competing this year. She won the Rosary college trophy in 1944.

Mary Wright, senior, is in charge of all other outdoor activities, which will include a picnic lunch, a baseball game between lay members of the faculty and students, and exhibition tennis matches.

LA GRANGE CHURCH CHOIRS SING HAYDN'S 'THE SEASONS' TODAY

The combined choirs of the First Congregational church of La Grange will present Haydn's "The Seasons," at 4.30 p. m. today under direction of George Howerton, minister of music. The performance, open to the public without charge, will be given in the sanctuary of the church, La Grange rd. and Cossitt blvd., La Grange. Soloists will be Maud Nosler, soprano; Richard Paige, tenor, and David Glismann, bass. Accompanists will be Joseph Anderson, organist, and Mary Louise Boehm, pianist.

Maude Nosler

W. SIDE ACADEMY WILL GIVE 'SONG OF BERNADETTE'

Lorraine Martin will take the part of the Blessed Virgin and Marilyn Hennebry will be Bernadette in the three act drama, "The Song of Bernadette," to be presented Friday and Sunday nights in the auditorium of Lyons Township High school, La Grange, by the senior class of Nazareth academy.

To acquire atmosphere for the play, the girls visited the Grotto of Lourdes, erected in 1915 on Our Lady of Bethlehem grounds near the Forest preserve, which is a replica of the famous shrine at Lourdes, France.

Jaeger Club

The Jaeger club of Holy Mount parish will hold its annual smoker at 5 p. m. today in the hall at 2416 S. 61st av., Cicero. James Vlk, entertainment chairman, will be assisted by Joseph Zamis and George Novy.

NAME LEADERS FOR YORK HIGH STUDENT BODY

Mark Stephenson, production manager of York-Hi, student publication, recently was elected president of the newly formed student council at York High school. James Vollnogle, a sophomore, won the vice presidency, and Sara Jane Irvin will resume the secretarial duties she carried out during the constitutional committee period.

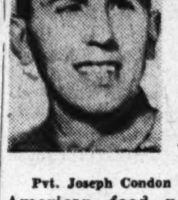
Committees were appointed as follows: Alan Cornelius, Harry Kovats, and Jack Hemwall, assembly; Paul Sample, Kenneth Helme, and Shirley Asmus, calendar; George Kierspe, John Harder, and Ralph Anderson, public relations; Harold Bendigkeit, Betty Roe, and Peter Kruse, activities, and Robert Koenig, Phillip Thorneycroft, and Russell Boerger, safety.

Aeolian Choir

Morton Aeolian choir of 126 voices will present a concert Thursday night in the Morton High school auditorium. Guest artist will be Porter Heaps, organist. Cornelius H. Kiekert is director.

SOLDIER IS REPORTED MISSING; DISCOVERED IN NAZI PRISON CAMP

Pvt. Joseph Condon, listed by the war department as missing in action Jan. 23, is very much alive, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Condon, 5015 West End av., learned recently.



Pvt. Joseph Condon

A letter from their son stated, "I was liberated from a German prison camp by American soldiers April 2, and am eating good American food now after having tasted German soup."

Pvt. Condon, who celebrated his 23d birthday Feb. 20 while a prisoner, was a switchboard operator with the 410th infantry of the 7th army. He has two brothers in service, Ensign John, serving on an LST in the South Pacific, and Corp. Frank, a member of the headquarters company, Camp Croft, S. C.

GREIG, STERLING CHORUSES WILL GIVE CONCERT

The Greig Male chorus directed by Peter Olson and augmented by the Sterling Male chorus conducted by Richard Wesselius, will give a concert at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the United Lutheran church, Greenfield and Ridgeland avs. in Oak Park. Soloists will be Rose Arzoomanian, soprano, and Ray Rheinhartsen, baritone. The Greig chorus was chosen the best male chorus in the 1937 Chicago Music Festival contest. The Greig group is a northwest side organization and the Sterling chorus is a south side group.

Suburban Pan-Hellenic Group to Hold Benefit

A benefit party, sponsored by the Oak Park-River Forest Pan-Hellenic association, will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in the ballroom of the Oak Park club. Proceeds will be used to finance scholarships for senior girls of Oak Park-River Forest High school, who may use the awards at schools of their own choice.

MARK CHICAGO BOOK WEEK AT ALL LIBRARIES

Special Events and Exhibits Planned

West side libraries and affiliated groups will participate in the city-wide celebration of Chicago public library week, beginning today and continuing thru Saturday.

"Books were never more important to the country than they are today," library officials said recently in formulating the purpose of the week. "Questions and issues which must be resolved can best be presented to all citizens thru the forum which the printed page provides."

Plan Legler Programs

Miss Helen S. Babcock, librarian at Legler, 115 S. Pulaski rd., has planned several programs concerning the services of the center.

The West Side Historical society, sponsored by Legler library, will hold its annual spring meeting at 8 p. m. Monday in the second floor meeting room. Speakers will be Miss Herma Clark and Albert F. Keeney.

Miss Clark, well known for her column, "When Chicago Was Young," which has been a feature of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE since 1929, is also author of the books, "Dear Julia," "The Elegant Eighties," and [in collaboration with Alice Gerstenberg] the play, "When Chicago Was Young."

Austinite Will Talk

Keeney, Austin realtor, is a member of one of the first families to settle on the west side. His subject will be "Early Days on the West Side."

Tuesday evening a program of war films will be shown at 8 o'clock in the downstairs clubrooms. Sequences will incude scenes showing Japanese officers training at the Japanese "West Point," a typical day with a carrier force, military details of D-day, and battle scenes on Iwo Jima.

A hobby meeting will be held at 8 p. m. Thursday, with George Hukar, photographic illustrator, as the principal speaker. He will give a general talk on photography, with special emphasis on composition.

Children to See Play

Friday night young adults will meet informally in the downstairs clubroom. On Saturday morning the children's department will hold a gala story hour, and will present the play, "The Frog Prince." The group is under supervision of Miss Helen C. Bough, children's librarian, and Miss Marie Simonetta.

Miss Maude Blake, librarian at Austin, 5615 W. Race av., announces that two special exhibits have been arranged. One display will be on

VAUGHAN'S MEN PICK PLASTICS, LEATHER WORK

West Siders Aid Thru Red Cross Corps

Leather work and plastics are the two most popular crafts being taught service men at Vaughan General hospital by more than 30 residents of the west suburbs who have volunteered as members of the arts and skills corps of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross.

Perhaps the most unique craft being taught in the workshop and in the wards is "fly tying." Two days a week, William Blades makes a trip from his home in Wilmette to turn his peace time hobby into a service to veterans by teaching them how to fashion fishing lures from bits of squirrel's tail, peacock feathers, and floss.

Others from Suburbs Aid

Mrs. James Magee of Riverside is the assistant technical director in charge of arts and skills work at Vaughan. Other west suburbanites serving with the volunteer corps are:

Henriette Austin, Maywood; Betty Bell, Mrs. G. F. Claypool, Clara Detjen, Ruth Dunlop, Barbara Francescon, Joan Hughes, Lillian Quinn, Elizabeth Roberts, Marie Shirley, and Mrs. John Stoddard, Oak Park.

River Forest Group

Mrs. Harvey L. Cavender, Mrs. J. L. Kimball, Rosemary O'Donnell, Sister Felix Plouf, Emory Seidel, and Loretta Zolper, River Forest; Helen Bennett, Downers Grove.

Noel Benson, Mrs. Myrtle Biel, Dorothy Collins, Mrs. James Magee, Mrs. Merrill Norris, Ardith Taylor, and Nora Tully, Riverside; Irene Williams, Berwyn; Richard Culkins and John Conlon, Glen Ellyn.

Mrs. Louisa Lukens, Brookfield; Otto Haack, Hollywood; Mrs. Helen McKee, La Grange; Donald W. Greenwood, Wheaton, and Mrs. Philip Cherry, Hinsdale.

Need More Workers

Volunteers with the corps from Chicago's west side are Helen Bough, 5465 W. Iowa st.; Mrs. L. B. Bramkamp, 321 N. Central av.; Rose Clark, 5501 Washington blvd.; Isabell Goldblatt, 36. N. Lavergne av.; Mrs. Gretchen Havlicek, 1506 N. Lawler av.; Rosalyn Mando, 1000 N. Keystone av.; Kenneth Simpson, 5804 Race st., and Ruth Thornquist, 5255 Le Moyne av.

Announcement is made that the corps is in need of more skilled volunteers who may appear before the admissions committee at the Art institute on the first and third Wednesdays of the month from 4 to 5 o'clock, bringing at least three samples of their work. After acceptance, a volunteer is assigned to a veterans' hospital with only a two hour Red Cross orientation course required.

Villa Park Village Board Chosen Without Contest

For the first time in 20 years, Villa Park dispensed with contest at its recent village election, chosing Alfred A. Hinkleman, associated with Chicago Auto Parts, Inc., president; Mrs. Marian G. Noble, clerk; and William T. Boultbee, Peter H. Enzweiler, George W. Hitchcock and Elmo Smith trustees.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

A cluster to the distinguished flying cross has been awarded Maj. Warner H. Hutchinson, Hinsdale, bombardier on a Marauder. He won the award for his accurate bombing which helped to knock out hundreds of enemy vehicles which were trying to withdraw over a river.

Maj. W. H. Hutchinson

A letter from Pvt. Jack D. Mangan to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Mangan, 3858 Madison st., recently informed them he has recovered from an attack of trench feet and is back on active duty in the European theater. He has been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in France last July and also holds the combat medal. A former student of Crane Technical High school, he was a charter member of the Sons of the American Legion, Van Buren post.

Pvt. James J. Mondry, 1312 W. Cullerton st., recently received the bronze star for bravery in action. He also holds the Purple Heart with cluster and the combat infantryman's badge. Wounded in action twice he is convalescing at an army hospital in England.

Pvt. James Mondry

Pvt. James Cormack, 742 S. Cuyler av., Oak Park, has been home on a 30 day leave from Kennedy General hospital, Memphis, Tenn. He was wounded by shell fragments last November in France, where he served with the 3d army.

Gerald W. Zehner, Westchester, has been promoted to staff sergeant at a 15th air force heavy bomber base in Italy. He is a top turret gunner on a Liberator bomber.

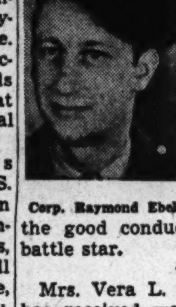
The silver star medal for gallantry in combat has been awarded Corp. Louis Karmis, 617 S. Ada st. He is serving with the 6th army in the Philippines.

Sgt. Richard Monda, son of Mrs. Amelia Monda, 40 N. Lotus av., is a communications and supply technician at an advance depot of the 12th air force service command in Italy. Overseas since June, 1942, he has seen service in England, North Africa, Italy, Sicily, Corsica, and southern France. He wears battle stars for the Italian and French campaigns.

Sgt. Richard Monda

The bronze star has been awarded Pvt. Theodore A. Seil, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Seil, 2057 21st st., who is serving with the infantry in Germany. "With utter disregard for his own safety," says the citation accompanying his award, "Pvt. Seil led a survey team into a field known to contain many mines. While under enemy artillery fire, he performed his duties as front rodman until the survey was completed."

Promotion to corporal has been announced in Italy for Raymond J. Ebelt, West Chicago. He is an armament supply clerk in an ordinance company of the 15th air force service command. Before entering service in June, 1943, he was a cashier for the First National bank. Corp. Ebelt wears the good conduct ribbon and one battle star.

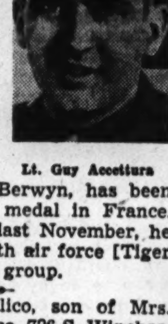


Corp. Raymond Ebelt

Mrs. Vera L. Saltzman, Berwyn, has received word that her husband, Loren D. Saltzman, has been promoted to first lieutenant while stationed in the Palau Islands. He also was awarded the bronze service star for his participation in the mandated islands campaign.

Milton Benjamin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benjamin, 133 N. Keeler av., has been promoted to first lieutenant in India, where he is serving as navigator-bombardier of a B-29 [Hellbird] group of the 20th bomber command.

The bronze star medal was awarded recently Lt. Guy Accettura, 1239 S. Millard av., who is serving in the European theater. Entering service as an enlisted man, he was promoted from technical sergeant. Lt. Accettura is in his third year overseas.



Lt. Guy Accettura

Lt. Thomas J. Lotina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lotina, Berwyn, has been awarded the air medal in France. In Europe since last November, he is a pilot in the 9th air force [Tiger Stripe] Marauder group.

George M. Fallico, son of Mrs. Christine C. Fallico, 726 S. Winchester av., has been promoted to corporal on the 5th army front in Italy. He is an electrician with the 316th engineer combat battalion.

WEST SUBURBAN ACTORS TO GIVE 'CORN IS GREEN'

"The Corn Is Green" will be presented as a benefit performance Wednesday night at the Village club by the Western Springs Little theater. Mrs. W. R. Moyers is president of the Western Springs center of the Infant Welfare society which is working with the Little theater again this year. Mrs. Hilder Bergman is in charge of ticket sales.

Infant Welfare

The Riverside center of the Infant Welfare society will hold its spring dance May 19 at the Riverside Golf club. Mrs. L. A. Hubbard and Mrs. Robert Walker are co-chairmen.

FORUM TO TELL OF TUBERCULAR THREAT TO VETS

A community forum will be held by the committee on tuberculosis veterans of the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Playhouse of the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas blvd.

Homer J. Buckley

The sponsoring committee is composed of civic leaders and representatives of community agencies, veterans' organizations, and social service and medical groups to assist veterans of World War II. discharged because of tuberculosis.

List Forum Speakers

Homer J. Buckley, institute president, will be moderator. Four experts will speak on the problem of tuberculosis among returning war veterans.

Dr. Arnold Shamaskin, chief of tuberculosis service at Hines hospital, will discuss "The Influence of War on Tuberculosis." Dr. Jerome R. Head, medical director of Edward Sanitorium, Naperville, will speak on "Treatment of Tuberculosis," and Mrs. Marie L. Novak, executive director of the Winfield tuberculosis service, will explain the role of the social worker in the treatment of the disease. "Emotional Problems and Attitudes of Disabled Veterans" will be the topic of Dr. Rudolph G. Novick, medical director of the Illinois Society of Mental Hygiene.

Sketch to Show Problems

Philip L. Seman, Ph. D., general director of Jewish People's institute, will lead a discussion following the program. A sketch, entitled "That Men May Live," dramatizing the problem of the war veteran with tuberculosis, will be presented by players of Chicago Junior League theater.

The committee was formed by the Tuberculosis institute to meet a problem believed to be a growing threat. These veterans are placed in hospitals where they receive treatment without cost.

Seek to Aid Citizens

The purpose of Wednesday's forum is to enlighten the public on problems of tuberculosis, and to help prepare persons who may have relatives or friends returning from service with the disease.

Among the agencies coöperating with the institute in the forum are the American Medical association, the American Dental association, the Red Cross home nursing department, Chicago Dental society, Chicago Heart association, Chicago housing authority, Chicago Lighting institute, Chicago nutrition committee, Chicago Society for the Hard of Hearing, Evaporated Milk association, Field Army of the American Cancer society, Milk Foundation, Inc.;

PROVISO HIGH RENEWS FARM TRAINING PLAN TO AID CROP GROWING

To help meet the man power shortage in food production, Proviso High school again is making a farm training program available to boys in the district. Harvey F. Johnson of the Proviso science department is serving as instructor for the course offered on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

There is no cost for the instruction, which is available to all boys or girls 14 years or older. Students who complete the course will be known as victory farm volunteers in the United States crop corps.

The course includes both class instruction and visits to farms for observation purposes. Such subjects as what the farmer expects of a worker, elements of animal husbandry, farm crops and equipment, and types of farm jobs and safety measures are on the program.

TRAVELERS AID PICKS W. SIDERS FOR COMMITTEE

Four west side residents were elected to membership in the volunteer advisory committee of the Travelers Aid society at its 31st annual meeting at the Knickerbocker hotel.

New committee members are Mrs. Dorothy Williamson, 210 N. Oak Park av., Oak Park; Helen Doran, 5451 Quincy st.; Esther Greenberg, 3745 Douglas blvd., and Mrs. Albert M. Branum, La Grange.

Volunteers will assist in meeting requests for help from service men and women, war production workers, migrant youths, and others in travel problems.

TWO SUBURBAN CLUBS TO CLOSE YEAR TUESDAY

Oak Park, Wheaton Plan Luncheons

Concluding the activities of the club year, members of the Woman's Club of Oak Park will hold their spring luncheon Tuesday in the Oak Park Arms hotel. Mrs. Frank Duennes, retiring president, will present the newly elected club leader, Mrs. T. T. Pratt. Monica Miller will sing French and English songs. She will be accompanied by Lela Hanmer, pianist.

Wheaton Department Club

A luncheon and program at 1 p. m. Tuesday also will mark the conclusion of the annual program of the Woman's Department club of Wheaton. The meeting will be held in Trinity Guild hall.

20th Century Club

Mrs. Robert F. Cooper Jr., will be hostess at the spring luncheon of the Maywood 20th Century club at 1 p. m. Tuesday at First Methodist church, 6th av. and Pine st. Mrs. Walter Eriksen will give a book review.

Catholic Woman's Club

The Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel has been chosen by members of West End Woman's club for their annual spring luncheon Wednesday. The Rev. John J. Dussman, pastor of Glenview parish, will speak. The Rev. J. Francis Gorman, chaplain of Gardiner General hospital, will give the invocation.

Berwyn Woman's Club

The annual business meeting of Berwyn Woman's club will be held at 2 p. m. Friday. Two films, "Grand Canyon" and "Loaded for War," will be shown.

Austin Evening Club

Austin Evening club will hold its annual Charity night Tuesday, when members will sponsor a performance of the comedy "Wappin' Wharf," at the Goodman theater.

River Forest Women

The annual spring luncheon of River Forest Woman's club will be held Tuesday at the clubhouse. It will be preceded by a business meeting at which reports will be read. After the luncheon, a musical program will be presented by Carolyn Coen, flutist; Mildred Coen, violinist, and Mildred Kaye, pianist.

Cicero Woman's Club

Members of Cicero Woman's club will gather in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel Wednesday for their spring luncheon. Mrs. John Cunat, chairman, will present the Chicago Artists trio in a musical program.

Millard Woman's Club

The Millard Avenue Woman's club will celebrate its 67th anniversary with a luncheon in Marshall Field's Wedgewood room Friday. Mrs. George Basta will preside. Mrs. Henry Paulus, chairman, has arranged the program. Mrs. Basta will present recently elected officers. They are Mrs. Paulus and Mrs. Otis Callaway, vice presidents; Mrs. John Tancl Jr. and Mrs. Otto Hausknecht, secretaries, and Mrs. Norman A. Cumings, treasurer.

Lieutenant's Fiancee

ROBERTA HANSEN

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hart, Cicero, announce the engagement of their daughter, Roberta Hansen, to Lt. Richard S. Hartwell, son of John M. Hartwell, La Canada, Cal. Miss Hansen is a graduate of Morton High school. Lt. Hartwell, a graduate of Harvard university, is associated with the naval ordnance plant in Forest Park. He formerly served 15 months in the South Pacific. The couple will be married June 16.

EYEFUL OF THIS MODERN SCHOOL AGE TO BE SEEN

How modern inventions have been adapted to education will be demonstrated for parents and friends tomorrow night by pupils of the Westmont schools. At the nontraditional Parents night some of the modern youngsters even will be heard as radio commentators.

Primary demonstrations will be held at the north and south schools and the main events will take place at Central school.

"The program," said C. E. Miller, "will be a change from the school exhibit and open house given annually by the schools in past years."

Will Show Devices

All types of visual and radio equipment will be demonstrated by teachers and pupils. Science, history, and geography are among the subjects taught by the aid of sound films. All the rooms at Central school are equipped with radio.

School lunches will be explained with chalk talks. The school nurse will operate an audiometer, one of the latest devices for testing the hearing of pupils. An 8th grade chorus rehearsal will be included in the music program, and murals reviewing the work of the year will be exhibited.

Honor South America

One of the sessions will be devoted to South America since that part of the world seems destined to take an important part in coming events.

Mimeographed newspapers edited by each of the English classes will be shown visitors. The most recent issues are filled with original poems on spring and peace.

Evidence that modern teaching methods are more interesting than in the days when a few text books and a slate completed the equipment is to be noticed in one of the pupil editorials advising boys and girls not to arrive at school too early in the morning.

State Officers to Attend PTA School Session

Mrs. B. E. Little, director of district 28 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will hold a school of instruction from 9:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. Friday at Gross school, Brookfield.

Registration will be held during the first half hour. Among the speakers will be Mrs. W. F. Krahl, mental hygiene chairman of the congress, who will talk on "Building Attitudes for Peace."

State chairmen who will participate in round table discussions include Mrs. Floyd Tucker, program chairman, and Mrs. S. Richard Kaar, ways and means chairman.

The following district assistants also will take part in the discussions and be available for consultation: Mrs. Clyde T. Hall, Mrs. Ralph Tank, and Mrs. D. H. Young Jr.

Mrs. Guy Ditzler, Brookfield, is chairman of arrangements.

For the convenience of those who cannot attend the Brookfield meeting two other schools of instruction are scheduled for May. One will be held in Park Ridge May 11, and the other in Elmwood Park May 22.

OPA WILL SHOW PERILS OF BLACK MARKET PRICES

A town meeting, sponsored by OPA ration board 37, 5521 Chicago av., and by the north, central, and south Austin OCD organizations, will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow in Austin town hall, Lake st. and Central av.

The meeting will acquaint residents with black market practices, and to show how to avoid paying higher than ceiling prices.

Speaker will be James Degnan, Washington, D. C., who will talk on "You, Your Pocketbook, and Ration Points." The Austin community band will play, and three short movies will be shown.

WEST SIDE SHIP ENTERED IN SEA SCOUT JUDGING

Officers and crew of the Sea Scout ship Red Star, sponsored by the Midwest Side Kiwanis club, 6 N. Hamlin av., will participate in the 19th annual Sea Scout commodore's inspection at the midshipman's armory, 234 E. Chicago av., at 7:45 p. m. Saturday. The Red Star will compete against four other squadron leaders for the title of Chicago council fleet flagship. Officers of the Red Star are Skipper Warren E. Bell and Mates Norman A. Olson and John Feeney.

OLD FASHIONED ART OF QUILTING STILL IN VOGUE

Rose Croix Circle Always Adding Members

"You have no idea how fascinating quilting is until you learn the craft yourself," says Mrs. Ann Schelly, chairman of the Rose Croix quilting circle which recently celebrated its silver anniversary at Austin Town hall, Lake st. and Central av.

It would be impossible to estimate the number of stitches that have gone into the making of quilts during the last quarter of a century, but as members have sewed bright patches of cloth into ordered designs, they have also cemented bonds of friendship and communtiy living.

Since Turn of Century

Long before the group began to meet at Austin Town hall a number of women was accustomed to assemble regularly at each others' homes to quilt and chat. Some, like Mrs. William Lange, 81, have been quilting since the turn of the century.

Others, like Mrs. Schelly, have learned the craft more recently, but all agree that it is a fascinating pastime.

"When I joined the circle I didn't even know how to sew," says Mrs. Schelly. "I had a pretty discouraging time at first, especially when I saw how expert the others were. Then Mrs. Anne Allman took me in hand. She was one of the best quilters in the club, and I used to marvel at her tiny stitches, 20 to the inch.

Takes Patience to Learn

"She told me there wasn't anybody in the world who couldn't learn how to quilt, and showed me the trick of getting the needle all the way thru the different layers of material. It took patience to learn, but I've been more than repaid by the satisfaction I've had from my hobby."

To celebrate their anniversary, members placed on exhibition some of the prize quilts that have been made during the last 25 years. Designs ranged from applique sunbonnet babies to intricate eight pointed stars radiating in a burst of color from the center of the quilt.

Also on display were several quilts more than a hundred years old. One of these, exhibited by Mrs. Elsie Schlegel, was made by her grandmother a century ago in Birmington, Ill. A block quilt of multicolored worsted, it is lined with alpaca in a rosebud pattern.

Uses Singer's Wardrobe

Another quilt displayed by Mrs. Schlegel is also a century old. Made by Mrs. Mattie Heywood, who knew her grandmother in Birmington, the bright silk and velvet patches in its design came from the wardrobe of Marie Litta, well known concert singer of the early 19th century.

Still older was a woven coverlet exhibited by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bosserman. It was made by Mr. Bosserman's great-grandmother 150 years ago in Perry county, Pa. The spinning wheel on which it was woven has become an heirloom in the Bosserman family.

Other members include Mrs. Clara Smith, worthy matron; Mrs. Lucille Wagner, associate matron, and Mrs. Louise Lange, Mrs. Anna Parker, Mrs. Bessie Thorpe, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, Mrs. Margaret Rycroft, Mrs. Emily Heorn, Mrs. Emily Natzke, Mrs. Ida Bergland, Mrs. Elizabeth Blatter, Mrs. Louise Goede, Mrs. Mildred Young, Mrs. Gertrude Corbeil, Mrs. Lottie Tennant, Mrs. Emma Musser, Mrs. Emma Seebert, and Mrs. Daisy Roelle.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, April 30

Now is the time to put out a few plants that will have a chance to live if light frosts should come. It is better not to force plants by planting out of doors. Harden them off in the frame, protecting them at night if sudden cold weather approaches.

Tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, cucumbers, and other tender kinds seldom respond during cool weather, but if planted when the soil is warm they grow rapidly and become established quickly.

Pansies should be in the ground and flowering; the half hardy annuals can be sown. Perennials should be transplanted.

Tuesday, May 1

Continue cultivating the garden to kill weeds. Do this when the weeds are small, cultivating no more than an inch deep. As the plants grow, whether they are vegetables or flowers, do not cut too close to the plants or the roots may be injured.

Wednesday, May 2

When sowing fine seed, such as poppy or mignonette, mix it with three parts of sand. Poppy seed is very fine and because of that the gardner usually sows it too thick and is obliged to cut the plants.

To thin, when the seedlings are about an inch high, hoe the bed across in lines about 18 inches wide, leaving thin lines of plants. Then hoe across the other way so that the lines will be from 12 to 18 inches apart.

Thursday, May 3

If nasturtiums are sown in too rich a soil an abundance of foliage will be produced but few flowers. The same is true of the California poppy, statice, and portulaca.

What to plant in shade is always a problem, but for a quick growing garden of annuals there is nothing quite as satisfactory as the nicotiana sylvestric. It is a fine plant of pyramidal habit, grows up to 6 feet, with heads of tubular white flowers and fine, green leaves.

Friday, May 4

A good tropical annual for planting along a fence, or to hide the sunny side of the garage, is the common castor bean. The large, handsome leaves develop rapidly. It may be used as a center plant in a bed, with cannas next to it and fountain grass as a border. Plant after May 20 but not much earlier.

Keep on cultivating the garden even tho no weeds are visible. Keep the yard in good condition by weeding walks, flower beds, and borders.

Saturday, May 5

Plunge all small pots of annuals to their rim in the coldframe. Plunging keeps moist soil around the plants, preventing their drying out.

Watch for insects and begin spraying as soon as the first one is sighted. It is absolutely necessary to combat insect pests the minute the plants are attacked.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

HOLD GOODWILL TEA THURSDAY IN WEST SUBURB

"The World We Want to Live In" will be the topic of Mrs. Wendell Green at a Goodwill tea at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon given by Mrs. Herman Moment, 1209 Linden av., Oak Park.

Mrs. Green is active in the Women of Goodwill who make up the women's committee of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews.

MARK CHICAGO BOOK WEEK AT ALL LIBRARIES

gardening. The second will deal with the united nations conference in San Francisco. Members of the staff will give talks on library service at local clubs. Public library week has also been chosen as the occasion for the opening of the young modern shelf, featuring books for teen-age boys and girls.

Show Paintings at Douglas

Douglas library, 13th st. and Homan av., will hold exhibits emphasizing the creative literary talent of the people in the community. Included in the display will be radio scripts, poetry, plays, and novels. An exhibit of paintings by Chicago artists has been loaned by the Chicago Jewish Artists guild. At 8 p.m. Friday, Mrs. Lida P. Karcher, librarian, will receive friends of the library at open house.

Mrs. Elizabeth Burrell, librarian of Lewis institute branch library, 1945 Madison st., announces that open house will be held thruout the week. Exhibits will deal with the history of Chicago and also will stress current world problems.

Toman to Stress Services

At Toman library, 27th st. at Pulaski rd., displays showing library services will be on exhibit. Among the groups represented will be the Lawndale-Crawford Historical society and the Toman forum. Exhibits will also show services for patrons of foreign birth, children, and war veterans.

Many west siders will also attend the fifth annual authors' luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Saturday in the grand ballroom of the Sherman hotel. Contemporary novelists, newspaper reporters, columnists, and book reviwers will be guests. Mrs. Kenneth Horan will be master of ceremonies and Mrs. F. Percy Boynton, 219 N. Mayfield av., is general chairman of arrangements.

CARBOLA
HELPS KEEP BUGS AWAY
HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS
Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.
TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS
In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.
Hardware, seed, feed, drug stores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write or free handy garden chart.

RADIO'S JARGON IS EXPLAINED IN MBS GLOSSARY

'Leg' Means Something Else in Studios

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Know what a "leg" is as applied to broadcasting? Nope, it has nothing to do with pinups of radio beauties. It means a regional chain, or part of a bigger network. "Cold" in radio doesn't refer to a congestion in the head. It means without preliminaries or embellishment. It is applied to a program that begins in such a manner.

A glossary of several hundred radio expressions [with definitions] has been compiled by Gilbert McClelland of the Mutual network staff to serve as a handy guide to personnel—particularly new persons who are likely to be a bit baffled by the lexicon of broadcasting. Below are a few selections from the booklet which may be of general interest:

Across the board — Radio program booked daily at the same time.
Ad lib—To improvise, to speak lines not in the script.
Breaks—Any interruptions in a program.
Bridge — A piece of transitional music or sound effect to link scenes.
Bugs—Trouble in equipment caused by something not immediately obvious.
Channel—An electrical circuit.
Clear a number—To obtain official permission to use a certain musical selection.
Cushion—A flexible musical number near the end of a program which can be lengthened or shortened.
Cow-catcher — Advertising messages carried just before a specific program plugging some auxiliary product of the sponsor.
Dawn patrol—Those concerned with early morning programs.
Dress—The final complete rehearsal.
Dubbing—Transposing recorded matter to a new record.
Electrical Transcription—An electrical recording made especially for broadcasting.
Fade—A diminishing of program volume.
Feed—To send a program over the air, to other stations or groups of stations.
Fill—Added program material.
Fluff—Missing a cue, or stumbling over a line.
In the mud—Too little tonal volume or lack of definition.
Key station—The station where the network program originates.
Live—As opposed to recorded or transcribed.
Local—A program presented from a single station.
Log—An accurate journal of every minute of broadcasting; required by law.
MC—Master of ceremonies.
Mike—A microphone.
Mike Hog—One of a group of performers who elbows others from the microphone.
Mix—Combining the input of two or more microphones to effect a complete balance.
Monitor—To check the program by means of audio equipment.
On the button [head, nose]—Ending [a program] exactly on time.
P. A.—Public address or talk back system. Also press agent, or personal appearance.
Pancake turner—The sound technician controling the playing of double faced records.
Platter—A phonograph record or a transcription.
R. & R.—Record and Repeat.
Round Robin—A wire loop going from one point thru various points and returning. It can be broken at any point and programs sent either or both ways for various program originations or for split network purposes.
Ride gain—The studio engineer is said to ride gain while controlling increases or decreases in program volume.
Script—A manuscript. Continuity. Dramatic score.
Segue — The transition from one musical number to another without break or interruption.
Signature—Musical number or sound effect identifying a program.
Sneak in—To introduce music softly and then bring it up full behind dialog.
Stand-by—A substitute program ready to put on the air in case of an emergency. Also used as a warning to performers to get ready to go on the air.
Stretch — Slow up the concluding musical number so that the show will finish on the nose.
Take it away—The cue from studio engineer to engineer of succeeding program.

One expression not included but often heard around radio studios is "in conference." As we recall, it was Fred Allen who defined a conference as "a meeting of vice presidents who singly can do nothing and who together can only decide that nothing can be done."

Tschaikowsky's "Polish" Symphony Is Scheduled

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will feature Tschaikowsky's "Polish" Symphony in its broadcast over W-G-N and WGNB at 8:30 Tuesday evening.

Musical Team

Jerry Wayne will have as guest on his show Songstress Evelyn Knight at 7:30 tonight over WENR-Blue.

OFFER 'MAYTIME' NEXT ON W-G-N THEATER OF AIR

Sigmund Romberg's popular operetta "Maytime" will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air from the stage of Medinah temple before an audience of about 4,500. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Among the familiar numbers to be sung by Marion Claire, prima donna of the series, and her supporting soloists and chorus, are "Will You Remember?," "Windy Day on the Battery," "Our Little Sweet Home," and "Road to Paradise." Richard Tucker, star of the Metropolitan opera, will sing the tenor lead and Earle Wilkie, the baritone part.

The background music will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber.

In the dramatic cast will be Sondra Gair, William Everett, Forrest Lewis John Barclay, Laurette Fillbrandt, Hope Summers, John Mallon, and Lee Bennett. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

Tommy Dorsey M. C. for WMAQ Musical Series

Tommy Dorsey will be master of ceremonies on the Music America Loves Best show over WMAQ-NBC at 3:30 p. m. today. He will introduce Duke Ellington, pianist; Genevieve Rowe, soprano, and Johnny Hodges, saxophonist, as guests. Ellington, Hodges, and Dorsey will do solo portions of Donaldson's "You're Driving Me Crazy"; Miss Rowe will sing Rodgers' "Lovers."

Zino Francescatti Is NBC Symphony Soloist

Zino Francescatti, violinist, will be soloist on the Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Frank Black, will offer Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture, Barlow's "The Winter's Past," and "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's "La Gio-Gioconda."

Olsen and Johnson on Hall of Fame Today

Olsen and Johnson will mark their 30th year in show business on the Radio Hall of Fame over WENR-Blue at 5 p. m. today. Milton Cross, guest master of ceremonies, will present Georgia Gibbs and Merry Macs. The program will include a Latin-American review, starring Cordova, songstress.

OAK PARK CHURCH PAYS DEBT; WILL BURN MORTGAGE

The Austin Boulevard Christian church, Austin blvd. and Superior st., Oak Park, will burn the mortgage on its $85,000 building at the 10:15 a. m. service today. The mortgage was paid off last month, two and a half years ahead of schedule. The last notes were due in October, 1947.

Dr. John H. Booth, secretary of the board of church extension of the Disciples of Christ, Indianapolis, Ind., will be principal speaker at the ceremonies.

Will Serve Luncheon

A fellowship luncheon will be served in the community hall at noon. During the luncheon, leaders of the congregation will recount experiences in helping to build and pay for the church, which was dedicated March 11, 1923.

The first speaker will be Mrs. Viola Lamson, member of the original building committee. Her subject will be "Building the Church." "Paying on the Church" will be discussed by Floyd Talbott, while J. B. McColly will talk on "The Dark Days, 1936-'38."

"Getting Out of Debt" will be the topic of C. W. Anderson. The concluding speech will be given by M. Y. Enyart, who will talk on "The Forward Look."

Doubles Donations

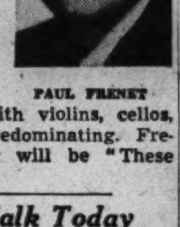
While the church was paying off its mortgage, it also made a number of repairs and improvements on the building. In the last five years it has doubled its donations to missions.

Participating in the mortgage burning ceremonies will be Donald Baldwin, chairman of the board; Ira Cothrin, trustee; Ralph Powell, chairman of the finance committee, and Jeanne Garst, president of the high school youth group. The Rev. Harold L. Lunger is pastor.

Karl Sutphin and Pauline Osterling are co-chairmen of the arrangements committee.

OPEN MUSICAL BOUQUET SERIES ON WENR TODAY

Paul Frenet, young French singing star, will be soloist on the new Musical Bouquet show which will have its premier over WENR at 2 p. m. today. Frenet will sing a romantic song each Sunday—in French. He also will join Lois Marlowe in a duet. The orchestra will be led by Earl Warren who specializes in music with violins, cellos, harp, and oboe predominating. Frenet's solo today will be "These Foolish Things."



PAUL FRENET

Stassen to Talk Today on Quiz Kid Broadcast

Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, a delegate to the San Francisco Security conference, will be cut in from San Francisco for a report on the historic meeting during the Quiz Kid show over WENR-Blue at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Contestants on tonight's broadcast will be Richard Williams, Harve Fischman, Ruthie Duskin, Patrick Conlon, and Jim Strock. Joe Kelly will be quiz master.

MOUNT EMBLEM
ILLINOIS' MOST BEAUTIFUL CEMETERY
"Without the Gates of the City"
You are cordially invited to enjoy the beauty and fragrance of thousands of lilacs now in bloom. With these thousands of blooming bushes, and the largest display of flowering shrubs in the vicinity of Chicago, the grounds are particularly beautiful at Lilac Time. Mount Emblem is the site of the Old Dutch Mill, built in 1850. This mill is a rare tribute to the ingenuity, perseverance and craftsmanship of a past age. The grist mill machinery is in place, just as it was over ninety years ago when grinding grain, and it is an interesting exhibit.
Enjoy the quiet loveliness of an evening at Mount Emblem during the week. An hour spent in the solace of shadows cast by the setting sun will be long remembered.
Each evening, Sacred and Concert music is broadcast across the cemetery from the Old Dutch Mill which serves as a Chime Tower. The gates are open until dusk.

NEW VILLA PARK PRESIDENT LONG ACTIVE IN TOWN

Alfred A. Hinkleman, newly elected president of Villa Park, finds himself familiar with village business, having served as trustee and chairman of the water department and chairman of the gasoline panel of the Villa Park ration board.

Hinkleman is branch manager of Chicago Auto Parts, Inc., which operates eight auto parts stores and machine shops in the Chicago metropolitan area.

He is a past master of D. C. Cregier lodge, A. F. & A. M.; past high priest of Kelvyn Park chapter, R. A. M.; and is a member of the Austin commandery, K. T., of the Medinah Temple shrine.

Community activities of the new president include chairmanship of the entertainment committee of the Ardmore Community club and membership in the Men's Garden club of Villa Park and the Washington school PTA.

Elected to serve with Hinkleman are Mrs. Marian G. Noble, village clerk, and William T. Boultbee, Peter H. Enzweiler, George W. Hitchcock, and Elmo E. Smith, trustees.

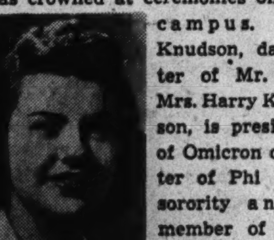
OUR TOWN

Mrs. Santa Taglia, 3444 Jackson blvd., is one of two Chicagoans who have received appointments from the United States office of education to attend the Spanish Language institute in Mexico City this summer. Mrs. Taglia teaches Spanish and Italian at Steinmetz High school, where she is also Pan-American coordinator.

Mrs. Santa Taglia

A graduate of St. Catherine of Sienna High school, she attended Loyola university, where she received bachelor and master of arts degrees in education and Spanish. In addition to her teaching duties, she is now attending John Marshall Law school.

MARIAN KNUDSON, 1110 N. Harvey av., Oak Park, has been elected Ideal Girl by the student body of William Woods college, Fulton, Mo. She was crowned at ceremonies on the campus. Miss Knudson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knudson, is president of Omicron chapter of Phi Beta sorority and a member of the student council. She is a music major.



Marian Knudson

MRS. EDNA HANSON has been appointed head resident at Henry Booth house, neighborhood center, 701 W. 14th pl. She succeeds Miss Meta Meisner, late head resident. Designed to promote inter-racial understanding, Booth house sponsors educational and recreational projects for children and adults. Mrs. Hanson was formerly director of social service at Abraham Lincoln center.

Elizabeth Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Jackson, Hinsdale, has been chosen freshman queen at Scripps college, Claremont, Cal.

RECALL WEDDING OF NEIGHBOR TO HARRY TRUMAN

While reading about the earlier days of the new President and first lady, Miss Mary Mize, assistant Berwyn librarian, has been able to supplement her own memories of an afternoon in June when she attended the wedding of Harry S. Truman and Bess Wallace in their home town of Independence, Mo.

The Wallace and Mize families were next door neighbors in the community, which Miss Mize recalls as having had a distinctly southern atmosphere. Miss Mize saw Harry when he came to call on Miss Bess.

A Neighborhood Event

With the rest of her family, she attended the wedding in 1919 at the Episcopal church in Independence as well as the reception at the home.

It was a small church and not a large wedding. Miss Mize has never seen the couple since. Her brother, Charles, was in Truman's regiment in World War I. and remained in the army when the war was over until his death. Truman was a successor of Miss Mize's father, Robert Mize, as county judge. Members of the Mize family moved from Independence. Miss Mize attended the Boston Library school and chose the middle west for the scene of her career. She has been with the Berwyn library 16 years.

Follows Truman's Rise

Miss Mize said that she had followed Truman's political rise, particularly since he became a senator, but that the wedding had merely impressed her as a neighborhood event.

"As I watched the wedding," said Miss Mize, "I thought of Mr. Truman as the sort of person on whom you could rely."

BONDS, GIFTS SHOWS SPIRIT IN CATHOLIC PUPIL

Drives Net $227,000 on N. W. Side

Some $227,000 worth of equipment used by our fighters has been furnished thru sale of war stamps by six Catholic elementary schools and five high schools on the northwest side in the last year. In addition, the wounded and convalescent have been aided by student contributions of money and handicraft.

The total of $57,075, sold by Good Counsel High school students, bought a $9,200 personnel carrier, a $12,000 LCV, and a $25,000 scout trainer plane. Students contributed $40 to the Red Cross war fund drive, packed 50 gift boxes at Christmas, sent 2,114 Christmas cards to four camps, made 50 bedside bags, 15 pairs scuffies and five card table covers for hospitals, baked 50 pounds cookies and 46 cakes for the U. S. O., and collected more than 800 bars of soap.

St. Philomena Sets Mark

Among the equipment purchased with the $38,700 sale of war stamps at St. Philomena school were three scout cars, costing $6,175 each, a primary trainer at $15,000, and parachutes. Topnotch salesman in the stamp drive is Margaret Hohner, eighth grade pupil.

Alvernia High school employed various methods to raise its total of $33,625, even to permitting lowly freshmen to ride the elevator with upper classmen to the third floor for the price of a 50 cent war stamp. Stamps worth 35 cents bought a trip to the Alvernia underground and the chamber of horrors, the school cellar provided with clanking chains, shrieks and groans, and clammy handshakes from a wet rubber glove.

$18,421 at Notre Dame

Alvernia students have spent hundreds of hours preparing materials for the Red Cross; such as favors for Thanksgiving and Christmas trays, overseas gift boxes, Christmas bags, knitted scarves, and puzzle books.

Notre Dame High shool with an average of 90 per cent student participation has raised $18,421 in bonds and stamps to hasten V-day. Students contributed $525 to the Red Cross, and made 100 bed bags, 50 pairs of scuffies, 200 afghan squares, 12 scarves, and 40 scrapbooks for service men.

The 667 pupils of Our Lady of Victory school, saving pennies and nickels since September, recently reached their goal of $14,775, the amount necessary to purchase an army primary trainer plane.

Others Tell Totals

Grade school pupils at St. Constance school recently brought their total of stamps up to $12,000, enough to buy an LCVP. In the high school department, collections totaled $10,842, with which a jeep and a personnel carrier were purchased.

The goal of $12,000, set by students of St. Herwig school, was overshot by $648, which went for the purchases of a landing craft. Students also donated about 6,000 bars of soap for Poland.

Progress charts for St. James school show $15,475, and for St. Wenceslaus school, $13,287 in stamp purchases.

Buy 12 Army Jeeps

Twelve army jeeps were purchased by stamp and bond sales of $13,980 from 130 students of St. Patrick's academy in Des Plaines in the first semester campaign. With their spirits still in high gear, the girls started their second bond campaign on March 1, with the purchase of four field ambulances valued at $1,950 each as their goal. By April 18 the goal had been overshot.

Among other activities of the academy were the soap drive for Poland, preparing 15C scrapbooks, and sending of 700 rosaries and prayer books and several boxes of clothing to the war torn countries of Europe.

Kiwanis Club Bowlers to Hold Annual Dinner

The annual bowlers' banquet of the Kiwanis Club of Northwest Chicago will be held at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday at Rivoli hall, 4384 Elston av. Hosts will be members of the club's bowling league. Arthur Kannberg, historian, is chairman of arrangements.

MAINE HIGH GROUP WILL SING 'CARMEN' BY BIZET TONIGHT

The a cappella choir of Maine Township High school will present the concertized version of Bizet's opera "Carmen" at the season's first Sunday concert, at 8 p. m. tonight in the school gymnasium.

A. M. Harley

The choir will be assisted by the Maine studio orchestra and the boys' and girls' glee clubs, all under the leadership of Alexander M. Harley, director of music.

First division winners in the annual solo contest at Maine will sing their solo numbers. This group includes Ralph Brundt, Bob Langguth, Doris Rhodus, Frances Walton, and Carol Welker. Two other first division winners, Jean Breyfogle and Audrey Price, will sing solo parts in "Carmen."

Tuley High Girls Face Life Realistically—and Enjoy the Experience

The smart set is the subject of these members of Modes of the Hour club at Tuley High school. Lenore Lippert, sophomore, 4923 Troy st., restyles the coiffure of Elaine Gayda, senior, 2558 Walton st., under the approving eye of Elsie Olson, sophomore, 2026 N. Whipple st. This is the club where chubby faced girls learn not to wear bangs, and tall girls, stovepipe hats. [Tribune Photos by Julius Gantter]

The right and wrong way to approach a prospective employer is demonstrated by these two members of the White Collar Girl's club. Idell Stucker (left), 2307 W. Haddon av., demonstrates how not to get a job, scuffing into the office in mocassins, bobby socks, and hair ribbons, and chewing gum. The odds are all in favor of Lorraine James, 1347 N. Rockwell st., who wears a trim suit and matching hat.

The knitting clubs look like a scene from "A Tale of Two Cities," with all the Mme. Defarges making needles click. Jane Roth (seated), senior, 2122 N. Sawyer av., paused just long enough to show her accomplishment to Lorraine Andrews, senior, 1048 N. Hoyne av.

It costs about $1.50 to make the jacket that Alice Morrow (left) of 1902 N. Mozart st. is wearing, when one makes it as a member of the Campcraft club. She and Gladys Magnusson, senior, 2735 N. Artesian av., are starting another jacket of white elk skin. Members of this group also make leather purses and do Indian beadwork.

(Story on page 2.)

Erika Florence Franz, sophomore, 2643 Haddon av., entertains the Pan-American league with a Spanish ditty while Toni Karambines, 1520 N. Western av., rearranges her sombrero so she can get near enough to hear the words—and improve her knowledge of Spanish.

FLAK LIKE FLIES BITES FORT BUT GUNNER IS LUCKY

Ankle Only Broken in Crackup

Staff Sgt. Robert Lease, 21, 6805 Highland av., woke up recently in a hospital with a broken ankle and several cuts and considered himself a lucky boy.

Sgt. Robert Lease

Waist gunner on an Italian based Flying Fortress, Lease was in a formation bombing an enemy oil field when flak, which he described in a recent message to friends as "thicker than flies in a fish market" knocked out two engines and wounded the pilot and left waist gunner.

Takes Refuge in Cloud

Limping out of formation, the Fortress was pounced on by 10 enemy fighters. Lease thinks he got one, but he couldn't be sure because his plane took cover in a cloud.

Then things began to look up, he said. Several Yank fighters burrowed thru the clouds to their rescue and protected the trip home. The crew glanced down and saw the landing strip and thought it looked pretty good. The only odd thing was it met the Fort too soon.

Overshoots Runway

Landing with the automatic pilot, the plane overshot the runway and rammed into a steam roller, Lease said. Result: the tail snapped off, the plane flipped over, and Lease landed in a hospital.

A graduate of the Taft High school, Lease has flown high altitude bombing missions over Lyons, Ploesti, Vienna, and Rouen in his 35 combat missions. He has been awarded the air medal with three oak leaf clusters, the Purple Heart, and two battle stars for his theater ribbon.

GREIG, STERLING CHORUSES WILL GIVE CONCERT

The Greig Male chorus, directed by Peter Olson and augmented by the Sterling Male chorus conducted by Richard Wesselius, will give a concert at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the United Lutheran church, Greenfield and Ridgeland avs. in Oak Park. Soloists will be Rose Arzoomanian, soprano, and Ray Rheinhartsen, baritone. The Greig chorus was chosen the best male chorus in the 1937 Chicago Music Festival contest. The Greig group is a northwest side organization and the Sterling chorus is a south side group.

CAP 7 WOMEN FROM N. W. SIDE AS NURSES' AIDS

Seven northwest side women completed training during the last month as Red Cross nurses' aids. They are Mary Jane Clarke, 6109 Cornelia av.; Mrs. Robert Lindberg, 5455 Warwick av.; Mrs. Raymond J. Klein, 6970 Medill av.; Augusta Longon, 5935 Berenice av.; Elizabeth Howard, 4907 Hutchinson st.; Phyllis Herod, 4649½ Elston av., and Mary Hornsby, 4341 Argyle st.

They are helping alleviate the shortage of nurses in Chicago hospitals.

THE REV. ORVIS F. JORDAN will complete 23 years service this week as pastor of the Community church at Park Ridge. The church recently celebrated its 28th anniversary and has more than 1,000 in its membership. A drive has been launched to obtain funds to build a new church after the war.

Ann Selleck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Selleck, Des Plaines, has been elected to a one year membership in Socratic Honor society at Rockford college, Rockford, Ill. A scholastic honor given to graduating seniors in high school, Miss Selleck will graduate next month from Des Plaines High school.

John Lauffenburger, Palatine High school junior, has been notified that he has won first prize in a nation wide swine judging contest sponsored by the United Duroc Jersey Record association. Judging was done from pictures of 16 hogs shown in the association's monthly publication. The award was $50.

Lt. Beyers Seriously Wounded in Germany

Lt. Robert Beyers, Algonquin Hills, former member of the Chicago Black Horse troop, was wounded seriously on March 27 in Germany while serving with Patton's 3d army, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beyers, have been notified by the war department.

Lutheran Church Group to Hear Book Review

Mrs. Claire Madelyn Clark will review "The Green Years," by A. J. Cronin, at 8 p. m. Wednesday at Calvary Lutheran church, 4200 N. Keeler av. Sponsored by the Calvary Women's congress group, the proceeds will go to the fund to educate missionaries for foreign service.

MARK CHICAGO BOOK WEEK AT ALL LIBRARIES

Special Exhibits and Forums Planned

Eight libraries on the northwest side and their subbranches will observe Chicago Public Library week beginning today, with other libraries thruout the nation. In support of the theme, "books were never more important to this country than they are today," Mayor Kelly has proclaimed that Chicagoans devote this week to books.

Branches on the northwest side plan to hold open house thruout the week for members of clubs, Parent-Teacher groups, church organizations, and patrons of the branches.

Plan Story Hour

Librarians at Albany Park, 3536 Lawrence av., headed by Fanchon I. Henderson will visit neighborhood factories and distribute lists of books on post-war planning and homemaking to workers. Brides in that area also will receive the lists. A special story hour will be held for the children at 11 a. m. Saturday.

Lt. Nathan J. Rosenblum, 2913 Division st., will tell of his experiences in the army air forces at the open house at Humboldt Park branch, 1541 N. California av., Wednesday night. Lt. Rosenblum is a returned veteran from the European theater of war and holds the air medal and Purple Heart. A war movie also will be shown. Thruout the week there will be an exhibition of war souvenirs and dolls representing the united nations. Adah M. Anderson is the librarian.

Books for Post-War

Three branches which will display recently issued books on the war, post-war planning, and other current affairs are Eckhart Park, 1340 Chicago av., headed by Daisy I. McHale; Logan Square, 3248 Fullerton av., with Helene M. La Berge as librarian, and Portage Park, 5253 Irving Park rd., Dorothy B. Smith, librarian. The latter two will each hold a special story hour for children at 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

At Independence, 3718 Irving Park rd., under direction of Rebecca McKesson, librarian, children will tell their favorite stories at 4 p. m. Friday. A united nations exhibit will be displayed thruout the week.

Seventh and eighth grade boys and girls in the neighborhood of the Northwestown library, 1615 N. Pulaski rd., have been invited to become acquainted with new books in the fiction and educational fields. The girls will meet Wednesday and the boys on Thursday. A puppet show will be shown at the children's Tuley High school students need no encouragement from home to attend school on alternate Wednesdays. The reason: those are club days when their 60 clubs meet during school hours.

On those days gay Mexican and Polish costumes and songs, knitting needles, beading and leather for the handicraft enthusiasts, model airplanes — even checkerboards and chessmen—dominate the school.

The plan of having club groups meet within the school day was tried out last semester when it was discovered that many extra-curricular activities had gone by the board because of widespread employment of students after school hours. Under the new rule, Mrs. Miriam C. Herrick, in charge of the school's club program, reports revived interest in club activities with 93 per cent of the student body participating.

Discuss Foreign Policy

In the 60 groups, hardly an interest of any student has been overlooked. Most of them clamor for clubs stressing current events. There is the News and Views club, with Sol Cohen, president, leading the group in discussion of foreign policy, paying special attention to the Dumbarton Oaks and Bretton Woods conferences.

Then there ars the armchair aviators, discussing the relative merits of various planes and strategies, the meterology club, the book clubs, and the Red Cross units racing sewing machines on kits for service men, snipping cloth into confetti for pillow filling for hospitals, or making scrap books.

Latin America Has Appeal

Interest in Latin America soars. There are about as many voices with a Polish or Irish accent struggling with "Adios Mariquita Linda" as there are with the true Castillian. Determination to preserve Polish tradition and customs is reflected in the crowded meetings of the Polish club, largest in the group. Two members, John Iwicki and Virginia Janiak, recently took prizes in the annual oratorical contest sponsored by the Polish Student's federation.

On the strictly feminine side, there is the Modes of the Hour club, where a typical scene is a couple of comely misses strolling around the room with books atop their pompadours to improve their posture. This is the club where chubby-faced girls learn not to wear bangs and tall girls, not to wear high hats and stripes.

White Collar Girl Club

With an eye on graduation and jobs, students have also formed a White Collar Girl club, named after Ruth McKay's column in THE TRIBUNE, where they learn not to approach an employer in bobby socks, saddle oxfords, and a hair ribbon—and chewing gum.

The knitting clubs, where girls sit around like so many Madame Defarges before the guillotine, are so quiet you can hear a stitch drop. So large was the original group, it developed branches appropriately named the Drop Stitch club, the Knit and Purl club, and the Knitwits. Among the outstanding students in this group are Leona Hochlentner, Sarah Breyer, and Helen Ehrlich.

Some of the clubs are voluntary projections of class activities, like the physics, science, and art clubs. Others are the bases for skills like the camera, campcraft, creative writing, little theater, and swimming clubs.

Whatever his hobby, a Tuley High school student has a tough time trying to name an interest for which there is no club on Wednesday meeting day.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

A veteran invader, Philip Ockrim, coast guard radioman 2d class, 5034 N. Springfield av., has returned to the United States following 18 months of combat duty in the Pacific. NORWOOD PARK CHURCH GROUP PICKS LEADERS

William A. Steinmetz recently was elected president of the Men's Fellowship club of Norwood Park Presbyterian church at its 16th annual dinner meeting. Other officers elected were Clarence M. Galvin, vice president, and George H. Wiemers, secretary-treasurer.

The original Fellowship club was organized in 1908 but disbanded during the last war. It was reorganized in 1929 with Carl Johnson as president. Since that time six meetings have been held during the winter of each year. Past speakers have included men prominent in such fields as religion, education, business, industry, law, and medicine.

The club has a membership of approximately 100 men. Dr. Bertram Jackson is pastor of the church.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 30

Now is the time to put out a few plants that will have a chance to live if light frosts should come. It is better not to force plants by planting out of doors. Harden them off in the frame, protecting them at night if sudden cold weather approaches.

Tuesday, May 1

Continue cultivating the garden to kill weeds. Do this when the weeds are small, cultivating no more than an inch deep. As the plants grow, whether they are vegetables or flowers, do not cut too close to the plants or the roots may be injured.

Wednesday, May 2

When sowing fine seed, such as poppy or mignonette, mix it with three parts of sand. Poppy seed is very fine and because of that the gardner usually sows it too thick and is obliged to cut the plants.

Thursday, May 3

If nasturtiums are sown in too rich a soil an abundance of foliage will be produced but few flowers. The same is true of the California poppy, statice, and portulaca.

Friday, May 4

Keep on cultivating the garden even tho no weeds are visible. Keep the yard in good condition by weeding walks, flower beds, and borders.

Saturday, May 5

Plunge all small pots of annuals to their rim in the coldframe. Plunging keeps moist soil around the plants, preventing their drying out.

CARBOLA
HELPS KEEP BUGS AWAY
HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS
Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.
TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS
In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.
Hardware, seed, feed, drugstores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write for free handy garden chart.

CARBOLA
The Disinfecting White Paint
KILLS ENEMIES YOU CAN'T SEE
Don't wait for disease to appear. Prevent loss of production now. Invisible germs cause more losses than lice and mites.
CLEAN UP NOW!
Fall and winter mean a great breeding of disease germs if they are left alone. A spraying or brushing with Carbola will destroy billions of these invisible profit eaters. Carbola painted onto all interior surfaces kills germs, dries white. 1 pound covers 100 square feet. Best for laying houses, brooder houses, dairies, hog pens, rabbitries, pigeon lofts. Kills by contact such invisible germs as tuberculosis, bronchitis, diphtheria, abortion, hog cholera, colds. ALSO USE AS A DRY DIP AND AS A DRY DISINFECTANT BY DUSTING.
Hardware, seed, feed, drugstores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write for free handy egg-laying chart.

Only One Worry

HOLLY HARRIS

Holly Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hume Harris, 6302 Nordica av., worried only about a zipper jamming when she stepped into Mary Martin's role in New York in "One Touch of Venus."

TOUCH OF VENUS ASSURES BRIGHT LIFE FOR HOLLY

Holly Harris, the Norwood Park girl who is understudy for Mary Martin in "One Touch of Venus," got her big break in New York and all she remembers after the show started is saying, "This is it, kid," to herself and worrying over a fractious zipper jamming during a quick change on stage. It had acted up once before with Mary Martin.

Holly, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hume Harris, live at 6302 Nordica av., has been understudy to Mary Martin in the Venus show, which closed here yesterday, since October. She also sings in the sextet.

With her chestnut brown hair brightened a becoming blonde for the Venus role, Holly said she had just about despaired of attaining every understudy's dream when Mary Martin, the star, associated too closely with several influenza germs.

Critics Acclaim Her

"I guess the play went all right that night," she said, and the review of critics on her performance during those two weeks in February, when Mary Martin was ill, support her. But even the dressing room packed with flowers after the performance didn't bring her to.

"I didn't actually realize it was I who had played the role until I announced it to my roommate," she admitted.

Next to getting the "break," her biggest thrill was receiving the congratulations of her former classmates at St. Charles High school and from friends of her brother, Hume [Tuck] Harris Jr., a gunner's mate now in San Diego.

Knew What She Wanted

A determined young woman, Holly went to New York a year ago with the intention of playing the understudy to Mary Martin. The job already was filled but that was all right. She would take a place in the sextet and bide her time.

Her time came when the understudy took another role. Holly, who had memorized the part and studied Mary Martin's acting, was ready to step into the role as well as the clothes. She had slimmed down 10 pounds to Mary Martin's size.

Holly was well on her way before she left Chicago, having sung with Four Charm Singers, and with Six Lovely Ladies with Xavier Cugat's orchestra, and played the prima donna role in "Let Freedom Ring" on the road. When the Venus show closes after playing St. Louis and Cincinnati, Holly will return to New York to do musical movie shorts while waiting for a new show to open.

Commons Group to Hold Reunion on Wednesday

The annual meeting and reunion of Friends of Chicago Commons will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Commons, 955 Grand av. The group, which has a membership of 100, was organized last year as an auxiliary to the Commons and is composed of former and present members of groups affiliated with the Commons.

Members who have belonged to Commons organizations at its beginning 51 years ago, will reminisce and Miss Lea D. Taylor, head resident, will talk on the work there today.

The program also will include showing of old time pictures, community singing, and an election of officers.

Community members are A. L. Berman, Charles M. Nelson, Mrs. Josephine Tomaso, Miss Clara Pardi, Miss Grace M. La Rocca, Mrs. Louis F. Moeller, Mrs. John T. Williamson, Miss Emily Mazanec, Miss Grace Guerrieri, Mrs. Lois H. Atwater, and Miss Taylor.

N. W. SIDE GIRL WED TO ARMY WEATHER MAN

Dorothea Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe O. Stevenson, 6045 N. Harlem av., became the bride of Corp. Henry F. Zartl, 5007 Justine st., in a recent ceremony in the base chapel of the Great Bend [Kas.] army air field. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James McShane, Jesuit missionary.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zartl of the Justine st. address, is a member of a weather unit at the field.

Miss Joan Stevenson, sister of the bride, was her attendant. Corp. William J. Fay of the base was best man.

Name 2 from N. W. Side to N. U. Honor Fraternity

Edward H. Ferguson Jr., 5848 N. Merrimac av., and Joseph D. Kohutik, 4432 Rice st., were among the 61 students elected at Northwestern university to Phi Eta Sigma, freshman men's honorary fraternity, recently. The new members will be initiated May 18 and honored at a banquet the following night.

OFFER 'MAYTIME' NEXT ON W-G-N THEATER OF AIR

Sigmund Romberg's popular operetta "Maytime" will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air from the stage of Medinah temple before an audience of about 4,500. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Among the familiar numbers to be sung by Marion Claire, prima donna of the series, and her supporting soloists and chorus, are "Will You Remember?," "Windy Day on the Battery," "Our Little Sweet Home," and "Road to Paradise." Richard Tucker, star of the Metropolitan opera, will sing the tenor lead and Earle Wilkie, the baritone part.

The background music will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber.

In the dramatic cast will be Sondra Gair, William Everett, Forrest Lewis John Barclay, Laurette Fillbrandt, Hope Summers, John Mallon, and Lee Bennett. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

Zino Francescatti Is NBC Symphony Soloist

Zino Francescatti, violinist, will be soloist on the Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Frank Black, will offer Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture, Barlow's "The Winter's Past," and "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's "La Gio-Gioconda."

Olsen and Johnson on Hall of Fame Today

Olsen and Johnson will mark their 30th year in show business on the Radio Hall of Fame over WENR-Blue at 5 p. m. today. Milton Cross, guest master of ceremonies, will present Georgia Gibbs and Merry Macs. The program will include a Latin-American review, starring Cordova, songstress.

Tschaikowsky's "Polish" Symphony Is Scheduled

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, will feature Tschaikowsky's "Polish" Symphony in its broadcast over W-G-N and WGNB at 8:30 Tuesday evening. The other selection will be Smetana's "The Moldau."

RADIO'S JARGON IS EXPLAINED IN MBS GLOSSARY

'Leg' Means Something Else in Studios

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Know what a "leg" is as applied to broadcasting? Nope, it has nothing to do with pinups of radio beauties. It means a regional chain, or part of a bigger network. "Cold" in radio doesn't refer to a congestion in the head. It means without preliminaries or embellishment. It is applied to a program that begins in such a manner.

A glossary of several hundred radio expressions [with definitions] has been compiled by Gilbert McClelland of the Mutual network staff to serve as a handy guide to personnel—particularly new persons who are likely to be a bit baffled by the lexicon of broadcasting. Below are a few selections from the booklet which may be of general interest:

Across the board — Radio program booked daily at the same time.

Ad lib—To improvise, to speak lines not in the script.

Breaks—Any interruptions in a program.

Bridge — A piece of transitional music or sound effect to link scenes.

Bugs—Trouble in equipment caused by something not immediately obvious.

Channel—An electrical circuit.

Clear a number—To obtain official permission to use a certain musical selection.

Cushion—A flexible musical number near the end of a program which can be lengthened or shortened.

Cow-catcher — Advertising messages carried just before a specific program plugging some auxiliary product of the sponsor.

Dawn patrol—Those concerned with early morning programs.

Dress—The final complete rehearsal.

Dubbing—Transposing recorded matter to a new record.

Electrical Transcription—An electrical recording made especially for broadcasting.

Fade—A diminishing of program volume.

Feed—To send a program over the air, to other stations or groups of stations.

Fill—Added program material.

Fluff—Missing a cue, or stumbling over a line.

In the mud—Too little tonal volume or lack of definition.

Key station—The station where the network program originates.

Live—As opposed to recorded or transcribed.

Local—A program presented from a single station.

Log—An accurate journal of every minute of broadcasting; required by law.

MC—Master of ceremonies.

Mike—A microphone.

Mike Hog—One of a group of performers who elbows others from the microphone.

Mix—Combining the input of two or more microphones to effect a complete balance.

Monitor—To check the program by means of audio equipment.

On the button [head, nose]—Ending [a program] exactly on time.

P. A.—Public address or talk back system. Also press agent, or personal appearance.

Pancake turner—The sound technician controling the playing of double faced records.

Platter—A phonograph record or a transcription.

R. & R.—Record and Repeat.

Round Robin—A wire loop going from one point thru various points and returning. It can be broken at any point and programs sent either or both ways for various program originations or for split network purposes.

Ride gain—The studio engineer is said to ride gain while controlling increases or decreases in program volume.

Script—A manuscript. Continuity. Dramatic score.

Segue — The transition from one musical number to another without break or interruption.

Signature—Musical number or sound effect identifying a program.

Sneak in—To introduce music softly and then bring it up full behind dialog.

Stand-by—A substitute program ready to put on the air in case of an emergency. Also used as a warning to performers to get ready to go on the air.

Stretch — Slow up the concluding musical number so that the show will finish on the nose.

Take it away—The cue from studio engineer to engineer of succeeding program.

One expression not included but often heard around radio studios is "in conference." As we recall, it was Fred Allen who defined a conference as "a meeting of vice presidents who singly can do nothing and who together can only decide that nothing can be done."

OPEN MUSICAL BOUQUET SERIES ON WENR TODAY

Paul Frenet, young French singing star, will be soloist on the new Musical Bouquet show which will have its premier over WENR at 2 p. m. today. Frenet will sing a romantic song each Sunday—in French. He also will join Lois Marlowe in a duet. The orchestra will be led by Earl Warren who specializes in music with violins, cellos, harp, and oboe predominating. Frenet's solo today will be "These Foolish Things."

Paul Frenet

Kirkwood Is Radio Guest

Jack Kirkwood, comedian, will be a guest on the Andrews Sisters show over WENR-Blue at 3:30 p m. today.

Musical Team

Jerry Wayne will have as guest on his show Songstress Evelyn Knight at 7:30 tonight over WENR-Blue.

CITIZENS SHOW WILL HONOR VET OF VON STEUBEN

Valedictorian Will Be Interviewed

Von Steuben High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, at 10 a. m. Saturday on W-G-N. The program will be recorded at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the school, 5039 N. Kimball av.

Elaine Samson, 5837 N. Christiana av., valedictorian of the June class, will be heard on the honor student interview. She has maintained a superior rating thruout the four years of classes at the school. Captain of the gym leaders club, she also is a member of the concert orchestra, honor society, and G. A. A. board, and has been chosen as Youth week representative of her class.

Honor Wisconsin Student

Another student to be honored on the program will be Marcella Binder, senior, Plymouth [Wis.] High school.

Tribute will be paid Lt. Robert Tuma, 5020 Bernard st., former student, who fought at Bougainville, Russell Islands, and Munda. At the time of his enlistment in May, 1941, he was studying commerce and law at Northwestern university. He was commissioned in 1942 at officer candidate school in New Caledonia. Six months later he became a first lieutenant. He has held the position of adjutant in the general court and also has served as liaison officer. Lt. Tuma is at present assigned as supply officer at Fort Benning, Ga.

Principal Will Talk

Miss Varian M. Shea, who has been principal of the school since 1936, will give the welcoming address. Vera Krupnik, editor of the Von Steuben Journal, student publication, will talk about news at other schools, and Joan Frankel will play a marimba solo.

Those taking part in the quiz will be Ronald Teichner, Thelma Dubow, Earl Brown, Ramona Steinberg, Allen Lefstein, and Jane Nyboe. Colors will be presented by R. O. T. C. members. They are Capt. Earl S. Finckle, commander, Sgt. Bill Nickels, Sgt. Lee Carlson, Sgt. Don Anderson, and Sgt. Joe Kaplan. Cheer leaders are Alvin Kalmin, Phyllis Strike, Howard Kaplin, and Marian Mandel.

Guests will include the 27 graduating seniors of La Paz [Ind.] High school; Mrs. Abraham Blum, Von Steuben PTA president; Mrs. James Tuma, mother of Lt. Tuma, and R. O. Marsh, assistant principal.

Tommy Dorsey M. C. for WMAQ Musical Series

Tommy Dorsey will be master of ceremonies on the Music America Loves Best show over WMAQ-NBC at 3:30 p. m. today. He will introduce Duke Ellington, pianist; Genevieve Rowe, soprano, and Johnny Hodges, saxophonist, as guests. Ellington, Hodges, and Dorsey will do solo portions of Donaldson's "You're Driving Me Crazy"; Miss Rowe will sing Rodgers' "Lovers."

MOOSE WOMEN WILL USE NEW GROUP LISTING

Albany Park chapter 427, Women of the Moose, will meet at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday at 5835 Irving Park rd. for the first time under its new name, Portage Park chapter 427, Women of the Moose. The hospital committee with Mrs. Laura Klein as chairman will be in charge of the open meeting.

Tweleve cadet nurses whose expenses in training are partially paid by the chapter will be presented Florence Nightingale plaques. Other members of the hospital committee include Mrs. Ann Witt, Mrs. Wilma Martinson, Mrs. Julia Vleck, Mrs. Hazel Klein, Mrs. Rosalie Jakoby, Mrs. Marge Armstrong, Mrs. Lucille Schwabe, and Mrs. Virginia Van Derwac.

STUDENTS HAVE TECHNIQUE FOR CLEANUP DRIVE

Patrols Roam Grounds in Search of Scraps

The cleanup campaign conducted for two weeks in northwest side high schools has ranged from sprucing the school yard to perking up the students' personal appearance. The campaign was sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

At Schurz High school, where Constance Chronis, 4218 Mango av., is chairman, students not only patrolled the corridors and school grounds for untidy scraps of paper, but reconnaissance parties were assigned to keep the lunchroom spic. Then, because boys of the school so requested, girls were dismissed from the lunchroom early to get pretty for the afternoon classes.

To encourage collection of waste paper, a part of the drive, a military ball has also been scheduled for May at which a queen will be crowned. She will be chosen by votes of students bringing in the waste paper, one vote for every five pounds.

Many schools, like Kelvyn Park and Von Steuven High schools, sent representatives to grammer schools and merchants in their neighborhoods seeking coöperation and advice. Grammar and high school students at Kelvyn Park formed crews to pick up paper in the community, as well as around their school grounds. James Lee Dority, 4431 Wrightwood av., is chairman at Kelvyn Park.

Firemen Give Help

Von Steuben students, under the chairmanship of Albert Rosenthal, 3739 Dickens av., visited fire stations to collect material on the hazards of untidy basements and attics. Students also voted to combine income from one basketball game with funds of the cleanup committee to purchase three trees for the school court as a memorial to President Roosevelt.

Walking on the grass of Taft High school grounds was a sin, Herman Sommer, 6855 Oleander av., reported. Committees were formed to keep the grounds and corridors neat, and to see that milk bottles, plates and trays were returned to their proper places in the lunchroom. The campaign was spread to the homes, he said, by urging students to spruce up their yards.

Dwarfs Cause Trouble

The campaign at Steinmetz was spurred with presentation of a take-off of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," written by Mrs. Lorraine B. Hass, teacher or dramatics. The play dealt with Snow White's troubles trying to keep a clean house with seven pesky dwarfs around. Helen Sukasian, 2251 Mango av., was student chairman.

Student chairman at Lane Technical, Roosevelt, Foreman, Tuley, and Wells High schools also reported increasing vigilance in corridor cleanliness. Chairmen at these schools are Eugene A. Higgins, 3270 Palmer av.; Richard Swanborg, 4244 N. Mozart av., Roosevelt; Dorothy Duplain, 2937 N. Long av., Foreman; Virginia Janiak, 1238 N. Maplewood av., Tuley, and Marian Kalina, 1417 Wicker Park av.

Schools attaining a required standard of performance during the campaign will be given an award by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

SCOUT FINANCE DRIVE REACHES HALF WAY MARK

With only Barrington and Palatine to be canvassed and results of the drive in Park Ridge to be reported, the finance drive of the Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts has reached $5,180, more than half its goal of $10,000, John L. Bell, Barrington, council chairman, said recently. The drive in Barrington and Palatine began yesterday with about 150 solicitors on the job.

Complete returns on drives in other northwest suburbs of the council, held earlier in April, are: Des Plaines, in which the Boy Scout drive is incorporated with the war fund drive, $2,300; Mount Prospect, $650; Prospect Heights, $350; Arlington Heights, $1,800, and Lake Zurich, $80. Louis C. Morrell, chairman of the finance committee, expects to have complete returns in a few days for the Park Ridge drive which ended yesterday.

Assisting Morrell are W. A. Kuechenberg, Clyde W. Reading, Preston P. Hayes, Frank J. Ferlic, Leo D. Garis, Robert T. Lockhart, D. P. Cobb, Paul J. Sengstock, Oscar T. Birkeness, Hall Teeman, L. J. Helmick, John Gillick, and A. Edward Stein, drive treasurer.

Funds collected will be used to support the council office, and to supervise Scout training and camp programs. The council includes 934 Boy Scouts and 901 cub Scouts, plus 546 men and women Scout leaders.

American Legion

John F. Conley American Legion post will sponsor a dance at the clubrooms, 3868 Grand av., at 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

2 N. W. SIDE SHIPS ENTERED IN SEA SCOUT JUDGING

Two Sea Scout ships, the Ranger and Viking, manned by officers and crews from the northwest side, will participate in the 19th annual Sea Scout commodore's inspection at Midshipman's armory, 234 E. Chicago av., at 7:45 p. m. Saturday.

As flagships of the northwest and north shore squadrons, respectively, the Ranger and Viking will compete with three other squadron leaders for the title of Chicago Council Fleet flagship. They were chosen best ships in their districts after special crew inspections.

Officers on the Ranger sponsored by Brands park are William R. Schumacher, 2741 Belmont av., skipper; Joseph J. Roman, 3062 Avondale av., mate, and Robert E. Kane, 3038 Diversey av., chairman, and the Rev. Nicholas A. Norman, 2840 Nelson st.; John Tasch, 2866 Henderson st., and Louis Elfman, 2939 N. Whipple st., members, of the ship's committee.

Scouts serving on the Viking, sponsored by the 2d Methodist church, 4011 N. Avers av., include: William Scheck, 4241 N. Mozart st.; Thure Garnell, 5935 Grace st., and T. C. Westerberg, 4011 N. Avers av.

Tonti Isabella Council to Hold Benefit Today

Tonti council, Ladies of Isabella, will hold a benefit party at 2:30 p. m. today in the Stevens hotel. Proceeds will be used for maintaining homes for deaf children, old people, and disabled veterans. Mrs. Sally Rauwolf, 3511 N. Leavitt st., is in charge.

MARK CHICAGO BOOK WEEK AT ALL LIBRARIES

Special Events and Exhibits Planned

Libraries and affiliated groups thruout the city will observe Chicago Public Library week, which begins today and continues thru Saturday.

Mrs. Florence E. Richards, librarian at Chicago Lawn, 6234 S. Kedzie av., is using the week to emphasize to the community the opportunities for knowledge and service which Chicago Lawn library offers. A window display, created by Mrs. Nora K. Tarka, called "Everyman and the Peace," will direct attention to books dealing with current issues and their problematical solutions.

List Borrowers' Choices

In another window display, books personally recommended by borrowers as having given them special enjoyment will be featured. Patrons have been asked to give their literary preferences. The jackets of these books will be placed in the window with a card bearing the name and address of the person suggesting the title.

Other displays will be an exhibit by the Marquette Camera club and one by Mrs. Alice Ross Brening, 3814 63d pl., and her pupils which will demonstrate photographic studies and paintings respectively.

Ogden Park, 66th st. and Racine av., under direction of Mrs. Frances Catlin, librarian, will have an exhibit in the Ogden park fieldhouse hobby show today illustrating how books foster hobbies. This collection of miniature horses, buttons, sea shells, soap carvings, and craftwork, will be moved into the library for the week.

Students to Take Charge

Miss Anna I. Kelley, librarian at Sherman Park, 55th st. and Racine av., has invited eight senior students at Visitation High school to act as junior librarians from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. on Tuesday. They will be given complete charge of the library during that time under supervision. In addition, a special poster display will illustrate gardening hints. A rug and wallpaper exhibit will feature war time trends.

Autographs and photographs of Chicago authors will be shown at Hiram Kelly, 6147 Normal blvd. On Thursday night Miss Dorothy Archibald, staff librarian, will review "Tomorrow Will Sing." Special invitations to attend the book review have been issued to parents who have attended the library's course in the guidance of children's reading. At the same time a book hour will be held for children under guidance of Hazel Weinstein.

Will Hold Book Fair

A book fair, consisting of titles dealing with post-war planning and the American dream, will be held at Hamilton Park, 72d st. and Normal blvd. More than 300 titles will be in the display. At 1:30 p. m. Wednesday a recording of Verdi's opera, "Aïda," will be played. An illustrated children's story hour will be held at 4 p. m. Friday. In addition, book marks made by librarians to announce Chicago Public Library week will be distributed free.

Walker, 111th st. and Hoyne av., is planning to invite newcomers of the neighborhood to visit the library during the week.

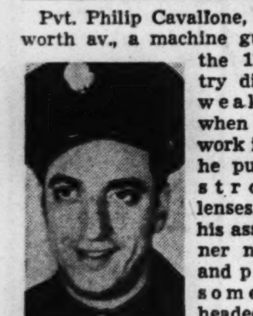
Books dealing with the San Francisco conference will hold the center of attention at Auburn Park, 79th and Halsted sts. Open house will be held and both community leaders and high school teachers and students are invited. Streamers have been made which will be placed in menus or neighborhood restaurants to advertise the week.

Calumet Sunday Schools to Hold Annual Meeting

The 11th annual Interchurch Sunday school convention of the Calumet district will open at 2 p. m. Saturday in Bethany Reform church, 111th pl. and Perry av. Speaker at the general conference, which begins at 4:30 p. m., will be Harold E. Ingraham, business manager of the National Baptist Sunday school board. John Myers is convention chairman.

G. I. PREFERS LETTERS FROM HOME TO NAZIS, TAKES CARE OF BOTH

Pvt. Philip Cavallone, 5165 Wentworth av., a machine gunner with the 114th infantry division, has weak eyes, so when any close work is called for he pulls out his strong G. I. lenses. Recently, his assistant gunner nudged him and pointed to some Germans headed towards them.



Philip Cavallone

Cavallone took no chances. He pulled out his glasses, blew on them, wiped them off with his handkerchief, bent over and examined his gun sights, while his assistant fretted. After making a few adjustments he squeezed off a short burst. Two Germans dropped, the others scattering. His buddies discovered he had accounted for a German captain and a 1st sergeant.

Meanwhile, Cavallone, still in his foxhole, was cleaning and storing away his glasses. "Can't take a chance with these; gotta have 'em for reading letters from home," he declared.

Intrigue, Romance, and Melody to Be Presented by St. Louis Academy Players

The chopsticks and queues of this smiling quartet will lend oriental atmosphere to the St. Louis Academy High school production, "A Waltz Dream" tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Members of a Chinese chorus (left to right) are: Geraldine Korzenecki, 12245 Eggleston av.; Irene Svecko, 10410 Indiana av.; Joan Garren, 10127 Winston av., and Lourdine Frazen, 9916 Vincennes av.

Immelodious tunes piped by Count Lothar, the court buffoon, may bring displeasure to the royalty of Sylvania, legendary kingdom which is the setting of the operetta, but audiences will chuckle at antics of the befeathered nobleman. The comedy role is played by Olga Tavernaro, 215 W. 115th st.

Dark haired Barbara McCarthy, Dolton, is one of eight candidates for the flower crown to be awarded St. Louis academy's queen as a climax to the operetta. The queen will be selected by war bond buyers, one vote being awarded for each penny invested.

Altho Niki, as played by Bernadette Derwinski, 12109 Parnell av., simulates interest in the lovely Princess Helene (Marguerite Price, 11351 Calumet av.), she shows clearly that her thoughts are elsewhere. Operetta audiences will learn Niki and Helene are in love with commoners, altho Helene's royal father has chosen Niki to be his son-in-law. How the two work out their problem is the basis of three acts of drama, music, and dances.

CAP WILL STAGE AIR SHOW TODAY AT HARVEY POST

Event Will Climax Recruit Month

An air show at 1 p. m. today at Harvey's Ruginham airport will climax a month of recruiting by the civil air patrol in Illinois. More than 30 planes piloted by members oı the Rubinkam squadron will take part in landing, flying, and stunt exhibitions.

Events have been arranged by Lt. Theo Farrington, operations officer, and Warrant Officer William Jacobs, flight officer and airport manager.

Plan Aerial Review

Opening the show will be an aerial review in which plane power available for local emergencies and war missions will be demonstrated. At 1:15 p. m. contestants in the powder puff Derby are scheduled to cross the finish of a 75 mile triangular course race. Participants will include Warrant Officers Elaine Smith and Cyrilla Knudtson, Lt. Frlyne Conel, and Privates Ruth Spietz, Lucille Schubbe, and Bernice Jacobs.

Warrant Officer Danny Kladis of the Harlem airport squadron, will make a 3,000 foot parachute jump following which there will be an exhibition of formation flying and aerobatics. Guests flying from the Harlem squadron will include Lt. Fred Chase Lt. Conway Bird, and Flight Leader Charles Compton. There will be a balloon pursuit by planes, cadet ground maneuvers, ribbon cutting by planes, and a message pickup which will demonstrate how planes in combat pick up messages, mail, and even human cargo without landing.

Speaker to Describe Action

Delayed parachute jumping, parachute package dropping, and parachute opening demonstrations also will be given. A spot landing contest will be held. All events will be described over a loud speaker.

WILSON COLLEGE WILL GIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL MAY 18

The music department of Wilson Junior college, will present its 11th annual music festival May 18 in the college auditorium, 6800 Stewart av. The theme will be "Music in Life." Mrs. Esther G. Gilliland, choir leader, and Henry Sopkin, orchestra director, will be in charge.

A queen and court of honor will be chosen from contestants selected by the Ex-Servicemen's club. Candidates include Bobbie Borchardt, Gloria Fillipoff, Dorothy Healy, June M. Kann, Alice Kirby, Toby Kornfeld, Lillian Kosmosky, June Lerner, Colleen V. Lewis, Dorothy Pfaff, Lois Merriam, Rose Marie Smith, Shirley Warner, and Elaine Zaker.

The queen and her court of six will be elected on the basis of student war bond and stamp purchases, with one vote granted for each 25 cent stamp purchased. The winners will be presented at the festival. Admission will be by ticket and the purchase of an additional war stamp.

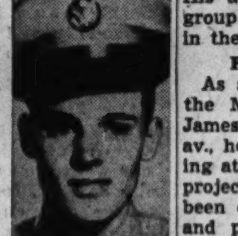
PVT. HARRY EKSTROM HELPS KILL 4 NAZIS, NAB 18; WINS MEDAL

The silvar star for gallantry in action on the German front has been awarded Pvt. Harry Ekstrom, 239 W. 103d st., his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Ekstrom, were notified recently.



Pvt. Harry Ekstrom

Along with three other members of a tank destroyer crew, he was cited for reducing a strongly entrenched enemy position which had been holding up the advance of the American infantry. Under the covering fire of a buddy with a light machine gun the others attacked the stronghold on foot, killing four of the enemy and capturing 18.

Beverly Service Council Aids Will Elect Officers

Officers of Beverly Service Council aids will be elected Tuesday at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Harry Hagey, 9807 Winchester av. Baby kimonos, bonnets, and other clothing made by members will be turned in for delivery to the Red Cross and Salvation Army.

UNSUNG TASKS START FLYERS ON GLORY ROAD

Yanks in Dungaries Keep 'Em in Air

Unsung contributions to the spectacular successes of American air forces abroad are made daily by southwest area men who perform essential ground jobs in the maintenance of planes and equipment, work in offices and mess halls, and handle supplies.

As a mechanic stationed in Marrakech, North Africa, Corp. Edward C. Kovalcik, 2138 52d pl., aids in the repair and upkeep of aircraft which fly high priority cargo and mail to Russia, Europe, and the middle and far east.

Overseas 17 Months

Corp. Thomas J. Petrolis, 2906 Emerald av., is serving as a radio technician with a signal corps unit of a troop carrier service wing in France. A graduate of De La Salle High school and Wilson Junior college, he has been overseas 17 months.

Henry C. Jasinski, technician 4th grade, is mess sergeant of the Enlisted Men's [Palace] Mess at an air force station in Italy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jasinski, 4929 S. Ashland av. Also engaged in the task of supplying meals to America's flying men is Corp. Christopher Votteler, 10521 Wabash av., former Chicago baker now assigned to a squadron kitchen at a Mediterranean base. His unit services a veteran B-25 group flying tactical missions in support of the 5th army.

Mechanic Wins Stars

Two battle stars on a Mediterranean theater ribbon and a distinguished unit badge attest to the service given by Pvt. Frank E. Blackburn, 6725 S. Winchester av., an aircraft mechanic. Now stationed at a 12th air force A-20 base in Italy, he has been in Europe since July, 1944. Inspection and repair of aircraft in North Africa are the duties of Sgt. John T. Robins, 535 Garfield blvd., an airplane technician at an air transport command base. Sgt. Robins has been overseas nearly a year.

Contributing to aerial warfare in another way, Sgt. Russell J. Havlik, 7059 Aberdeen st., has been commended by his battalion commander for superior work as a draftsman. His aviation engineer topographic group makes photo maps for use in the European offensive.

Runs Movies at Briefings

As staff clerk at a B-25 base in the Mediterranean theater, Corp. James Murphy, 5445 S. Christiana av., helps prepare crews for bombing attacks by operating the movie projector during briefings. He has been overseas since Feburay, 1943, and participated in the Tunisian, Sicilian, Italian, and southern France campaigns.

After 33 months as a mess sergeant in the South Pacific, Sgt. Edward M. Zajac, 11921 Wallace st., has returned to this country for treatment in the convalescent hospital in Miami Beach, Fla. While overseas he supervised the preparation of food for a 13th air force group that served at Guadalcanal and in the Philippines. At one station his mess hall was wrecked by a direct hit from Jap bombers.

St. Rita Mothers

A luncheon at headquarters of the Milk Foundation, 75 E. Wacker dr., will be sponsored Tuesday by the Mothers club of St. Rita High school, 6312 S. Oakley av. Mrs. Anton Black is the chairman.

GET OUT PAPERS FOR 'BOMBERS—NOW OVER TOKYO'

Two Church Groups Edit News for Fighters

If military regulations permitted the use of more specific information than A. P. O. and F. P. O. numbers in overseas addresses, directions ranging from "foxhole—not far from Berlin" to "bomber—now over Tokyo" would be included in the mailing lists of two amateur publications edited by southwest area residents.

The two mimeographed news letters, Blue Star for service men from the Morgan Park Presbyterian church, Longwood dr. and 111th st., and the Roseland Pres for those from the Roseland Presbyterian church, 11200 State st., are edited by former school friends and neighbors of fighters.

Eight Get Out Blue Star

Eight young women, headed by Miss Lillian Penn, 10747 Kedzie av., spend their evenings writing and mimeographing the Blue Star for 100 service men and 100 civilian friends and relatives of the men. In the group are Mrs. Jeanette Isles, whose husband, Pvt. William Isles, was killed last July in France, Mrs. Muriel Jack, Miss Betty Barmore, Miss Sarah Jane Barmore, Miss Clara Lee, Miss Dorothy Richards, and Miss Pearl McGonigle.

The first issue of the Blue Star was printed immediately after Pearl Harbor, and it has been published once or twice each month since. Two girls are assigned to each of the four pages, one of which contains home news, one quotations from service men's letters, and a third jokes. On the fourth page are chatty columns and a message from the church pastor.

Several of the men who receive the Blue Star have been able to arrange meetings overseas after reading of each other's whereabouts in the news letter.

Send Wake of News Items

Copies of In the Wake of the News and A Line o' Type or Two, saved carefully by church members from their own Tribunes, are mailed each month with the Roseland Pres. According to Mrs. Frank C. Stevens, 10827 Normal av., the editor, the men await the columns almost as eagerly as they look forward to reading news of their community and fellow fighters in the mimeographed publication.

From the first one and a half page edition in February, 1943, of which Mrs. Stevens, working alone, printed 50 copies, the Pres has become the war project of more than 19 members of the Roseland church, and 300 copies of from 12 to 24 pages are published monthly.

Much of the Pres is made up of letters from service men, with a reply to each by Mrs. Stevens. Messages from other members of the church also are included, as well as community and family news, lists of promotions, and poems.

Also Works at Hospital

Mrs. Stevens, who works on the news letter after putting in long hours as an assistant in the maternity ward of the Roseland Community hospital, is the mother of two service men on the Pres mailing list. Lt. Frank Stevens, 23, is recuperating in a convalescent center at Fort Logan, Colo., after an airplane crash in which he was severely burned. Pvt. Ray Stevens, 21, is with the infantry in Germany, and has been awarded silver and bronze stars and the Purple Heart.

Several other Pres staff members are also parents of service men. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCutcheon, 10917 Wabash av., have a son, Edgar, serving as a radio technician, 1st class, in the Pacific. Pvt. George Johnson, son of Mrs. Lillian Johnson, 11033 Parnell av., is a paratrooper. Lt. Kenneth Greear, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Greear, 11317 Indiana av., has been reported missing in action in the Pacific. Another son, Vernon, is in the navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sheldon, 10634 Eggleston av., have two sons, Eugene and Edwin, in the navy, and Lt. Carl Remington, son of Mrs. A. O. Remington, 119 W. 112th st., is an army pilot. Lt. Parker Jones Jr. is the son of Mrs. Parker Jones, 11229 Parnell av. Charles Gross Jr., son of Mrs. Charles Gross, 11501 Michigan av., has received a medical discharge because of injuries received overseas.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Sgt. Pratscher

Sgt. Albert S. Pratscher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pratscher, 4453 Stewart av., recently was awarded the bronze star for saving a wounded comrade and directing fire on the enemy with great risk to his personal safety. Sgt. Pratscher is a graduate of Englewood High school, where he held the rank of lieutenant in the R. O. T. C.

Raymond H. Benjamin was graduated recently at Carlsbad [N. M.] army air field and appointed a flight officer after completing bombardier training. His wife, Bernice, lives in Blue Island.

Herbert Stibbs

Coast Guardsman Herbert Stibbs, 7018 Justine st., participated in the invasion of the Ryukyu Islands and previously was in the invasions of the Marshall, Marianas, and Philippine Islands. Part of his duty consists in keeping the winch levers on an invasion transport in condition for unloading supplies and ammunition during beachhead operations.

Frank E. Seipel, Chicago Heights, recently informed his wife, Mary, of his promotion to major with the 5th army in Italy. A construction superintendent in civilian life, he is now an engineer maintenance officer.

Sgt. Huisinga

Marine Sgt. Rudolph E. Huisinga, 8433 Lafayette av., a veteran of three Pacific campaigns, recently received the bronze star for extraordinary courage and coolness under fire on Guadalcanal, Tarawa, and Saipan, where he was wounded. He was decorated in a ceremony at Klamath Falls, Ore.

John R. Ittersagen, aviation ordnanceman 2d class, 7341 Lowe av., returned from combat in the Pacific recently, where he was assigned to an aircraft carrier. As turret gunner on a Grumman Avenger, Ittersagen flew 28 combat missions over the Bonins, Palau, Formosa, Philippines, and French Indo-China.

Carl Nylander

Lt. Carl M. Nylander, son of C. F. Nylander, Blue Island, has been presented the air medal and cluster at an air force base in Italy. Lt. Nylander is a veteran of over 31 combat flights as bombardier on a Flying Fortress. He enlisted Feb. 5, 1942, and won his wings March 18, 1944. His brother, Pvt. Robert R. Nylander, is serving with the engineers in France.

Newly arrived overseas, Lt. Bert E. Kullerstrand, has been assigned as a navigator in the Snoopers, a heavy bombardment unit of the 13th A. A. F., operating against enemy shipping in Philippine waters. Son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Kullerstrand, 11001 Hoyne av., he is a graduate of Morgan Park High school and has been in service three years.

Corp. Thomas J. Harney, 1019 W. 55th st., a member of a medical detachment, has been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received on Luzon. A graduate of Mount Carmel High school, Corp. Harney has been in the army four years and overseas one and a half.

Mrs. Virginia Strauss, Evergreen Park, recently received a copy of a citation awarding the bronze star to her son, Corp. Irwin Strauss. A member of a field artillery battery detail, Corp. Strauss accompanied the forward observer to a tower which was under heavy enemy fire and adjusted the fire of his own battery, until the mission had been accomplished.

Corp. McGuire

Corp. Jack H. McGuire, Harvey, recently spent several days resting and sightseeing in Rome. He is a member of a 15th air force Liberator bomber crew. Prior to joining the air forces he was employed by the Brasco company in Harvey. Overseas for eight months, he wears three battle stars.

Lt. Edward A. Martiniak, 5736 Trumbull av., a combat pilot, was awarded the air medal for his participation in an attack on a railroad bridge in northern Italy. A graduate of Lindblom High school and a baker in civilian life, Martiniak entered service in December, 1942, and received his commission last May 1.

W. L. Houghton

Twice wounded, Pvt. W. L. Houghton Jr., whose parents live at 6630 Yale av., is home on furlough after a year in the European theater. For his two injuries, one incurred near Paris and the other in the Hurtgen forest, Germany, Pvt. Houghton is wearing the Purple Heart with cluster. He also has been awarded the bronze star.

Among the graduates of the medical field service officer candidate school, Carlisle barracks, Pa., are two southwest siders, Lt. Frank J. Angelo, 7348 S. Marshfield av., and Lt. William J. Sala, 5721 Lowe av.

W. J. McDonough

William J. McDonough, 7954 Green st., has been graduated from the officer candidate department of the transportation corps school, New Orleans, La., army air base and commissioned a second lieutenant.

Corp. John Sauer, brother of Mrs. Anna Jud, 721 W. 60th st., has been awarded the bronze star for action in Normandy. He was instrumental in destroying several enemy ammunition and gasoline trucks. Altho he suffered shrapnel wounds in the leg, he has recovered and is working in the office of labor supervision in France.

The silver star has been awarded Pvt. Harry Ekstrom, 239 W. 103d st., for gallantry on the German front, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Ekstrom, were notified recently. Along with three other members of a tank destroyer crew he attacked a strongly entrenched enemy position which had been holding up the American advance, killed four and captured 18 Germans.

Sgt. Edward F. Kammrath Jr., 1468 W. 73d pl., recently was awarded the silver star for volunteering to contact adjoining units and assisting in the capture of an anti-tank gun, ammunition, and 31 of the enemy.

FOUR BROTHERS SERVE OVERSEA, FIFTH IN ILLINOIS

War Working Family Waits for Reunion

On Dec. 7, 1941, the five army age sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morrell were exchanging views on the world series when the radio brought startling news—news that would mean their separation from the home at 503 W. 81st st., where all of them were born, and where their parents had lived 40 years.

"Here we go, fellows," observed Albert, youngest of the five. The others nodded soberly.

Albert's prediction came true soon. First to go was Leo, who left in January, 1942. In May, Eugene was inducted, and next, in September, was Albert. William went into the air forces in January, 1943, and Samuel into the medical corps the following September.

Quartet Overseas

Four of the boys are overseas. Leo, 27, a technician 5th grade, is with a cannon company in France. Sgt. Eugene, 25, is in an infantry headquarters finance office in India, and Pvt. William, 29, is in England.

Corp. Albert, 22, was wounded in Germany last Dec. 19 when a bomb exploded, and since then has been in an army hospital in England. He has received the Purple Heart.

Plan Family Reunion

Pvt. Samuel, 35, is on the staff of Mayo General hospital, Galesburg, Ill.

Plans for a family reunion—the first since Leo went into service 39 months ago—at the close of the European war are already being made by Mrs. Morrell. Present to welcome their brothers will be Henry Morrell, 504 W. 81st st., a war worker; David, youngest of the family, who attends Calumet High, as did all his brothers; Genevieve, also a war worker, and Mrs. Eva Workman, 8824 Union av.

ST. LOUIS HIGH TO GIVE OSCAR STRAUSS SHOW

'Waltz Dream' Will Open Tomorrow Afternoon

Thruout most of the year, pupils of St. Louis Academy High school are rosy cheeked American girls in trim navy blue and white uniforms. For three days this week, however, the 240 girls will be transformed into almond skinned Chinese, exotic senoritas, and imposing European noblemen to stress international good will in a pageant based on the Oscar Strauss operetta, "A Waltz Dream."

The stage of Fenger High school auditorium, 11220 Wallace st., will become a royal court of the legendary kingdom of Sylvania for the three performances, at 3:45 p. m. Monday and 8:15 o'clock Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Will Crown Victory Queen

The coronation of a victory queen selected by student bond buyers will climax the three act production. Candidates for the honor are Lorraine Branka, 11315 Langley av.; Anna Mae Fiske, 11532 Stewart av.; Dolores Fogle, 9952 Wentworth av.; Barbara McCarthy, Dalton; Teresa Mulvenna, 11231 St. Lawrence av.; Shirley Strumil, 539 W. 119th st.; Eleanor Tremblay, 10515 Lafayette av., and Barbara Widman, Midlothian.

Thru a student committee headed by Patricia Sorgani, 6829 S. Winchester av., bonds totaling more than $10,000 have been sold. Each penny invested in a bond entitles the buyer to one vote, and the girl receiving the most votes will receive a flower crown donated by the Knights of Columbus, San Salvador council, and presented by Mrs. Leo Cummings, Illinois chairman for bond sales by Catholic organizations.

Take Leading Parts

"A Waltz Dream" is a tale of court intrigue and romance. Marguerite Price, 11351 Calumet av., is cast as the indispensable beautiful princess; Bernadette Derwinski, 12109 Parnell av., as her intended bridegroom; and Yvonne Heffron, 11246 Indiana av., and Gloria Panetti, 11529 Michigan av., as the commoners with whom the two are really in love. Other leading parts are played by Marjorie Peto, 406 W. 119th st.; Mary Anne Slater, 11355 Prairie av., and Dorothy Weber, 43 E. 99th pl.

South American atmosphere will be introduced in a cafe scene, in which entertainers will include Diane Pettenon, 11043 Parnell av., as a Brazilian soloist, and a senior sextet of singers and dancers. Representing American students in traditional cap and gown, another group will offer a patriotic choral reading. Mary Ella Whitney of Oklahoma City, violinist and the school's only resident student, will play the accompaniment for a solo dance by Mary Anna Zmuda, 34 E. 122d pl.

Will Sing New Song

In musical interludes by the chorus and orchestra, the romantic melodies and dreamy waltzes of Oscar and Johann Strauss will be supplemented by the timely "Uncle Sam, the Man We Love," an unpublished song by Gloria Yates, graduate student at the American Conservatory of Music.

Mrs. Lois Murphy Glasgow is director of dramatics and dancing, and Mrs. Jeanne Watkins is in charge of the orchestra and chorus. Both are academy teachers. Mrs. John Hale Rhodes of Cincinnati, a former student of the school, will be pianist.

S. W. SIDE CHURCH MEETS GOAL IN BIBLE CAMPAIGN

An armful of Bibles will be given liberated Europeans in the name of each service man of the Englewood Disciples of Christ church, 6625 Stewart av., as a result of the church's participation in the current drive of the American and Chicago Bible societies. A goal of $1,320, to represent $10 for each of the 132 stars in the church service flag, already has been exceeded by more than $90, the Rev. Charles G. Kindred, pastor, said.

The Chicago quota in the drive is a $250,000 share of the $3,000,000 national goal. The campaign will end June 1.

Bibles purchased thru these funds will be distributed free to service men, civilians in liberated countries, and prisoners of war.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 30

Now is the time to put out a few plants that will have a chance to live if light frosts should come. It is better not to force plants by planting out of doors. Harden them off in the frame, protecting them at night if sudden cold weather approaches.

Tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, cucumbers, and other tender kinds seldom respond during cool weather, but if planted when the soil is warm they grow rapidly and become established quickly.

Pansies should be in the ground and flowering; the half hardy annuals can be sown. Perennials should be transplanted.

Tuesday, May 1

Continue cultivating the garden to kill weeds. Do this when the weeds are small, cultivating no more than an inch deep. As the plants grow, whether they are vegetables or flowers, do not cut too close to the plants or the roots may be injured.

Wednesday, May 2

When sowing fine seed, such as poppy or mignonette, mix it with three parts of sand. Poppy seed is very fine and because of that the gardner usually sows it too thick and is obliged to cut the plants.

To thin, when the seedlings are about an inch high, hoe the bed across in lines about 18 inches wide, leaving thin lines of plants. Then hoe across the other way so that the lines will be from 12 to 18 inches apart.

Thursday, May 3

If nasturtiums are sown in too rich a soil an abundance of foliage will be produced but few flowers. The same is true of the California poppy, statice, and portulaca.

What to plant in shade is always a problem, but for a quick growing garden of annuals there is nothing quite as satisfactory as the nicotiana sylvestric. It is a fine plant of pyramidal habit, grows up to 6 feet, with heads of tubular white flowers and fine, green leaves.

Friday, May 4

A good tropical annual for planting along a fence, or to hide the sunny side of the garage, is the common castor bean. The large, handsome leaves develop rapidly. It may be used as a center plant in a bed, with cannas next to it and fountain grass as a border. Plant after May 20 but not much earlier.

Keep on cultivating the garden even tho no weeds are visible. Keep the yard in good condition by weeding walks, flower beds, and borders.

Saturday, May 5

Plunge all small pots of annuals to their rim in the coldframe. Plunging keeps moist soil around the plants, preventing their drying out.

Watch for insects and begin spraying as soon as the first one is sighted. It is absolutely necessary to combat insect pests the minute the plants are attacked.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

St. Bridget's Sodality to Hold Annual Benefit

The Young Ladies' sodality of St. Bridget's church will hold its annual benefit party Saturday night in the parish hall, 2926 Archer av. Sileen Brody, Josephine McQuaid, and Peggy Trendell head the committee in charge. Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the nuns of the parish.

Highland Improvement Group Plans Discussion

Clarence Maes, 8205 Marshfield av., president of the Highland Improvement association, will lead a discussion on community problems Tuesday evening in American Legion hall, 8227 Ashland av. A membership drive is being conducted and several new members will be introduced at the meeting.

Remember last year when all your peas, beans, beets and other vegetables were gone and you wished you'd planted more? Better prevent a recurrence of that this year by making several repeat plantings. But be sure to plant dependable seeds—FERRY'S.

We take every precaution that's possible to make sure Ferry's Seeds will produce vegetables full of nutrition and flavor. That's why Ferry's Seeds always have been the choice of experienced gardeners the country over.

And we've made Ferry's Seeds mighty easy for you to buy. Just drop in at your favorite dealer and you'll find a large assortment of Ferry's Vegetable and Flower Seeds in beautifully illustrated packets. Have a better garden with Ferry's Seeds.

CARBOLA
HELPS KEEP BUGS AWAY

HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS

Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.

TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS

In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.

Hardware, seed, feed, drugstores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write for free handy garden chart.

COUPLE WITHOUT SIGHT SEES WAY TO HELP IN WAR

Work at Tooling, Pack Tractor Parts

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kunter, 3019 62d st., wanting to make a direct contribution to the war, but blinded since childhood, were unable to look for work in the usual way. Turning to the state employment agency for the blind, they obtained positions from Charles Gratten, himself blind.

Mrs. Kunter began work at the International Harvester company a year ago in the pre-packing department and now works eight hours a day, six days a week. Along with 50 other women, she weighs, sorts and packs parts of tractors, weighing from 1 ounce to 25 pounds, for shipment overseas. Company officials have said her work is as free from errors as that of the others.

Her Only Job

This is the only full time job Mrs. Kunter ever has held. Previously she was employed by the Red Cross to proofread braille books in her home. She was blinded in an accident when 5. Mrs. Kunter is a graduate of Wendell Phillips High school.

A childhood disease took Carl Kunter's vision. Later he attended State School for the Blind at Jacksonville, Ill. Learning the piano tuning trade, he practiced it until the war. Then he worked concession stands, obtained thru a society for the blind, in the Merchandise Mart and the County building. His present position, obtained thru a state agency, is with the Hinsdale Tool company, 1728 Walnut st.

Meet in Social Group

In 1929, Carl and Nettie were married. They had met thru a social group for the blind. They have one child, Cecile, 8, a student at Marquette school. A maid calls Cecile each morning and gets breakfast for her while the parents are at work. A cocker spaniel completes the family group.

Apart from cutting down on the family food consumption, ration points and colored tokens have not made shopping any greater a problem than it is for other housewives. Mrs. Kunter's daughter, or sister, Mrs. William Golden, accompanies her to the stores. "Kind and considerate grocers help me, too, when I am alone," Mrs. Kunter declared.

Couple Enjoys Movies

In off hours, the movies are the family's favorite form of recreation. Not being able to see the screen doesn't hamper the enjoyment of the blind couple. They describe their enjoyment as being similar to the pleasure other people obtain from listening to the radio.

At home they read a great deal. The Reader's Digest is their choice for magazine reading. Light novels are the favorite type of book. Altho Cecile is now learning to read, she remembers the time when her mother read fairy stories to her, in braille books. Young as she is, Cecile realizes that even tho sight reading is hard to learn, finger or braille reading, is more difficult.

GIVE HERBERT'S 'MARIETTA' AS A SOLO TOMORROW

The alumni association of Morgan Park Junior college, under the chairmanship of Graham Davies and Marian Miller, will present Olive O'Neil in a solo interpretation of "Naughty Marietta" by Victor Herbert tomorrow night in the Ridge Park fieldhouse, 96th st. and Longwood dr.

Assisting are Norma McWilliams, Betty Lou Tikalsky, Robert Holzinger, John Krvavica, and Robert Fisher.

Miss O'Neil will utilize story, song, and costume. Having written the script and arranged the music, she calls her offering a miniature operetta. Alexander Marney will accompany at the piano.

Veteran's Bride

MRS. J. E. BLICKENSTAFF.
[Koehne Photo.]

The former Miss Marie Elsie Markmann, daughter of Max Markmann, 8242 Sangamon st., is the bride of John E. Blickenstaff, Oakley, Ill. The couple is living in San Diego, Cal., where the bridegroom is stationed as an aerial photographer's mate with the navy. He has served in the South Pacific two years.

BEVERLY HILLS LEGION WOMEN GET CENTER JOB

RADIO'S JARGON IS EXPLAINED IN MBS GLOSSARY

'Leg' Means Something Else in Studios

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Know what a "leg" is as applied to broadcasting? Nope, it has nothing to do with pinups of radio beauties. It means a regional chain, or part of a bigger network. "Cold" in radio doesn't refer to a congestion in the head. It means without preliminaries or embellishment. It is applied to a program that begins in such a manner.

A glossary of several hundred radio expressions [with definitions] has been compiled by Gilbert McClelland of the Mutual network staff to serve as a handy guide to personnel—particularly new persons who are likely to be a bit baffled by the lexicon of broadcasting. Below are a few selections from the booklet which may be of general interest:

Across the board — Radio program booked daily at the same time.
Ad lib—To improvise, to speak lines not in the script.
Breaks—Any interruptions in a program.
Bridge — A piece of transitional music or sound effect to link scenes.
Bugs—Trouble in equipment caused by something not immediately obvious.
Channel—An electrical circuit.
Clear a number—To obtain official permission to use a certain musical selection.
Cushion—A flexible musical number near the end of a program which can be lengthened or shortened.
Cow-catcher — Advertising messages carried just before a specific program plugging some auxiliary product of the sponsor.
Dawn patrol—Those concerned with early morning programs.
Dress—The final complete rehearsal.
Dubbing—Transposing recorded matter to a new record.
Electrical Transcription—An electrical recording made especially for broadcasting.
Fade—A diminishing of program volume.
Feed—To send a program over the air, to other stations or groups of stations.
Fill—Added program material.
Fluff—Missing a cue, or stumbling over a line.
In the mud—Too little tonal volume or lack of definition.
Key station—The station where the network program originates.
Live—As opposed to recorded or transcribed.
Local—A program presented from a single station.
Log—An accurate journal of every minute of broadcasting; required by law.
MC—Master of ceremonies.
Mike—A microphone.
Mike Hog—One of a group of performers who elbows others from the microphone.
Mix—Combining the input of two or more microphones to effect a complete balance.
Monitor—To check the program by means of audio equipment.
On the button [head, nose]—Ending [a program] exactly on time.
P. A.—Public address or talk back system. Also press agent, or personal appearance.
Pancake turner—The sound technician controling the playing of double faced records.
Platter—A phonograph record or a transcription.
R. & R.—Record and Repeat.
Round Robin—A wire loop going from one point thru various points and returning. It can be broken at any point and programs sent either or both ways for various program originations or for split network purposes.
Ride gain—The studio engineer is said to ride gain while controlling increases or decreases in program volume.
Script—A manuscript. Continuity. Dramatic score.
Segue — The transition from one musical number to another without break or interruption.
Signature—Musical number or sound effect identifying a program.
Sneak in—To introduce music softly and then bring it up full behind dialog.
Stand-by—A substitute program ready to put on the air in case of an emergency. Also used as a warning to performers to get ready to go on the air.
Stretch — Slow up the concluding musical number so that the show will finish on the nose.
Take it away—The cue from studio engineer to engineer of succeeding program.

One expression not included but often heard around radio studios is "in conference." As we recall, it was Fred Allen who defined a conference as "a meeting of vice presidents who singly can do nothing and who together can only decide that nothing can be done."

Musical Team

Jerry Wayne will have as guest on his show Songstress Evelyn Knight at 7:30 tonight over WENR-Blue.

OPEN MUSICAL BOUQUET SERIES ON WENR TODAY

Paul Frenet, young French singing star, will be soloist on the new Musical Bouquet show which will have its premier over WENR at 2 p. m. today. Frenet will sing a romantic song each Sunday—in French. He also will join Lois Marlowe in a duet. The orchestra will be led by Earl Warren who specializes in music with violins, cellos, harp, and oboe predominating. Frenet's solo today will be "These Foolish Things."

S.W. SIDE CENTER SKATING REVIEW TO OPEN TODAY

St. Sabina community center, 1210 W. 78th st., will be the scene of a roller skating show, opening with a matinee today and playing tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights. Under sponsorship of the Mothers club, 28 acts of teenage skaters will take part.

Mary Murray

Lenora Hartigan

The cast was selected from regular skaters at the center and is directed by Mrs. George Finn, 8001 May st., president of the parish mothers' club.

Lenora Hartigan and Mary Murray will appear in "Roller Tapettes," and William Clarke and Robert Cannavan will perform acrobatics in "Precision in the Making." A Maypole dance will be executed by 16 girls.

Two teams of boys will compete in a short basketball game on wheels. Joan Finn will appear as "St. Sabina's Pinup Girl," skating to "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody."

A comedy act, "Laws Are Made to be Broken," set in a park atmosphere, will tell in pantomime the story of the maid, the baby, and the policeman. Lorraine McCarthy, William Tumpane, and Patricia Allen will enact the three roles. As musical background to this and many of the other numbers the Mothers club will sing.

PHYSICIAN TAKES HORSE FOR RIDE (BEFORE MEALS)

Both Doing Nicely; Who Is Calling, Please?

It is a good doctor who follows his own advice, the saying goes, and Dr. Frank P. Hammond, 1518 E. 59th st., does just that. Six years ago, ill health made him give up his favorite sport, golf, and he was on the look-out for another recreation.

Dr. Hammond loves horses and even tho it then was 40 years since he had been in the saddle, he felt sure he had the right prescription. The 66 year old physician has ridden one or two hours daily since.

Ride Horses for Health

"Horseback riding is an all-year hobby, surpassing golf," he said. "Those who ride, stay sound and healthy, inside and out."

Dr. Hammond always wanted to share his riding pleasure with his wife, Connie, but she was afraid of horses. Three years ago she decided to learn to ride. Beginning with walking horses, she took daily lessons until she not only conquered her fear but became a proficient rider. Thrown once, when a dog frightened her horse, she proved her former fear was conquered by remounting immediately.

The couple has belonged to Olympia Fields Country club more than 20 years. They have lived in their cottage on the club grounds from early May to late September. For the last two years they have journeyed from their home to the club on horseback, making the 25 mile trip in about six hours.

The doctor and his wife planned to make their annual migration yesterday. Altho the longer part of the trip will take them on congested roads, the horses are not afraid of automobile traffic. Part of the ride will be made on the shoulders of roads. For those who pity the horses because of the long ride, Dr. Hammond says the riders, not the horses, are the ones to be pitied.

Altho the Hammonds are the only club members who ride to the club from their home, many others keep their horses on the grounds. The doctor's Royal Scott, a chestnut gelding, was purchased last summer. Justa Darlin, Mrs. Hammond's filly, was her husband's former horse.

In keeping with the aims of the Town and Country Equestrian association: to stimulate riding by recording the hour one rides, Dr. Hammond knows he has ridden more than 160 hours this year. Last year he won second prize for riding more than 600 hours.

Must Master Horses

In discussing reasons why more people don't ride, Dr. Hammond placed fear and the uncertainty of how to handle horses as the chief barrier. He advises never to let a horse have its own way or break gait. Ninety per cent firmness and aggression, but not cruelty, and 10 per cent kindness, not indulgence, is the best guide, he said.

Medical Auxiliary

The woman's auxiliary of the Chicago Polish Medical society will hold its annual party and fashion show the night of May 9 at the Stevens hotel.

LADIES 'AID PLAY TO SHOW GROUP'S FIRST MEETING

A scene from the first meeting, 35 years ago, of the Grace Lutheran church ladies aid will be presented at an anniversary program this afternoon in the church, 70th st. and Union av.

Mrs. Gust Swanson, 8240 Green st.; Mrs. Berger Peterson, 7248 Green st.; Mrs. Victor Nicholson, 7630 Marshfield av., and Mrs. Albert Ryde, 6130 S. Talman av., all members, will appear in the play which was written by Dr. Ernest C. Bloomquist, pastor, and Mrs. Bloomquist.

Mrs. E. A. Hesler, 9942 Bell av., will read a history of the organization, and the church choir will sing under the direction of Miss Irene Meyer, 9135 Ada st.

WALTER J. BLACK, PRESIDENT OF THE DETECTIVE BOOK CLUB, OFFERS—

FREE PERRY MASON | NERO WOLFE | AGATHA CHRISTIE

TO NEW MEMBERS

Here is a book—and an offer—to make detective fiction history! A great "three-decker" volume containing THREE new, complete novels of THREE of the world's best modern mystery writers — Erle Stanley Gardner, Rex Stout, and Agatha Christie! THREE complete, cream-of-the-crop mystery best-sellers in ONE volume—a $6 value —NOW YOURS FREE as a new-membership gift from the Detective Book Club! Read details below at once.

3 of Their LATEST Mystery Best-Sellers —All 3 Complete in this ONE VOLUME!

Join PERRY MASON in this LATEST Gardner "Murder-Go-Round"

THE CASE OF THE BLACK-EYED BLONDE

Just ONE blonde can cause enough trouble—and lawyer-sleuth Perry Mason is all tangled up with THREE of them! Blonde No. 1 bursts into his office wearing practically nothing but shoes, a fur coat—and a "wow" of a black eye! Blonde No. 2, an ex-trapeze artist, is having mighty odd "in-law" trouble. And Mason finds No. 3 sprawled in the mud, a bullet through her head!

How can No. 2 help Perry Mason prove that No. 1 didn't murder No. 3? Why had the victim concealed her true identity from a traffic cop? How did Diana really get that black eye, and what does it have to do with the murder? And how can Perry Mason ever keep his mind on his work with so many blondes around? — to say nothing of his shapely secretary, Della Street, who is more alluring than ever before.

Over FOUR AND A HALF MILLION of Erle Stanley Gardner's books were sold last year alone! This NEWEST suspense-jammed Gardner brain-teaser will show you why!

Match Your Wits with NERO WOLFE in this LATEST Double Thriller by REX STOUT

NOT QUITE DEAD ENOUGH

If there's anything better than a Nero Wolfe story, it's two of them!—and that's what you get here! Not just one, but the two newest tales of the large and lazy detective who cracks his crimes in such unorthodox but strictly effective fashion.

The first story has Nero's right-hand man, Archie, gumming up the works to a fare-thee-well! His orchid-loving boss doesn't want to take the case—so Archie deliberately plants his own fingerprints all over the scene of the crime. And then there's nothing for Nero to do but go into action.

And the second case is a corker, too! Enemy forces are trying to get at U. S. Army secrets. A colonel who knows too much is blown to bloody bits when he opens his suitcase. A BOOBY TRAP! So it's up to Wolfe to booby-trap the booby-trapper. But suppose the wrong "booby" falls for it. Suppose—but before you get through with this one, a lot of your "supposings" are going to be barking up the wrong tree. Get set for a wonderful crime!

Know Terror in Egypt— In this NEW Mystery by AGATHA CHRISTIE

DEATH COMES AS THE END

Can a murdered woman, sealed deep in an Egyptian tomb, rise from the dead to wreak vengeance? No? Then why does one boy swear that he saw a woman near the wine jars wearing three strings of beads with gold lions in front? Those were the very same jewels that were BURIED with Nofret!

The cycle of doom began the day the wealthy landowner brought his beautiful new concubine to live in his "happy" home. But it did not end when death chilled Nofret's lovely limbs! "Accident" follows "accident." The two brothers drink poisoned wine. The laughing boy is drowned. His aging mother is brutally murdered! And the rest of the family, although paralyzed with terror, dare not even save themselves by clinging together—lest the murderer be one of their own!

What can they do? What would you do? The clues are all before you in this bangup Agatha Christie masterpiece. Yet if you can piece them all together in a logical pattern before the last chapter, you may count yourself more clever than one of the world's most devilishly ingenious mystery writers.

How This Club Brings You the Best Mysteries

Each month this Club offers to its members an attractive triple-volume containing THREE modern detective books—for the usual price of only ONE! And EACH of the three is a complete full length, unabridged and uncondensed novel.

Do you realize that about 300 new detective books are published each year? You can't read them all. It's hard to find the best. But if a mystery is by an author like Agatha Christie, Erle Stanley Gardner, Rex Stout, Dorothy B. Hughes, Cornell Woolrich, or Frances and Richard Lockridge, it's sure to be good! All of these and many other famous writers have had their books selected by the Detective Book Club. Many are members of the Club themselves!

The selections of the club are ALL books that sell everywhere for $2.00 each. Yet, as a member of the Club, you get three of them in one volume (a $6.00 value) for only $1.89! You do not have to take a volume every month—you may accept as few as four during the whole year and still save two-thirds the usual price on those you purchase.

You Enjoy These Four Advantages

(1) Every month you are offered the cream of the finest modern detective books—by the best authors. (2) You save two-thirds the usual cost. (3) Your books are delivered right to your door. Each book is fresh, clean, unopened. It will be right at your elbow whenever you are in the mood, to read as leisurely as you please. (4) You will receive volumes so well printed, so attractively bound, that month by month they will grow into a handsome library of masterpieces of modern detective fiction.

History of Music Series Announces 1945-46 Season

Two Sections of 6 Concerts Each Planned

By Claudia Cassidy

The History and Enjoyment of Music series finally has cut its way thru the maze of complicated detail that makes concert booking a labyrinth, and announces its 11th season, to open at Orchestra hall next Oct. 28 with a recital by Marian Anderson. Because of more intimate capacity in the concerts' new home, some changes have been made. Instead of eight concerts, as in the past, the full series will be extended to 12 performances. However, it is divided into two sections of six concerts each. You can subscribe for either, or both, in this order:

Section I.—Marian Anderson, contralto, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 28; the Philadelphia orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, Monday evening, Nov. 5; Artur Rubinstein, pianist, Sunday afternoon, Nov. 18; Albert Spalding, violinist, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 16; Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, duo-pianists, Sunday afternoon, Jan. 6; Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, Sunday afternoon, March 3.

Section II.—The Boston orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky conducting, Friday evening, Dec. 7; Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Nemenoff, duo-pianists, Friday evening, Feb. 1; Paul Robeson, bass baritone, Sunday afternoon, Jan. 20; Gladys Swarthout, mezzo soprano, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 10; Witold Malcuzynski, pianist, Sunday afternoon, Feb. 24; Nathan Milstein, violinist, Sunday afternoon, March 10.

Well, there it is, and the man who arranged that choice is a Solomon for justice and a Machiavelli for guile. Many an otherwise peaceful Sunday will be wrecked at the sight of it. But if it helps any in making a decision, here are the prices for the full series of 12 concerts: $28.20 for the main floor and boxes; $21.60 for the first nine rows of the balcony; $16.80 for rows 10 thru 19; $12 for the entire gallery. For either set of six concerts, cut those prices in half.

Marian Anderson

Serge Koussevitzky

Orchestra hall will be the third home of the series, and former subscribers will be given locations comparable to those they had at the Civic Opera house, which got the concerts when the Auditorium closed. The reason for the newest move is that the opera house has decided not to rent space to outside managements any more, a gesture by which it kidnaps the ballet bookings, for with the Auditorium in service and the Majestic not yet reopened, the town has no other theater large enough to house the dance troupes at a profit.

Moving its artistic bag and baggage to a new theater, however hospitable, and splitting one established series of concerts into two equally desirable sets, could have been no easy job for the Allied Arts corporation, and it is my private guess that Miss Anderson is opening the new venture for two reasons: To give it her blessing in her eighth appearance on the series, and to help balance that formidable lure on the other side of choice, the Boston orchestra. Mr. Koussevitzky's two concerts here this season were something to cherish, but the one at Orchestra hall was magnificent. To some of us, it was reaffirmation of a reeling faith in the validity of music.

It will be a fine thing, too, to hear Ormandy and the Philadelphia orchestra in a hall created to do orchestras justice, just as it will be good to have Paul Robeson back in concert after two seasons in "Othello," and to hear the brilliant Swedish tenor, Jussi Bjoerling, after too long absence due to war. Mr. Bjoerling, by the way, inadvertantly did me a favor. The secretary of the Policemen's Benevolent and Protective Association of Illinois wrote asking how he could reach the tenor. I sent his agent's address, and promptly received in return a card making me an honoray member of the P. B. A. P. A. O. I., a fine thing for one whose driving needs official indulgence. The trouble is, the P. B. A. P. A. O. I. thinks it is Mr. Claude Cassidy, and I'm afraid to say it isn't for fear of being thrown out.

But back to our concerts. It will be pleasant hearing Mr. Spalding again, particularly after the revealing qualities of his exceptional autobiography, "Rise to Follow." Miss Swarthout, Mr. Rubinstein, and Mr. Milstein are too well known to need more than billing, and both two piano teams are in the upper bracket, tho not all of us had known Mr. Babin is or will be out of uniform in time to book a new season. And perhaps not all of you know Witold Malcuzynski, the young Pole, who has played two recitals here, and returns next season as soloist with the Chicago Symphony. Mr. Malcuzynski is a pianist of great promise. He was Paderewski's last pupil, taken to the master's home at Lake Lucerne long after he had stopped teaching others. When you hear Malcuzynski play, you know why. He has a flair for romantic music in the grand style, and he may start any of these days to go up in public esteem like a skyrocket.

It may be, if you are new to Chicago, that you wonder why so unwieldy a title as the History and Enjoyment of Music series. It's a holdover from the days when Northwestern university started the concerts, with lectures on the side for credit. No history now, just enjoyment. The Allied Arts corporation, sponsoring the performances, has its headquarters at 7 S. Dearborn st. The telephone is Ran. 6933.

Notes of the Theater

Ralph Clanton, whose Cassio is one of the more admired performances in the Erlanger's "Othello," is no newcomer to Shakespeare. This is his 19th Shakespearean role. Among other productions in which he appeared were Maurice Evans' "Macbeth," playing Malcolm, and George Coulouris' "King Richard III," as Catesby. A Californian born in Fresno, Mr. Clanton played several years in stock on both east and west coasts, and appeared with Charles Coburn at the Mohawk festival. After "Othello," he goes to Hollywood.

"The Voice of the Turtle" played its 500th New York performance last night, which caused our Selwyn troupe to count on its fingers. It came out 240 for the local company, also as of last night.

Now that "Life with Father" is returning to Chicago, opening May 28 at the Erlanger, you may be interested in catching up on its phenomenal statistics. On May 19 the New York company catches up with the "Abie's Irish Rose" mark of 2,327 performances. The Empire theater troupe, with many changes in personnel, has played to more than 2,375,000 persons, to the tune of $4,000,000. Seven touring companies have added to Oscar Serlin's coffers, and to the pleasure of his backers.

Harlan Tarbell, the magician who appears at the Civic Opera house tonight, says his show will include the rope mystery he created years ago for the Hindu conjurers, the desert mystery of sand and water, the holy man and his prayer chains, the "Celestial Floating Sphere of India," and other exotic items, including "The Witch Doctor's Indestructible Skin on the Frame." Cozier in style are some of the tricks Charles Dickens used to perform at Christmas parties. The second half of the show will be devoted to eyeless vision, in which Mr. Tarbell demonstrates some surprising things with his eyes sealed. As a matter of fact, he was distinctly disappointed when the city fathers declined to let him drive a car thru town while blindfolded. He recently did an 11 mile stint in Pittsburgh, where they apparently have stronger nerves.

THE GOLDEN TOTEM

BY BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

(Copyright: 1945: By Barrett Willoughby)

INSTALMENT XVII.

GREER returned to his sitting room to find Stella ensconced in the corner of the black leather sofa. She looked up at him and laughed. "The Strum certainly put the bee on you, kid. But I'll have to hand it to you—" admiration rang in her tone—"The final honors are yours. The poor little hen scooted off feeling she had robbed you of $5,000, rather than collected that sum you stole from her man."

She didn't even see the withering look he flung her as he silently took the chair opposite her. She sat, eyes narrowed, fingers tapping the arm of the sofa, trying to recall something. "Let me see—O, yes, now I remember that name, Harry Strum. One of the first on the list of the Peruvian-American company's stock holders, wasn't it?"

"You listened to everything we said, of course," he commented sarcastically.

"With my ear to the keyhole, precious, but, darn it, Jeff, don't you think you overstepped yourself there? High pressuring a poor T.B. into selling his hotdog stand to sink the dough in your fake Peruvian mine?"

"Are you deliberately trying to insult me, Stella? That mine was legitimate, I tell you. Could I foresee that it would flood and——"

"Of course not, my evil one," she crooned tenderly. "You're just a big, completely honest Alaskan sourdough—outside of business and love. But just don't try to pull that act of God stuff on the gal who was your private secretary at the time." She lit a cigaret and blew a smoke ring at him. "Now, precious, let's forget mining ethics and talk about our approaching marriage."

"You know very well marriage for me is out, Stella."

"You mean marriage to me is out. But that's only what you think. I——"

"Listen, baby heart." Suddenly cajoling, he leaned toward her. His voice had taken on its deep, organ tone. "You don't want to marry me. You want a husband with money. One who can give you all the rich and lovely things your beauty entitles you to."

"Nix on the apple polishing, precious. You suit me. You and the Golden Totem."

"But the Golden Totem isn't what you think it——"

"If you're going to tell me the Totem's just another of your professional gambles, save your breath, Jeff, I know better. You lost your head a little the night I dropped in on you so unexpectedly. You introduced me as an important stock holder. In your absence I acted like one. I got the lowdown on the whole layout."

"You got only what I want every one of my visiting sportsmen to get, my dear. The Golden Totem is—a perfect setup for suckers. And that's all it is."

Her black eyes narrowed. "You're lying."

He shrugged. "Ask Klasby."

"That guy? Huh!" She flung her cigaret into the fireplace. "After the way he wangled your Peru mine for you I wouldn't believe that bird under oath. No. I've been in the tunnel. I've chipped samples from the vein. I know a bonanza when I see one."

"What you saw, my dear girl, was not a legitimate vein of ore at all. It's what's known as a stringer. A minor intrusion which will never lead into a main body of ore. And because it's necessary to move many tons of rock to get out one ton of pay ore, the stringer would be far too expensive to work for anything except what I'm working it for— bait for capitalistic suckers."

"Those assay reports—you faked them, then?"

"No. They're straight. The stringer is hog rich—while it lasts. I can keep on selling stock and keep within the law—while it lasts. But no one can tell how long it will last. Some times it almost pinches out. So far, it has always widened again a little. But every time the boys put in a blast I'm on edge till I know the result. One of these days—maybe today, maybe tomorrow, possibly next month, a blast may exhaust it. Then—no more mine." He passed his hand wearily over his brow. "God, Stella, if you knew the strain I'm under trying to keep a gang at work to make a big showing for visitors, and at the same time hold them down so they won't do so much work in the tunnel they'll exhaust the stringer."

Her eyes were still suspicious. "Are any of your men wise to your racket?"

"Only Klasby. Nearly all the others are university fellows on vacation. I selected them carefully in Seattle and Juneau. They know nothing of mining."

"What about Perry Holloway? The guy who should be emceeing in a night club, if you ask me."

He gave a short laugh. "Since a foreman's essential to my act, Perry is an excellent front. Trusting, easygoing, entertaining, and irresponsible. If it ever becomes necessary for me to get away leaving someone holding the bag, he's the perfect candidate."

"Hmmm. But aren't you afraid some one of your suckers will get wise to the stringer when he goes into the tunnel?"

"Look, baby heart: Over in Europe a crazy paperhanger named Hitler has whipped up the mightiest war machine the world has ever known. He's on the warpath—and how! When it happens—and it will happen—gold mining will be out for the duration. Then I'll be on the rocks worse than I was after Peru."

She laughed derisively. "You on the rocks, like fun! O, I know what's happened to you, big boy. I read it in your face the first time I saw you look at that blonde kid you've got working for you. You've reached the age where you want to hang on to youth; and like all old fools, you think you can do it by marrying that young girl. Well, that's just too bad, because you're not going to marry her. You're going to marry me, and as you should know better than any one else, I'm not a——"

"Look here, my girl. Lynn's engaged to Perry."

"As if that would make any difference to you! But she's not your kind, Jeff, she doesn't speak your language. She never will. But I speak your language. I'm your kind. Why even tonight while we've been fighting, I could see how easy and at home you feel with me."

"It's no use, Stella. I've never had the least intention of marrying you. I told you that before we went to South America together. I haven't changed my mind."

With feline grace she put her empty glass on the floor and sat up to look him over. "You haven't?" she cooed. "Well, maybe I can change it for you. How'd you like me to stick around and spoil your little game with the Baxter party? And with every other party you expect here this Summer? I could tell far more interesting stories about Peru than poor Strum. And about the Golden Totem—boy! You must be slipping to tell me what you did about the stringer, Jeff. You should have concocted some other kind of lie to get rid of me. But even if you had, I still have a trump card up my sleeve."

"That highball has thrown you off the beam, Stella. You're talking crazy."

"I'm talking turkey. I'll remind you that all the papers and letters that reached you in Peru passed thru my hands. Even those from Alaska. Put this with the fact that I spent an afternoon on Melody hill alone with Flan O'Hara over a bottle of Scotch, and it adds up to this——" She paused an instant and finished with vicious softness: "I'm the gal who can give the customers the detailed lowdown on your deal with Alan Faber."

"What the hell are you driving at?" Greer demanded in a thick voice.

Stella pointed to him and singsonged, "You know, Jeffy boy! You know!"

Roughly, he grabbed her wrist, shoved her arm up, and forced her against the high end of the sofa. "I'm warning you, Stella—"

Suddenly she went limp, letting her red head fall back against the black upholstery. With a slow, eel-like movement she adjusted her body and raised her humid, dark eyes to his.

"I'm warning you," he grated, "not to try my patience too far, or I——" His gray gaze wavered. "Or I'll—I——" Little by little he was lowering her upraised arm; and, as one struggling not to yield to some strong compulsion, withdrawing his eyes from hers to move them down over her throat to the pale green chiffon that had shifted and half revealed the swell of her full white breasts.

His nostrils stirred. He bit his lower lip and tried to jerk himself back.

With a low laugh, Stella flung her bare arm about his neck. She drew herself up against him and, by adroit maneuvers, eased him back against the other end of the sofa until she lay, soft and perfumed and warm, between his lax arms.

During the remainder of their stay, the Baxter party spent every waking moment at the Golden Totem mine. Tho none of the business details passed thru her hands, Lynn was sure the guests had justified Greer's expectations in the matter of stock buying.

On the morning of their departure, they boarded the Prospector loaded with samples of ore and exposed rolls of motion picture film. They were all in the highest spirits, yet were reluctant to leave this place, which had, they declared, afforded them the most enjoyable and the most profitable outing they had ever known.

Greer was accompanying them as far as Juneau, where they were to catch a southbound steamer. Incidentally, he was to get another housekeeper to replace Mrs. Strum, who was leaving on the same boat to rejoin her sick husband in California.

While the party waited in the pilothouse for the arrival of the crew—Al and Bill Rodale—they chatted with Lynn and Perry who had come down to the float to see them off. "We'll be back again next July, Miss Clonard!" the doctor called from an open window. "Got to keep an eye on our investment. Eh, Greer!" Laughing, he turned to the big Alaskan who was standing next to him.

Before Greer could respond, the mink-coated Stella spoke from his other side where she leaned against him, one hand in his mackinaw pocket. "I'm going you one better, Doc." She peered round at Baxter, her lips popping open in a sudden smile. "I'm going to stay right here at Illahee to look after my investment until the mine closes down for the winter."

Lynn, hearing her, groaned in spirit and tightened her hold on MacFarlane's leash. That Stella was returning from Juneau she had learned only half an hour before. It was a surprise blow that deepened the depression she felt at the loss of Mrs. Strum.

The housekeeper was standing alone on the foredeck beside her two battered suitcases, a plump figure in an outdated black suit and hat. There was something pathetically gallant about her this morning, Lynn thought. Something purposeful, too.

"Mrs. Strum, be sure you write and tell me how you are getting along," Lynn said, stepping nearer to the Prospector's foredeck.

"I will, Miss Clonard. And there's something—"

"A-l-l a-b-o-a-r-d!" Al and Bill came charging down the float. As they leaped aboard the cruiser, Mrs. Strum leaned forward and said in a low tone: "Miss Clonard, there's something I wanted to tell you for a long time. I—I left a note. On your dresser. Be sure to—"

The whistle shrilled; engine bells clanged. With the Baxter party shouting farewells from the pilothouse windows, the Prospector slid out into the cove.

Lynn quickly unsnapped MacFarlane's leash. "Fly, little pie!" she cried, flinging out her arms. "You're free again—until the big, bad redhead comes back."

The Scotty went barking and pinballing along the float. Following with Perry, Lynn asked, "Did you know Mrs. Chandler was going to park here for the season?"

"Not until an hour ago. The boss told me he hoped up to the last minute he'd be able to get rid of her, but——" Perry shrugged——"the poor guy's in a spot. The lady's taken a fancy to him; and because she's an important stockholder, he can't give her the bum's rush."

"Sometimes I wonder if she really is a stockholder, Perry. I've never seen her name on any of the company records."

"Maybe she invested in her maiden name or—— Hey!" He broke off to point down the inlet. "There's that bush flyer again, Scud Higgins. See him?"

The scarlet plane approached flying so low Lynn thought she could see its pontoons. Over Illahee it dipped its wings and went on across Melody Hill.

"That chap's been buzzing around here a lot, lately. There's no spot big enough on Melody Hill for him to sit his ship down on, of course. But the boss thought he might try to land a bunch of Faber's outfit on Martin lake. So after the fracas in the gorge, he posted a guard up there by the big white rock. Then he heard Higgins had dropped the rest of Faber's machinery by parachute. Boy! Was he sore! It seems it was possible to drop all of the outfit by parachute except that drill-stem Faber sneaked in up the gorge, the other night. That, if dropped, would have bent, and become useless." When Lynn was silent, he went on, with a puzzled frown: "I suppose the boss has some good reason for trying to keep Faber from using his drill up there on Melody Hill, but so far, Lynn, I haven't been able to get the hang of it."

"Neither have I," Lynn admitted.

Perry left for the mine and Lynn went up to her room to get the note Mrs. Strum had left on her dresser. She read:

Dear Miss Clonard:

You've been nice to me, and I wish I didn't have to go away and leave you here alone.

You have turned out a lot better than I thought in Juneau, when Mr. Greer told me not to talk to you about Mr. Holloway or Illahee. When you wouldn't go thru with marrying Mr. Holloway, but came over to work for Mr. Greer, I thought you were just one of those secretaries they say Mr. Greer always picks for himself.

I know now you're straight as a string. I don't like to leave you here alone. You told me your father and Mr. Greer were old friends. I wouldn't be too sure of that. If I were you I wouldn't trust Mr. Greer too much.

Your true friend,
EMMA STRUM.

The implications of the second paragraph escaped Lynn for the time being. Her mind had focused uneasily on the last two sentences in the note, which Mrs. Strum had heavily underscored.

She tried to shove disturbing conjectures from her, but something young and apprehensive in her reached out for some one to believe in, some one to trust. It touched Perry—and shied away.

Then, exasperated by uncertainties, she faced her father's picture in its place again on her dresser. She frowned at the motto etched in the gold frame. "The more venturesome road, indeed!" she addressed it furiously in her mind. "It's a bed of quicksand you've led me into. No one but a fool would stay on here. No one but a romantic, impractical fool."

Greer and Stella came back from Juneau without a housekeeper. It had been impossible to find one. And so Lynn, in addition to her office work, took on the management of Illahee. Tonglaw carried out her orders with efficiency and a sort of friendly aloofness that made the work light and pleasant. He personally attended to the demands of Stella Chandler, even to taking her breakfast up to her bed each morning.

One stormy afternoon Lynn closed her typewriter, buttoned herself into her yellow oilskins, and, with MacFarlane on leash, raced home to help Tonglaw with dinner. Exuberant from contact with wind and rain, she burst into the living room where Stella's red head was visible above the back of the sofa before the fire. "Hello!" she called, cheerfully, pulling off her sou'wester and blowing a curl up out of her eyes. "It's freshening into a gale outside."

"You're telling me! I can hear the roaring of that damned Bottleneck even in here." Stella took a long swallow from the highball glass she held in one hand.

Lynn ran upstairs to shed her oilskins and put MacFarlane out of the guests' way.

She stepped into the Ivory room and stopped dead on the threshold, bewildered by an unplaceable change in the character of the apartment. Then, as she slowly moved inside, she realized that every one of her intimate belongings had vanished. Instead, she saw an unfamiliar negligee of pale green chiffon, none too clean, sprawled across the chaise longue.

Lynn dropped MacFarlane's leash and flung open the closet door. Inside hung Stella's mink coat, Stella's mahogany knit outfit, Stella's black lace nightgown——

Lynn swung about with a small fierce sound and started for the door. She sidestepped MacFarlane, who was growling and worrying the silver mules, and marched downstairs to confront Stella Chandler.

Stella glanced up into blue eyes flaming under a tousle of dusky-gold hair. For an instant she looked not quite sure of herself; then, ingratiatingly and a bit thickly she caroled: "Hi-ya, blonde bombshell! Mud in your eye!" She lifted her glass toward Lynn and drank. The firelight made a brightness on Greer's nugget wristwatch band loosely encircling her arm.

Lynn could not trust herself to speak.

"What's the matter? . . . O, I get it. You've been to the Ivory room."

"As if you didn't know!"

"So what?" Stella drew herself up belligerently; then all at once abandoned the pose for a genial, confidential manner. "Don't blame me, Lynn. Jeff insisted. He's so crazy about me he always wants me to have the best. Besides——" she gestured vaguely with the glass—"important stockholder, you know. That sort of——"

Lynn, tight-lipped, had turned her back and was already on her way to the kitchen to question Tonglaw.

He was preparing dinner, and before Lynn had a chance to speak, he said, tonelessly, "I put your things in the housekeeper's quarters, Miss Clonard. You'll be more comfortable away from the—occupant upstairs. It will be better for MacFarlane, too."

"That's thoughtful of you, Tonglaw. I—— I was just wondering who gave the order to move Mrs. Chandler into the Ivory room."

Not a muscle moved in Tonglaw's face. But he replied in a voice slow and tense with fury: "He did. He moved that strumpet into her room. Her beautiful Ivory room."

A feint chill rippled over Lynn. She recalled Tonglaw's hostile glare the day she arrived and was placed in that room. "Her room?" she repeated. "Who used to have the Ivory room before I came, Tonglaw?"

He opened his lips to tell her something, then clamped them shut as tho he remembered he must not speak. His black eyes blazed with a protest she knew had nothing to do with her. Then as if unable to bear the confines of the house, he yanked off his cook's cap, snatched a bear slicker from a hook, flung it about him like a blanket, and strode out bareheaded into the driving rain.

Coming from Tonglaw, the remote, the imperturbable, this emotional explosion was a shock to Lynn. It gave her a queer feeling of trouble brewing; of secret drama; and of some inevitable climax toward which every one at Illahee was moving at an ever-quickening pace.

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Clonard spends her vacation with one of her Aunt Julie's friends and meets Perry Holloway, who is heading for Alaska. Perry asks her to marry him. They become engaged and will marry at Christmas time. Perry wires he has a job as foreman in a mine and asks her to come immediately to Alaska and marry him there. Lynn has just enough money for a one-way passage. Court Faber, young mining engineer, rescues Lynn and her dog from an accident on the boat. Perry is late meeting her, arriving helplessly drunk. Lynn tells Perry she will not marry him. Jefferson Greer is approached by Court and refuses to grant him a right of way to Faber's claim. Greer tricks Lynn into asking for a job as secretary at his mine, the Golden Totem. En route to the mine Lynn learns that Greer is Perry's boss. Out canoeing, Lynn sees Faber and Tonglaw, Greer's houseman, studying over papers. Perry asks for another chance. Out walking, Lynn meets Flan O'Hara and Court, who is impressed when he learns she is not married. Later Greer tells Lynn he loaned money to Faber's father and in his absence acquired the Golden Totem when the mortgage was foreclosed. Court's father was drowned and Court is still bitter. Greer sends Perry to Juneau to meet some prospective investors. While Perry is gone Greer tells Lynn she is his ideal woman. Mrs. Stella Chandler, one of Greer's former secretaries, arrives with the party from Juneau. Greer discovers Court is taking advantage of the high tide to get his drill stem across Greer's land. Lynn helps Court outwit Greer. Lynn learns Perry has gambled away her engagement ring. Stella checks the records and investigates the mine. Mrs. Strum, housekeeper, threatens to disclose her loss in Greer's Peru venture, but Greer promises to reimburse her.

BUY WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

AS THE physical world grows smaller with each new airplane engine design, the world of American books expands and takes flight to other lands in a cultural lend-lease under the direction of Maj. Eugene Reynal, chairman of the board of Reynal & Hitchcock and lately of the air technical service command, stationed part of the time in Chicago, to the delight of Chicagoans. . . . Maj. Reynal has been released from active duty in the air corps to be managing director of the newly created United States International Book association—USIBA to you.

USIBA will have a library service department to service bulk orders from OWI, the state department, and all other organizations purchasing books in quantities for libraries and other recipients outside the United States, a sales agency department which will develop world-wide sales efforts for American books, a translation department, and a promotion department. . . . It's a framework for permanent peace in international culture. . . . Maj. Reynal's record in the publishing business is brilliant as an organizer.

International Understanding

How great a part such an organization can play in the future mutual understandings of countries, no one can at this moment know. . . . An editorial in the London News Chronicle of March 2 sent to me by Staff Sgt. John Storm, formerly head of the Chicago office of the Houghton Mifflin company, is very interesting in connection with the establishment of the USIBA. . . . It was published before the announcement of USIBA and does not concern that organization. . . . It reads: "Few Englishmen know what is now being published in America or in Europe, where there is doubtless similar ignorance of British publications. The book famine has descended on us all at the very time we want to know the best that has been written or said in the countries at war with Germany. . . . Mr. Winant [United States ambassador] argues that British and American publishers should coöperate more freely with each other after the war . . . also make sure that really important new literature is made available, thru various translations, to the peoples of the European continent."

For Books in Peace Time

John Storm comments on the editorial: "It seems to me that we Americans should be the ones to set up a council for books in peace time . . . where the publishers of other countries might be able to exchange ideas with us, where we might help the people of their lands to better understand the problems confronting us, and where we might be steadily supplied with the work being done in foreign lands. . . . So it might be, if the world grows a little after its war. The business of producing books might at last emerge as something more than a cult. Books might finally play the important role in the history of mankind which we who love them have always believed them entitled to and capable of playing."

C. Raymond Everitt, executive vice president of Little, Brown & Co., Boston publishers, was recently appointed chief of OWI book operations of the European theater. . . . He is now in London. . . . His work will include supervising the distribution of overseas editions, a series of OWI-sponsored low cost books about America, and assisting European publishers in making American books available in Europe. . . . He, like Maj. Reynal, has had a brilliantly successful career in publishing.

Plan Series of Great Books

New flights in publishing and book distribution in this country include the publication some time in the undated future of the great books of the world by the Encyclopaedia Britannica, a monumental task of selecting the books to be included, annotating and commenting on them. . . . The editor of the series will be Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, whose ideals of adult education are nationally famous. In the more distant future the Britannica will publish a scholarly encyclopaedia of music, and perhaps of art, so E. H. Powell, president of the Britannica, confided to me.

Met Opera Season Opens Here Tomorrow with 'Lucia'

on the Aisle
by Claudia Cassidy

IT is no secret that "Norma" is the box office stepchild among the seven operas the Metropolitan is bringing to the Civic Opera house this week, but this certainly is no case where familiarity has bred contempt. The trouble with "Norma" on a nonsubscription basis is that about one dramatic soprano in a generation can sing it, if that generation is lucky, so people forget its operatic existence. And it isn't an opera to thrive on mediocrity. Chicago last heard it in 1931 as a vehicle for Gina Cigna, whose unsteady vocalization turned what can be a noble equipage into a rattletrap. Otherwise, Rosa Raisa has been our only resident Norma, and a great one. Her singing of the "Casta Diva" and the splendor of her duet with Adalgisa, the mezzo-soprano of the cast, is as lustrous in memory as the laurel wreath the Druid priestess wears twined in her hair.

"Norma" Is Not an Opera to Thrive on Mediocrity

The Metropolitan's revival has a double edged interest, even skipping the men in the case, who will be Frederick Jagel as the philandering proconsul who lands on a funeral pyre, and Nicola Moscona as the high priest. First of all, of course, is the debut here of Zinka Milanov as Norma. The Yugoslav soprano has had a beautiful voice ever since she first joined our company, but in the last two seasons it has turned into one of the true joys of opera. It isn't the great voice Raisa had, but it is a lustrous voice handled with increasing skill. Last fall her Aïda was the most satisfactory we have had in many a season. As Norma, her rival in love and partner in song will be Jennie Tourel. When Miss Tourel first came to us as Mignon, I was not among her more vociferous admirers. But last summer at Ravinia when she appeared with Leonard Bernstein, both in his "Jeremiah" symphony and in Rossini's ornate aria from "Cenerentola," I fell victim to her skill in music that suits her. Adalgisa should be good for her, and if both she and Milanov score a triumph, "Norma" should appeal to admirers of florid song who long since bought out Lily Pons' "Lucia."

Bellini, the composer, was a Sicilian, educated at Naples by a wealthy nobleman, and tho he died at 34, he had a busy career while it lasted. His first opera got him a commission from La Scala, and he wrote "Il Pirata"

Jennie Tourel Frederick Jagel Oscar Karlweis Louis Calhern

for the tenor, Rubini. Later he wrote both "La Sonnambula" and "Norma" for the dramatic soprano, Giuditta Pasta, whose range is said to have been one of the wonders of the early 19th century. Pasta, they say, was short but dignified, a hard worker who invented arpeggio ornamentation, but an unpredictable singer who made too many farewell tours. Who can blame her, when her last Russian jaunt was for a fee of $40,000? Malibran liked "Sonnambula" well enough to have it translated into English, and the score was a Patti favorite. After Pasta, Grisi was the celebrated Norma, then Tietjens and Lilli Lehmann, who sang it in the early days of the Met.

"Norma" first came to Chicago in 1853, playing Rice's theater, vanished long since. In 1859 Maurice Strakosch brought the first of the Italian companies to town, at McVickers, and the Norma was the celebrated Teresa Parodi, who had studied with Pasta. Amalia Patti was in that company, and the tenor, Pasquale Brignoli. I've always had a secret admiration for Brignoli. It seems that at 15 he wrote an opera, and was so displeased with the way the tenor sang one of its arias that he rushed on the stage, pushed the fellow out of the way, and sang it himself. After this unmistakable sign that he was a tenor, Brignoli never argued with fate.

City in Between Season Slump

It's a good thing the opera is here to keep us busy, because otherwise the town is suddenly in the between season slump. The Chicago Symphony orchestra is vacationing until Ravinia, and Grant park is arranging its list of soloists for the summer of free concerts. Theater, until recently in a fight for playhouses to take care of the shows demanding admittance, has just three plays to its name, "The Voice of the Turtle," "Dear Ruth," and "Othello." The first two are here for a long time to come, but "Othello" leaves May 19 to end its days at New York's City Center. Naturally, this state of a bare theatrical cupboard won't last long. "Mme. Du Barry" takes over the opera house May 12, with Marita Farell and Michael Bartlett; "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is due at the Blackstone May 14, and still another "Life with Father" company will be ours, as of May 28 at the Erlanger. Other bookings are being arranged.

Looking Ahead at "Jacobowsky" with Pleasure

"Jacobowsky and the Colonel" is one of the plays many of us have anticipated with a good deal of pleasure. Franz Werfel wrote this engaging tale of refugees, with revealing sidelights somewhat in the manner of "The Admirable Crichton," and S. N. Behrman adapted it for the Theater Guild. It goes back to earlier days of the debacle in Europe when a Polish colonel of aristocratic bearing and inflexible mind gets a beautiful lady and some valuable papers thru the German barriers only because of Jacobowsky, a humble little man who lives by his wits, as he owns nothing else. Louis Calhern has had considerable success as the colonel, and Oscar Karlweis a triumph as Jacobowsky. If you want to hear about Karlweis as an actor, ask anybody who has seen him; if you want to hear about him as a friend, ask Lotte Lehmann. If all the people go backstage to see him who have commissions from her, the Blackstone will have a parade into the alley.

$2 Buys a Merry Comedy

Norman Krasna's "Dear Ruth" has been published by Random House, and $2 buys a merry comedy, with illustrations of the New York cast. I keep getting inquiries about "The Glass Menagerie" and have heard that Random House will publish it, too. But that isn't official, tho I hope it soon will be.

Performances Nightly with One Matinee

By Albert Goldberg

For the third consecutive season New York's Metropolitan opera returns to give Chicago a brief glimpse of the world's most famous operatic organization. Only one week has been allotted Chicago this season, beginning tomorrow night with "Lucia di Lammermoor," continuing nightly with a Saturday matinee, and ending Saturday night with "La Boheme."

Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" has been one of the most frequent visitors on local operatic boards. It first was sung here in 1853, when Rosa De Vries, mother of Herman Devries, dean of Chicago music critics, was in the cast. When Chicago organized its own opera company in 1910, "Lucia" was sung that first year by Lydia Lipkowska, and the second season it served for the debut of Luisa Tetrazzini. Thru the years the work has had 55 performances, and its exponents have included Jennie Dufau, Frieda Hempel, Florence Macbeth, Galli-Curci—who holds the record with 14 performances, tho Toti Dal Monte got up to 10—Elvira di Hidalgo, Margherita Salvi, Erna Sack, Hilda Reggiani, and Josephine Tuminia. Lily Pons, who will be the Met's heroine tomorrow night, first sang the role here in 1937 and appeared in it four times with the resident group. With Miss Pons in tomorrow's cast will be Jan Peerce, Leonard Warren, Nicola Moscona, Thelma Votipka, John Garris, and Lodovico Oliviero. Cesare Sodero will conduct.

"Lohengrin," on Tuesday night, will be the first of two Wagnerian offerings. This early Wagner work, which Ernest Newman, the famous English critic, declares would have made its composer the greatest opera writer of the 19th century even had he written nothing to follow it, was first heard in Chicago in 1875. It did not appear in the Chicago Opera company repertoire until 1912, but since then it has had 42 performances. Famous names in those casts include Carolina White, Osborn-Hannah, Schumann-Heink, Dalmores, Van Dresser, Raisa, Van Gordon, Edward Johnson [now the Met's general manager], Marion Claire, Olszewska, Lotte Lehmann, Jeritza Mason, Rethberg, and Flagstad. In the coming performance Helen Traubel, leading Wagnerian soprano of the day, will be heard as Elsa for the first time here, Kirsten Thorborg will be the Ortrud, Kurt Baum the Lohengrin, Moscona the king, Sved the Telramund, and a newcomer, Hugh Thompson, son of the noted New York music critic, Oscar Thompson, will make his debut as the herald. Erich Leinsdorf, who returns to his post as conductor of the Cleveland orchestra next season, will conduct.

Mozart's "Don Giovanni," considered by some epicures the greatest of all operas, brings the eminent conductor, Bruno Walter, out of his sabbatical year of retirement for his only appearance of the week, on Wednesday night. "Don Giovanni's" Chicago history began in 1859 and it first appeared in Chicago repertoire in 1913 when Campanini conducted and Titta Ruffo sang the title role, bobbing up again three seasons later, when John McCormack was the Don Ottavio. But most Chicagoans will remember best the great revival of 1926, when Polacco conducted and the cast consisted of Raisa, Mason, Loring, Schipa, Vanni-Marcoux, Lazzari, Kipnis, and Trevisan. The current Met version will be sung by Pinza, Milanov, Moscona, Kullman, Steber, Conner, Baccaloni, and Harell.

Rimsky-Korsakoff's satirical fantasy, "The Golden Cockerel," on Thursday night, will be conducted by Emil Cooper in the original version to which he gave the world premiere in Moscow in 1909. It will be sung in an English translation by Tatiana Balkoff Drowne, a Russian woman who learned English while her father was attached to the Russian embassy in Washington and who later married an American. Chicago has heard but one previous performance of the opera, by the resident company in 1934. The Met's version casts Patrice Munsel, Harrell, Gurney, Manning, Thompson, Harshaw, Marlowe, and Votipka, with an interpolated ballet to music from the same composer's "Schéhérazade."

Wagner's mighty masterpiece, "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg," believed by many to be the greatest single work of musical art, will be heard here for the first time in seven years on Friday night. George Szell will conduct, and the long cast—which will sing in Chicago Opera sets—includes Steber, Thorborg, Kullman, Janssen, Pechner, List, Harrell, Marlowe, and others. Because of "Meistersinger's" extreme length—tho the Met employs a cut version—the performance will begin at 7:30. All other evening performances will start at 8.

Saturday's "Norma" matinee will begin at 1:30, with the Bellini opera sung by Milanov, Tourel, Jagel, Moscona, Votipka, and De Paolis, Sodero conducting. The final performance, "La Boheme," on Saturday night, will have Licia Albanese in the role of Mimi, which she sang here during the last Met season, with Jan Peerce and Mimi Benzell, a new Rodolfo and Musetta, and Cehanovsky, Pechner, Oliviero, Lazzari, D'Angelo, and Baker in the other roles. Sodero will conduct.

The Swedish Choral club will give its spring concert at Orchestra hall on Thursday, May 10, at 8:15, Harry T. Carlson directing. Three short choral works will comprise the program: Fauré's "Requiem," Vaughan Williams' "Benedicte," and Haydn's "Missa in tempore belli" [mass in time of war].

SINGS MAY 7

Miliza Korjus, celebrated coloratura soprano, who sings her first Chicago recital at Orchestra hall Monday evening, May 7.

Michigan State Establishes Personnel Institute

Purpose Is to Fill Post-War Need in Field

By The Rev. John Evans

Michigan State college has established a counseling, testing and guidance institute for the training of counselors and personnel directors for business and industry. Dr. Clifford E. Erickson, professor of education, has been named director of the program.

"Under this plan it will be possible for students to major in personnel work," Dr. Erickson stated. "The institute has coördinated all courses existing in that field, and other courses will be added as the need arises, but clinical services, extension work and research already are included in the program."

The training under this institute, Dr. Erickson explained, will equip students for work in industry, business, social agencies, schools, and institutions for the handicapped where many men and women are expected to be wanted in post-war rehabilitation work.

President John A. Hannah has appointed a committee composed of Col. Dorsey R. Rodney, acting dean of the school of business and public service, chairman; S. E. Crowe, dean of students, and Lloyd C. Emmons, dean of the school of science and arts, to administer the institute.

Dr. John W. Shirley, associate professor of English at Michigan State college, has been awarded a John Simon Guggenheim fellowship for study in England of the unpublished manuscripts of Thomas Hariot.

Hariot [1560-1621] was mathematical tutor to Sir Walter Raleigh, also editor of the latter's "History of the World," most of which was compiled during Sir Walter's incarceration in the Tower of London. Hariot was sent in 1585 to survey Roanoke colony which resulted in "A Brief and True Report of the New Found Land of Virginia."

These manuscripts of Hariot's during the war have been secreted in a Welsh coal mine together with other valuable documents, but it is expected that they will be returned in the early fall to their proper home, the British museum.

Prof. William C. Osterbrook, head of the electrical engineering department, University of Cincinnati, states that war time developments in science, especially electronics, will necessitate drastic readjustments in college and university engineering programs.

"In some courses," he said, "those previously considered on the graduate level must be included in post-war engineering programs. Future graduates will need a working knowledge not only of fundamental principles involved in these developments, but also of their practical application."

The college program, Prof. Osterbrook thinks, either will have to be pruned of a number of courses heretofore regarded essential or extended for an additional year of instruction.

From a count recently made by the alumni office of Illinois college, Jacksonville, 878 alumni are in military service. Included in this number are 13 women, seven of whom are commissioned, and 31 per cent of the men are officers.

Replies to the questionnaire sent by President A. C. Willard to 17,000 service men show that 72.7 per cent of former University of Illinois students will return to the campus. Of these, 60 per cent stated that they will want family living quarters.

The personal testament of one of America's foremost liberals

MARSHALL FIELD'S

Freedom IS MORE THAN A WORD

AMERICA can well be proud of this book. It has aroused more advance enthusiasm than any book we have published in years. It is, in part, the story of one of the most exciting chapters in modern journalism . . . the story of Marshall Field's newspapers—of PM, the newspaperman's ideal of journalistic freedom, of the Chicago Sun and its titanic battle with the powerful Chicago Tribune, and the whole story of his now famous battle with the Associated Press. It is also the story of a man who believes that the essentials of freedom are: groceries, peace, access to facts, and a healthy skepticism of traditional ways of doing things. He believes this so profoundly that he has committed himself and his great fortune to fight for them.

Written with modesty, sincerity, and clarity, these pages are a primer in democracy for American citizens . . . a dynamic preview of the great adventure that is the people in action. $2.50

Bridge That Courage and Vision Built

"THE BUILDERS OF THE BRIDGE," by D. B. Steinman. [Harcourt, Brace, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Albert Idell

Author of "Centennial Summer" and "Bridge to Brooklyn."

The building of the Brooklyn bridge was more than a triumph of engineering skill and imagination, it was the triumph of courage and purpose over political hindrance, chicanery, public distrust and physical pain. There is no more inspiring story in American history than that of the man who directed from his bedroom, after he had been permanently crippled in the early stages of its construction, the completion of that first bridge over the East river, which became, in its time, the "eighth wonder of the world."

D. B. Steinman

It is a tale that began with the coming to this country of John Roebling, a young German obsessed with the idea that bridges of tremendous span might be suspended upon ropes of wire—obsessed so completely that he wrote, after the birth of one of his children, inquiring as to the meaning of a phrase in an associate's letter. Had Mrs. Roebling been recently delivered, he asked and why hadn't he known about it before? His life, and that of his son, Washington, is a saga of human accomplishment, which has never been completely told, prior to this volume.

• • •

Unfortunately, Mr. Steinman, who undertook the present work as a "labor of love," is so enraptured of the Roeblings that he obscures the humanity and accomplishment of the two men with his fulsome praise. One agrees when John Roebling is first called a genius and a master builder, but with repetition the terms lose their force. Himself bridge builder, the author's accounts of engineering problems and their solution are extremely readable. It is captious, perhaps, to expect the professional man to write in human terms, but tragic that what might have been a grand biography becomes merely good reference material.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock

A NEW service, designed to aid executives "in keeping informed on the latest trend in business and industry, politics, economics, and social and cultural affairs, as well as sports, travel and hobbies," was started last week by Marshall Field & Co. . . . It is called the Executive Book Forum. . . . Brochures, to be published quarterly and to be mailed to 10,000 top men in management, will review current books of special interest to business leaders and list recommended books for supplementary reading. . . . The first issue is now in the mails.

Heading the Forum's reviewing staff is Arthur Bergholz, an executive in Field's book department, consulting editor for Rand, McNally & Co., and reviewer for THE TRIBUNE'S book section. . . . Mr. Bergholz is an authority on libraries for men in management, and has spent years in compiling such libraries for industrial firms. . . . He is a product of the University of Chicago. . . . The forum was his idea. . . . He points out that it is not a book club, but rather "a service and guide for busy men who wish to keep informed but who do not have time today for extensive reading." . . . The entire literary field will be culled for recommendations.

The week is to mark the anniversary of the Burning of the Books [by order of der fuehrer] on May 10, 1933.

In connection with the observance, 200 books which "reflect the thinking of the democratic world" have been placed on the third annual list of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. . . . The list includes 50 each for Protestants, Catholics and Jews, besides a "goodwill" section of 50 that interest all groups. . . . Each section contains 10 for children. . . . Most of the volumes are current, but a few are classics. . . . Twenty-three clergymen, educators, authors, and civic leaders of the three faiths made the selections. . . . Sophie Tucker to Headline New Chez Paree Show

Dorben Revue Makes Stevens Debut Friday

By Will Davidson

Thursday evening is dedicated to the proposition that tempus may fugit, but that there are some who can fugit right along with tempus. One of them is Sophie Tucker.

Miss Tucker, who adorned our book section not long ago, probably will be spending her between show hours at the Chez Paree autographing copies of her blessedly honest and wonderfully entertaining book, "Some of These Days." Her book is a good as her act—and that is praise, indeed.

The Chez is giving Miss Tucker a fine show, too. Held over will be the very agile and popular dancer, Miriam La Velle. Arthur Lee Simpkins, the excellent singer, is the other featured act.

On Friday a much younger veteran makes her bow, when Dorothy Dorben presents her first revue as producer of Boulevard room shows in the Stevens hotel. Miss Dorben has announced the following cast for "Spree for All": Harris, Claire, and Shannon, dance team; Renald and Rudy, hand balancers; Rae MacGregor, ballerina; Dan Hardin, tenor; a new line of 12 girls, and Ted Weems' good music.

Ted Lewis comes back to town May 11 [a week's delay from the original date] for a renewal of his dramatically successful run at the Latin Quarter.

For a show that on paper had two large elements of the unknown, the current revue in the Empire room of the Palmer House is satisfyingly in keeping with the high standards long ago set by Producer Merriel Abbott. Most important of the pre-opening imponderables was Henny Youngman, the stage and radio comedian. It was Henny's debut in the Empire room, and the room's first introduction to a gag type of comedian. The introduction proved mutually satisfactory, on opening night at least.

Henny Youngman

Mr. Youngman, I will admit, got off to a good start with me by coming out wearing elbow length baby blue gloves. It was a delightfully nonsensical reference to Hildegarde, and a perfect ice breaker. What followed was a clean, rapid, production line of gags, all delivered dead pan, with a timing born of long experience. Mr. Youngman has been around, and so has his material, but he tries everything, and usually it works. He hasn't quite bridged the vast gap between cafe work and that of radio or stage, but he's trying awfully hard, and you'll probably like his efforts.

Second unknown quantity in the show was Sheila Vogelle, a dark haired beauty who proved to have a beautiful voice, a quiet and charming manner, and a sensitive talent. Her light operatic style is excellent, and she is definitely a find for the Empire room.

Of the known quantities, all lived up to past performances. Mack Lathrop and Virginia Lee are two of my very favorite dancers. Their crystal clear strut style is fresh and fun. Miss Lee is really somepin'. That figure, those miraculously quick changes of wolf-whistle gowns, that superb dancing ability are entertainment facets of high quality.

And now to George Olson, the everlasting band leader who packs enough talent in his handsomely red coated band for an entire revue. Amiable, show wise, personable George plays elegant music, is a showman for sure, and opens the revue with his familiar routine, "The Show Must Go On." Star of this musical skit is Johnny Strong with his Durante impersonation. It is a little too long, but very good.

The Abbott girls have a cute and charmingly costumed turn in the "Golliwog Cakewalk," and share honors with Mari Lynn, balerina, and Miss Vogelle in a pretty "Salute to Spring."

Two years ago Devi Dja and her little troupe of Java-Bali dancers found themselves stranded in Chicago. Transportation difficulties canceled out their concert tours, so they set about making a new career for themselves in the cafe business. Since then their Sarong room slowly but very surely has won its place in the city's entertainment picture, and today it deserves a long low bow for contributing something very fine and very unusual to our after dark entertainment.

The current program at the Sarong is among the best ever presented there. Its high spot is Devi Dja's magnificent interpretation of the "Kebyar," which is said to be the most difficult of all Javanese dances. It is one in which every mood is portrayed, every part of the body brought into subtle play.

Other numbers on the program, featuring, in addition to Devi Dja, her co-workers Wani, Mimah, and Tinah, are "Dayak," a Borneo ritual dance and chant; "Ronggeng," a flirtation dance starring the comic and pert little Tinah; "Panah," a Javanese court dance depicting the hunt, and a folk number, "Dandak."

A fresh laurel, please, for Earl Roth. Earl is the proprietor of the band that has just taken over the dance duties of the Bismarck hotel's Tavern room. He has a familiar and most admirable crew. It includes Eddie Fens at piano, Art Kruger on sax, clarinet, and fiddle; Orrin Crippen, bass; Clarence Heidke, sax, clarinet, and fiddle; Frank Catanzero, ditto; Johnny Gassoway, sax and clarinet; Roy Pietch, trumpet, and Roth on the drums. Here is very pleasant music, friends.

The other new feature in the Tavern is Ozzie Osburn and his Fun Makers. Ozzie plays a lovely trumpet, and his little rhythm group of Roy Porto, guitar; Eddie Sears, accordion, and Ewing Nix, bass and violin, makes good music for dancing. Ozzie's hilly billy turn needs a lot of caulking at the seams before it will float, but Ozzie has never been known to shirk effort.

That Blackhawk opening scheduled for Wednesday has been put off until tomorrow night when the complete new show of Vic Hyde, Marjorie Lane, and Del Courtney's crew will be on hand.

Musical Show, 'Carousel,' Is Broadway Hit

By John Chapman

NEW YORK [Special]—Not since "Show Boat" has there been so wistful a heroine in a musical play as is the Julie of "Carousel" and not since "Show Boat" has there been so beautifully integrated a work of song and drama as is this same "Carousel."

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. are the authors. They established themselves as the first team in the music show field when they made "Oklahoma!" out of Lynn Riggs' "Green Grow the Lilacs." They are still the first team, for with admirable resourcefulness and faultless taste they have made an unusual work out of Ferenc Molnar's old fantasy, "Liliom." Backing them up all the way, the Theater Guild has mounted "Carousel" in beauty, assembled and trained the best singing chorus in town, and found a remarkable company of principals who can act.

The result is another event in an eventful season.

"Liliom," was a Hungarian play and when Eva Le Gallienne and Joseph Schildkraut did it for the Guild in 1921 they impersonated Hungarians. Hammerstein has taken the story—and a very moving one it is—and put it in the New England of the 1870s and 1880s. Thus the Theater Guild, which has been dreaming of a repertory of American operas which could tour the country much as the D'Oyly Carte companies tour endlessly in Gilbert and Sullivan, has another American opera in the bank.

"Carousel" is more an opera than it is a musical comedy—first, because its main story is heart wrenching; second, because Rodgers and Hammerstein use both music and lyrics to advance their story. Rodgers' score is remarkable. It does have some hits like "If I Loved You" and "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," but the canny Richard was not trying to hit the radio jackpot every time he contrived a tune. He devoted himself often to music which would establish mood and even character, so the score is an integrated work rather than a collection of numbers.

The opening scene instantly marks "Carousel" unusual—for, without a word being spoken, the love story is established. It is a gay scene at a carnival, and as the crowds mix and dance, or "listen" to the soundless spiel of the merry-go-round barker, one sees the gentle yearning of the girl, Julie, for the roughneck barker. Immediately one has the comfortable feeling that one is in good hands—the hands of imaginative and highly skilled men and women. In this one scene the work of six artists shows: Hammerstein, the book writer, for conceiving an arresting beginning; Rodgers, the composer, for a colorful musical background; Rouben Mamoulian, the director, for the overall staging; Agnes De Mille, for the part her dancers play; Jo Mielziner, for the first of many stunning sets, and Miles White, for beautiful period costumes.

In this scene one also senses the promise of the two principals, Jan Clayton and John Raitt, for they have stage presence. Soon one discovers that they can sing; Raitt's voice is as robust as his body, as lusty as his role, and Miss Clayton is a rarely gifted young woman who has beauty, a good voice, and a fine ability to act.

In a musical there must be more than one story because there are many principals, and Hammerstein has developed several characters. Jean Darling and Eric Mattson are a secondary and amusing pair of lovers. The role of the merry-go-round proprietress has been heightened and is in the capable hands of Jean Casto. Most ingeniously expanded is the part of the villain who leads the barker into the paths of crime, and Murvyn Vye is perfectly cast for it. This part is an unusual one, for it is sinister and fetchingly humorous at the same time.

Tin pan alley has a number of good jingle writers, but Hammerstein seems to be the only poet of the lot. His words have feeling first, and their rhymes and rhythms are unforced. A haunting song is "What's the Use of Wond'rin'," and, in contrast, the gaiety of "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," both in words and melody, makes one want to get up and sing with the chorus. Another production number, "This Was a Real Nice Clam Bake," is so flavorsome and zestful that you will want to rush right out to Sheepshead bay and spend a few hours stuffing in a shore dinner.

Publishers' Weekly Editor to Be Honored at a Dinner

By Harry Hansen

New York

FREDERIC G. MELCHER, editor of the Publishers' Weekly, is the most conscientious and unflagging book booster in the country. I have not known any one associated with the general book trade who has used his opportunities so well and with so little fanfare. Booksellers, librarians, authors everywhere know him as Fred and that's what I'll call him here. A few months ago Muriel Fuller, editor for Thomas Nelson & Son, publishers, learned that Fred began his career in the bookshop of Lauriat & Co., Boston, just 50 years ago, and suggested that this was an opportunity to give Fred the customary gold watch, or, in lieu of that, a prime slab of beef. So the matter went to the publishers and they determined to put on one of those hoity-toity dinners in the Waldorf Astoria at $10 a plate, one of those events that I usually flee from. Fred is a plain, substantial fellow who ought to have been saluted in an original manner, but in New York people don't understand that.

I have known Fred ever since I began reviewing books. He is now editor of Publishers' Weekly, which he joined in 1918. There are very few meetings of the American Booksellers' association, the American Library association, the American Institute of Graphic Arts, and the Publishers' association that Fred doesn't have a hand in. He began Children's Book week and personally instituted the annual John Newbery prize for the best book for children and the Caldecott prize for the best drawings in a children's book, as well as the Carey-Thomas award for publishing enterprise. I have watched Fred run a meeting and he is always informal, never at a loss for words, invariably genial without making any effort to impress or entertain. He is able to accomplish a mountain of work by making haste slowly. I don't know any man who is better informed about the book trade—contemporary and historical.

He knows as many odd facts as Christopher Morley, who is going to be toastmaster at the dinner. The other day he told me something that is quite characteristic. He said he has just learned that bananas were introduced into the United States exactly 75 years ago next summer. "Something ought to be done to mark that date," said Fred. I suggested that he get in touch with the United Fruit company, which probably doesn't know this fact about the reason for its existence.

O, yes, that dinner will take place May 21. The committee is Frank C. Dodd, chairman; George T. Bailey for Graphic Arts, C. E. Hopper for the librarians, Joseph Margolies for the booksellers, Melville Minton for the publishers. A book, to which a number of friends have contributed, will be published the night of the dinner. I don't see Muriel Fuller's name anywhere. That's always the lot of the inventor.

Book List for South America

Fred and I were attending a meeting of the book committee of the East and West association—we certainly see a lot of committees—when he told me about the latest enterprise of the Library of Congress. It is the United States quarterly book list, intended for South American countries. In 1936, the Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Peace, at Buenos Aires, proposed such a list, and, said Fred, "We have been prodding people in Washington ever since to get it out." This list is intended to present scholarly books. Joseph P. Blickensderfer, formerly with the University of Oklahoma, is the editor, and the advisory committee includes such authorities as Mark Van Doren of Columbia university, R. R. Hawkins of the New York Public library, Harry M. Lydenberg, and Luther H. Evans. Each book is briefly reviewed by a well known writer. While the book list opens with a book that, thank heaven, I don't have to review—"Archaic Attic Gravestones," by Gisela Richter [Harvard University Press]—this is not a sample of the books described. The books are not entirely academic. Among them are George Gross' drawings, John Mason Brown's "Many a Watchful Night," and Archibald MacLeish's "The American Story."

Just as Walt Whitman commemorated the death of President Lincoln in poetry that has become more important in our day than the work of the household poets of the 1860s, so Carl Sandburg, who is the nearest in tradition and feeling to Whitman, has written a poem about Franklin D. Roosevelt. It is called "Death Came April Twelve [1945]" and will be published in the Woman's Home Companion for June.

Bennett Cerf on the Carpet

Bennett Cerf, who has just prepared the "Pocket Book of Jokes," says he has been interested in humor ever since his college days. In his second year at the Pulitzer school of journalism at Columbia he became editor of the Columbia Jester. "I ran afoul of the authorities in my very first issue," he said. "A full page frontispiece showed an English lord at a ringside table of a night club. A couple on the floor was doing the shimmy, the dance craze of the moment. The caption had somebody asking the lord what he thought of it and he replied: 'All I can sye is that I 'ope 'e marries the gal.' President Nicholas Murray Butler took time out from his busy life to explain to me that English lords rarely spoke with Cockney accents and that if succeeding issues of Jester contained any more questionable stories I'd be out on my ear even faster than my predecessor, who had been kicked out for an indiscretion and won a Pulitzer prize several years later."

Writers Will Try Anything

You get some idea of the innumerable subjects that interest writers, poets, and historians by the fellowships granted by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation. Some of these grants will be available when their recipients are discharged from the army and the navy. For instance, Lt. Comdr. Lawrance Thompson is going to complete a biography of Robert Frost. [In reviewing Mr. Frost's "A Masque of Reason," Mr. Thompson said quite frankly that it was not one of the poet's successful efforts.] Corp. Stanley J. Kunitz is going to write poetry on his war experiences. Jerre Mangione, of the immigration service, is going to write about the reconstruction of Sicily. Henry F. Pringle will complete a history of the war on home and military fronts. Paul Henry Giddens, curator of the Drake Well Memorial park in Titusville, Pa.—where the first oil was struck—is going to stick close to his subject and write another book on the petroleum industry; he has already written "The Birth of the Oil Industry."

Rare Prose in Story of Rural Faith

"STUART'S HILL," by Eleanor Saltzman. [Ackerman, $2.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Once in a blue moon a book like this falls into the hands of a reviewer whose trade compels him to read many books, of which some are mediocre or worse, some are good, but all too few are lacking in distinction. When an unnoticed gem like "Stuart's Hill" comes his way he feels that something ought to be done to rescue it from oblivion.

I cannot deny that much of its deep appeal is due to the emotional effect of the humble Christian faith it portrays. Yet the writer triumphs in that she shows a classic restraint in putting this religious appeal on paper. In simple language, almost without ornament, she tells of this faith, as when William Stuart explains to his young son the difference between rapid conversion and the slow growth of belief.

"'Some people find God in this way,' he said, and his dark eyes saw those of his son, knowing him. 'By it their lives become a new thing, because their spirits are stirred. Seeking God with tears, still they are very happy. They lose themselves in their seeking.'

"The late barn yard was dark and chilly in the autumn evening, and the lantern light bound them together, father and son. William's slow, quiet speaking was simple, of a deep gift, one to the other.

"'But to some the knowledge of God comes slowly, without much speaking, like a son growing with a father. It moves deep inside a person. It is like a man walking who knows where he is going.'"

It will be a long day before we come upon finer prose than that in the work of an unknown author. And if the objection be raised that some of the best of it is put into the mouths of unschooled farm people, one can only retort that no man, living or dead, ever spoke with the beauty of Shakespeare's lines.

"Stuart's Hill" is the story of a little country church, how it came to be built, what the building of it meant in the lives of its members, and, more particularly, the physical and spiritual growth of Jim Stuart. The author does not identify the locality, but it is unnecessary for her to do so—it could be almost any rural neighborhood in America. For neither time nor place counts in story telling like this; it is simply human experience.

Only 142 pages, but how much of truth and beauty is contained in so little space! This, my friends, is a BOOK.

A View of Arabia.

Alfred A. Knopf plans to publish as soon as possible a book on Arabia by Freya Stark, who has been traveling about the near east for several years.

An Army Nurse in action at the front

War, as Theresa Archard says, makes no allowances for females, and in these racy, readable and, above all, real chapters, she shows us Army nurses on the job in invasion barges, Nissen huts and under bombardment in the forward lines.

Veteran of one invasion and two campaigns in the days when the going was toughest and the task most critical, Capt. Archard's first-hand account of the actual life, duties and dangers of an Army nurse makes a story of unflagging and unassuming heroism to which thousands of American readers will thrill.

Why are you afraid of growing old?

ASK YOURSELF THESE QUESTIONS:

- Do you worry about your health?
- Are you afraid a younger person will take your job away from you?
- Do you think you're getting ulcers?
- Are you disturbed because you can't work as hard as you used to?
- Do you worry about heart disease or cancer in your family?
- Do you dread going to the doctor for fear he'll say you're really sick?
- Are you always striving to look young?

THOUSANDS of men and women are rushing themselves into old age worrying about things like these. Men and women who should instead be looking forward eagerly to the richest, most fruitful years of their lives . . . who should be saying "the best is yet to come" . . . and who still have time to forget the passing years and prepare for the future in the only way that counts.

A doctor prescribes: Forget Your Age!

The next time your doctor asks your age say, "Is that necessary, Doctor? Is it really essential for you to know?" Dr. Peter J. Steincrohn, famous author of Heart Disease Is Curable and You Don't Have to Exercise! says, "NO!" He believes that birthdays (and their observance after twenty-one) are useless, and even detrimental to men and women both. And he shows why, in a sane and inspiring new book whose first principle is DON'T TELL YOUR RIGHT AGE.

A book that brings you freedom from fear—of old age

Forget Your Age! is a big book of thirty exciting chapters about the problems and phobias of advancing age, and how you can overcome them. Many people fear heart disease, cancer, and ulcers. But Dr. Steincrohn shows that heart disease is curable, and the others, too, if you act in time. In the same man-to-man way, Dr. Steincrohn talks about indigestion, insufficient thyroid, obesity, hardening of the arteries. Every health problem that may have bothered you is revealed for what it really is—and what you should do about it.

But most of all, Dr. Steincrohn sets you on the road to a longer, happier, richer life. No man or woman can be entirely free from worry; but you can conquer worry, and fear itself, if you forget that old age is a necessary evil to be endured. The leaders of our country, the generals of our armies, our captains of industry are over fifty. They haven't resigned themselves to a senile old age. Why should you? Forget Your Age! is the answer. Tear out the coupon below and read it in full. Do it today.

was dark-eyed and black-haired, ivory-skinned with a hint of pink cheek. It seemed that all beauty, all solace, all wisdom lay in that royal and wonderful face. Kenneth named her Philippa."

Kenneth was a young professor who taught music, though there was no harmony in his own life. His wife was a nagging woman who had given him "cancer of the will." And the girl he loved was only a face in a miniature, but his heart had memorized her loveliness. He fled the sleepy college town and came to New York where he found such adventure as he had only dreamed of . . . when the girl on the miniature came to glowing life—an inspiration so vital that it put music, as well as love in his heart. This is a gay, romantic novel with an it-could-happen-to-you quality that is irresistible.

tells the grim, splendid and incredible story of amphibious invasion

The FAR SHORE

"The Far Shore is any invasion beach where our amphibious effort plans a landing. . . . This little book is full of vivid and moving episodes; sometimes almost unbearably poignant because so quietly told. By his fine instinct for vivid selection, Miller brings the grim and cluttered picture of Far Shore landings into stereoscopic relief. This is surely one of the first expert accounts of our beachhead Navy."—CHRISTOPHER MORLEY, Book-of-the-Month Club News.

Young Jesus Visits Court of Augustus

"THE CHILD AND THE EMPEROR, a Legend," by Prince Hubertus zu Lowenstein. [Macmilan, $1.50].

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Literary embroidery on the theme of the first Christmas is abundant, but the romancers have neglected the boyhood of Jesus almost as much as did the writers of the four gospels. Coningsby Dawson took a look at the seventh Christmas some time ago, and Henry van Dyke's story, "The Lost Boy," deals with the one incident of Jesus' boyhood recorded by St. Luke.

Now the German Catholic exile and Republican leader, Prince Hubertus zu Loewenstein, has recorded an imagined visit of Jesus to Rome, a year after the Lukan pilgrimage to Jerusalem. He has Jesus make this visit in the train of Joseph of Arimathea, who here becomes a great merchant and a distant cousin of Mary. Deep Catholic piety permeates the narrative, and the events to be recorded in the Gospels steadily cast their shadows before.

Some men study "The Novel"; others go back of all that to something simpler, more vital; they love stories, cherish the 'tale that holdeth children from play and old men from the chimney corner." Tho "The Child and the Emperor" is, in form, a novelette, it has the charm of this old simplicity, and in this aspect it is utterly delightful.

I cannot feel, however, that its climax carries even "that willing suspension of disbelief for a moment which constitutes poetic faith." To bring the Child face to face with the aging Augustus was a brilliant idea; such an encounter must surely have been one of the most dramatic in history. But as Prince zu Loewenstein develops the situation, it fails to move us as it should. To Jesus, at 13, he attributes both a fully developed Messianic consciousness and an appreciation of the Roman empire utterly foreign to His attitude toward life at any period; even more incredible is Augustus' "Tu es Agnus Dei. . . ."

Chess? You Can Learn It Easily from This Book

"AN INVITATION TO CHESS," by Irving Chernev and Kenneth Harkness. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]

Reviewed by Arthur Bergholz

This excellent volume removes the mystery of learning chess. Thru the simple device of using actual photographs of the chess board and pieces, all definitions of the moves and the purpose of the game are classified. The beginner is given the proper tridimensional visual experience of the pieces and their moves. Moves and their variations are separately given in photographic illustration and diagram, so that chess notation is easily learned.

The authors, from their experience as editors of Chess Review, understand what the beginner needs. The definitions are clearly given in context, so that the student gets a working knowledge of the game. Once having mastered the essential definitions, the beginner is led to the principles and the important phases of the opening game. Here extensive and detailed examples keep him in touch with the complete game.

The good feature of the authors' use of detailed illustration is that the volume can be studied without reference to a chess board. The authors in addition give a bibliography of chess texts for further study.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

TIME is a road, and tall years grow like trees beside it; old years, young years, and seeds of years to come. For time has a special geography of its own, with an extra dimension. The traveler may go not only from place to place, but also from period to period. He has, too, a choice of comfortable vehicles—either memory or printed record, to visit the past, or imagination if he prefers to spend an evening in the mysterious time-region of Not Yet.

It was after some contemplation of this agreeable fancy, and after giving up temporarily the notion of fitting it into a sonnet, that I made a lazier decision and pitched my tent for a week-end in the winter of 1887 at Saranac Lake in the Adirondacks.

Robert Louis Stevenson was there!

There in a rambling cottage on a hilltop Stevenson, almost helplessly sick with the ailment that killed him seven years later, wrote those miraculous essays which always have seemed to me even better than his stories, "The Lantern Bearers," "A Chapter on Dreams," and that splendidly courageous "Pulvis et Umbra," in which he sees all that is worst and thru which, as if by roentgen rays, he perceives all that is potentially—I almost wrote "poetentially"—best.

Two volumes of Stevenson's letters, edited and annotated by his friend, Sidney Colvin, and published by Scribner's, served as my guide.

It was soon after his father's death that Stevenson, obeying his doctors, sought in the Adirondacks a climate that might help his afflicted lungs. It was a continuation of a long and discouraging struggle.

The famous cheerfulness of Stevenson was based, as the letters show, upon a clear vision of the truth about himself, never upon a denial of it. "You must understand," he wrote to W. H. Low, "I have been very seedy, indeed, quite a dead body; and unless the voyage [across the Atlantic to America] does miracles, I shall have to draw it dam fine."

To R. A. M. Stevenson he wrote from Saranac Lake [October, 1887]: "If I get any better, or no worse, my mother will likely hire a yacht for a month or so in summer. Good Lord! What fun! Wealth is only useful for two things: a yacht and a string quartet. For these two I will sell my soul. Except for these I hold that £700 a year is as much as anybody can possibly want; and I have had more, so I know, for the extry [sic] coins were for no use, excepting for illness, which damns everything."

The £700 a year was the stipend promised him by Scribner's magazine for monthly contributions—one of which was the "Pulvis et Umbra," from which I must quote a little:

"What a monstrous spectre is man, the disease of the agglutinated dust, lifting alternate feet or lying drugged with slumber; killing, feeding, growing, bringing forth small copies of himself; grown upon with hair like grass, fitted with eyes that move and glitter in his face; a thing to set children screaming—and yet looked at nearlier, known as his fellows know him, how surprising are his attributes! Poor soul, here for so little, cast among so many hardships, filled with desires so incommensurate and so inconsistent, savagely surrounded, savagely descended, irremediably condemned to prey upon his fellow lives: who should have blamed him had he been of a piece with his destiny and a being merely barbarous?"

But Stevenson looks again, and sees this same "creature"—man—in another light. Quoting:

"It matters not where we look, under what climate we observe him, in what stage of society, in what depth of ignorance, burthened with what erroneous morality . . . in ships at sea, a man inured to hardship and vile pleasures, his brightest hope a fiddle in a tavern and a bedizened trull who sells herself to rob him, and he for all that simple, innocent, cheerful, kindly like a child, constant to toil, brave to drown, for others.

"Of all earth's meteors, here at least is the most strange and consoling: that this ennobled lemur, this hair-crowned bubble of the dust, this inheritor of a few years and sorrows, should yet deny himself his rare delights and add to his frequent pains, and live for an ideal, however misconceived."

I read many of the Saranac Lake letters—letters to Low, to Henry James, to Colvin, to William Archer, to W. E. Henley, to Charles Scribner—and then along toward morning I was hungry for the familiar essays and the gallant stories.

Before sunrise I had read again "The Sire de Malétroit's Door" [once titled "The Mousetrap"], and the one about Villon, called "A Lodging for the Night"—with a murder in it comparable in its shuddery fascination to the murder done by the same author's "Markheim," who, having struck down his victim, heard in the ticking of many clocks the choired voice of time itself, his nemesis.

Yes, I know, Stevenson died half a century ago. Everybody has read him. The question is: how recently?

THE JUNIOR BOOKSHELF

By Agatha L. Shea

TITLE	SUBJECT	VERDICT
"STOCKY—BOY OF WEST TEXAS," by Elizabeth W. Baker. (Winston, $2.)	Story of a pioneer boy of Texas living in the period between the passing of the buffalo and the coming of the ranches. Orphaned, he is befriended by a cattleman, and lives thru much of the adventure and outlawry of the opening west.	Good characterization and realistic picture of frontier days make good reading for boys of the middle grades.
"THE UMBRELLA MAN," by Emma L. Brock. [Knopf, $1.25.]	Humorous picture story book telling of the little pixie who did such queer things to the umbrellas which people gave him to fix. And what fun he had mixing them all up, giving the circus umbrella to the fruit cart, and the doll's parasol to Grandmother Twitchell.	Another of those easy to read picture story books with lots of laughs for the youngest readers. Attractive pictures by artist-author.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Sigmund Romberg
[Kriegsmann Photo]

Sigmund Romberg, composer of 77 Broadway operettas, will conduct an orchestra of 60 musicians in a program of his own music and that of other composers in the lighter vein at the Civic Opera house this afternoon at 3:30. Mr. Romberg also will appear as a pianist in the course of the proceedings. Selections from his latest musical, "Up in Central Park," will be heard together with songs from such earlier hits as "The Student Prince," "The Desert Song," "The Lady in Ermine," "My Maryland," and "The New Moon." Music by Von Suppe, Johann Strauss, Victor Herbert, Gershwin, Offenbach, and Mendelssohn also is listed. Three vocalists will contribute solos: Victoria Schools, Lorna Byron, and Ann Andre. All will sing selections from Romberg operettas, and Miss Schools also will be heard in the waltz song from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," and Nevin's "The Rosary," and Miss Byron in arias from Bizet's "Carmen."

The Chicago Folk Festival will give its third annual program in Orchestra hall on Thursday at 8:15. Over 300 performers are scheduled to appear in costume to present the songs and dances of their native lands. Among the participating groups are the Irish Harp and Shamrock club, Pat Roche, director; Les Amis of Central Y. M. C. A. college, Joseph Creanza, director; the English Country Dance society, Mildred Dickinson, director; the Polish National Alliance group, Stephanie Gondek, director; the Ukranian Dramatic Singing society and the Ukrainian Cossack dancers; the Negro choir, Arthur Logan, director, and the American Square Dancers, Jim Lackey, leader and caller.

Miliza Korjus, coloratura soprano star of M-G-M's movie, "The Great Waltz," and idol of record collectors, will make her first appearance here in recital at Orchestra hall on Monday, May 7, at 8:30. Miss Korjus is of Polish birth and received her musical education at the Conservatory of Kiev.

• • •

Carol Silver
[Carlos Photo]

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, under the direction of George Dasch, will give the final concert of its season at Orchestra hall on Tuesday at 8:15. The soloist will be Carol Silver, young Chicago pianist heard last year in the Musical Arts Piano series as winner of the annual audition, and who since has given a debut recital in New York. Miss Silver will play Rachmaninoff's Concerto No. 2, in C minor. Another feature of the program will be Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf," with Hobart Sommers, principal of Austin High school, as narrator. Orchestral numbers will include Massenet's "Phédre" overture, the Elegy and Waltz from Tschaikowsky's Serenade for strings, and Saint-Saens' "Marche Militaire" from "Suite Algérienne."

The sixth annual music festival of the Catholic Music Educators' association will be held at Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3:30. The program will be given by a band, an orchestra, and a chorus composed of selected students from Catholic high schools in the archdiocese. Alex Zimmerman, director of the department of music of the Joliet Township High school, will direct the chorus; William D. Revelli of the University of Michigan will be the band conductor, and the orchestra will be led by Karl Schulte. The soloist will be Bernadette Socha, Mercy High school senior, chosen by contest to play Mendelssohn's "Capriccio Brillante."

The Pullman Choral society, an employe organization of the Pullman company, will give its fourth annual concert at Kimball hall on Wednesday at 8:15, William Francis Bergmann directing. The soloist will be Richard S. Pick, classic guitarist.

• • •

An illustrated lecture on "Music in Japan" will be given by Kate I. Hansen, for 16 years professor of music at Miyagi college, Sendai, Japan, at the Little theater of the Chicago Musical college tomorrow at 8:15.

The Sibelius Male chorus, Arthur Kitti conducting, will give its annual spring concert in Lincoln auditorium, 4219 Lincoln av., on Saturday at 8. Soloists will be Edna Niemi, pianist; Edwin Johnson, tenor, and Rosa Lemberg, soprano.

• • •

The Northwestern University Symphony orchestra, under the direction of George Dasch, will give a concert in Cahn auditorium, Scott hall, Evanston, this afternoon at 4. Clara Mae Sandehn, organist, will play Sowerby's "Medieval Poem" and Evelyn Fineberg, violinist, will be heard in the Conus concerto. Orchestral numbers include the prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" and the "Liebesfrühling" overture by Georg Schumann.

The 32d annual music festival of the Civic Music association, with Marx E. Oberndorfer conducting the children's choruses, will be held in Orchestra hall next Sunday afternoon, May 6, at 3:30. The Civic Orchestra of Chicago, under the direction of Hans Lange, will contribute three groups of orchestral numbers, in addition to furnishing the accompaniments.

• • •

Edna Dobine, Chicago soprano, will be heard in recital at Kimball hall next Sunday afternoon, May 6, at 3:30, with Josephine Stevenson at the piano.

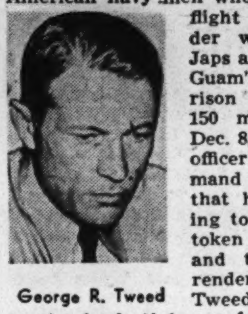
Sailor Tells How He Hid Out on Guam

"ROBINSON CRUSOE, U. S. N.: The Adventures of George R. Tweed, Radioman First Class, on Jap Held Guam" as told to Blake Clark. [Whittlesey House. $2.75.]

Reviewed by Al Chase

George Ray Tweed was one of six American navy men who preferred flight to surrender when the Japs attacked Guam's tiny garrison force of 150 marines on Dec. 8, 1941. The officer in command told Tweed that he was going to offer only token resistance and then surrender. He said Tweed could take to the bush if he preferred it to giving up.



George R. Tweed

Only six chose action to imprisonment and all but Tweed eventually were captured and beheaded or shot. Tweed and a pal fled in an old car which they hid in the jungle and then began a desperate flight from one hiding place to another, always aided by loyal Chamorros [natives] who loved the Americans enough to risk their lives constantly to aid them in evading the Japs.

Being an expert radio man, Tweed had the largest reward offered for his capture—1,000 yen—but no native ever tried for the prize money.

In one of his cave hideouts Tweed put together a broken down radio and tuned in Philippine underground and American radio stations. Using an old typewriter and carbons he got out the "Guam Eagle" which carried an account of wirelessed war news. The primitive papers were passed around among the natives, giving them the first authentic news of the war.

Later when Tweed had just about decided he would surrender rather than see his native friends horribly tortured by the Japs in an effort to make them tell where he was hidden, and in some instances beheaded, he was given this advice by an American woman: "You have more to fight for than your own existence. The people of Guam feel that as long as you hold out the Americans will come back. If you surrender they'll believe you've lost your faith and think the Japs have won. They'll give up hope."

"Then and there I resolved never to betray the confidence that the people of Guam had in America," said Tweed.

Several times he had hairbreadth escapes from capture—once leaving his cave one minte ahead of a file of Japs. At last he was led to a hiding place which the Japs never found; a crevasse high up between rocky cliffs overlooking the Pacific. There he lived a Robinson Crusoe existence. He made himself a table, a chair, and other conveniences and for a time had a pet rooster.

A native brought him an algebra and he spent months studying; he played solitaire, made jig saw puzzles out of a map of the United States, and read and re-read old magazines.

And then after two and a half years the Americans at last came back. Tweed signalled a Yankee destroyer with a mirror and flags—and his Carusoeing was over.

"Robinson Crusoe, U. S. N.," is a fast moving, breathless, true story of adventure—a chronicle of one of the war's most unusual feats of valor. Like the original Crusoe, there's no romance—nothing but hard bitten action, packed with terror and thrills. It's enthusiastically recommended to any one, old or young, who likes exciting, high speed, suspenseful melodrama, with a tropical island as background. Well illustrated and mapped, with end papers in color.

Tweed concludes his exciting autobiography of adventure with this tribute to the faithful Chamorros—"I know that these people are as brave and loyal as any who ever lived under the American flag."

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

AN interesting footnote to the discussion of the Stein mystery was evoked by this department's recent comment on the author of "Wars I Have Seen" [Random], in which an old question was revived; to wit, whether her individual writing style was a form of literary pallilalia or an example of gray cells at play. If my correspondent's letter does not solve the mystery, at least it is a vivid reminiscence of one of the most controversial figures of our time.

"It's been my own good fortune," writes Samuel L. Steward, "to have spent a total of five or six weeks under Gertrude Stein's roof, in the old chateau at Bilignin, back in the summers of '37 and '39; and I think I got to know her as well as any American—with the exception of Thornton Wilder, of course—knows her. Always an admirer, if not a comprehender, of her work, I must confess that I arrived at Bilignin possessed of much the same feelings that you give voice to—but those weeks converted me wholly. After all, so much time spent as a house guest results in one of two things: either deadly boredom on the part of the hosts and a growing number of hints to leave, or a gradual acceptance of the visitor as a part of the menage. I think I had the latter; in fact, I am rather certain—because if Gertrude grows tired there are definite ways she has of showing it.

Convinced by Little Things

"It would be impossible even for an actress like Katharine Cornell, I think, to keep up a pretense for such a long time as six weeks without making some few unconscious slips—and neither Gertrude Stein nor Alice Toklas ever faltered. May I tell you a few of the little things that convinced me? After visiting them in 1937, on my return to America I made up a box of kitchen gadgets to send them—little things like an expansible spatula, a 'beast' thermometer as well as oven and candy ones, and other trinkets. Their delight, expressed by letter, was out of all proportion to the worth of the trinkets. The incident passed out of mind until recalled casually by Alice Toklas in 1939, some two weeks after my second arrival, when she told me again one afternoon how pleased Gertrude had been, and that she kept them in Paris, 'in the most precious place, on top of her manuscripts.' That seems a small phrase, but its delivery was so uncalculated and spontaneous that its psychological significance seems very large indeed to me—and I do not think you can accuse either of them of measuring the value of manuscripts in money.

Neglect of a Manuscript

"Again, one time the axe almost fell on me. Cecil Beaton and I were sitting in her little 18th century boxwood garden, looking out over the broad fertile valley of the Ain. Cecil—fantastically dressed in shorts and a pullover shirt with broad red and white horizontal stripes—was peering under the edge of one of Gertrude's large Korean straw fishing hats at the landscape, which he was engaged in painting with one hand while with the other he twiddled a rose. And I was reading the manuscript of 'Paris France' which Gertrude was then writing. A sudden interruption—a trip to the Chambéry market, I think it was—drew us both away; I laid the book of manuscript down on the garden wall and forgot about it. It stayed there all night, and the next morning I certainly got what was coming to me. It was not, said Alice, that it was worth anything, any money, but that it was the only copy and rain might have ruined it—with the publisher's deadline not far away and the thing as yet untyped. I am rather sure that there would not have been such fuss and feathers if Gertrude had been fooling; they would simply have typed up something else and sent it along.

Gertrude the Oracular

"During those long walks we had together under the large and brilliant sky of Ain, taking either the lower turn thru the valley or the upper thru the vineyards, she could be in a variety of moods—but when she spoke of literature she was always serious. She came to acquire in my mind something of that dusky mage-like character that Coleridge had at Highgate—prophet and seeress, uttering oracles that were sybilline and profound and always perspicace. As I listened to her embroidering and elaborating upon the half dozen ideas that have 'bothered' her for so many years, I was forced to admit that here, perhaps uniquely today, was a woman that was developing an abstract and metaphysical mind. One day I got her to admit that she considered herself the center of the literary 20th century, and a study of her position and of her influence on Anderson and Hemingway and all the others might some day be written—and I do not believe that she could involve in a large 'jest' so many independent writers of such developed stature. Moreover, the heat she can develop in a literary argument certainly is genuine; its quality assures one that it could not be artificially induced.

"Knowing her has removed every doubt I ever had; and it has also helped me to understand what she has been engaged in doing. She tells the story of the 'automatic writing' pretty well on pp. 264 et seq. of 'Everybody's Autobiography,' from which I lift this sentence: 'No, writing should be very exact and one must realize what there is inside one and then in some way it comes into words and the more exactly the words fit the emotion the more beautiful the words that is what does happen . . .'

"Could Keats have any more clearly or truly expressed what happens inside the artist?"

An Old Favorite Survives

When I was a boy, I thought the funniest book ever written in this world was Jerome K. Jerome's "Three Men in a Boat." At this moment, nearly 50 years after the first reading, and having read the yarn off and on ever since, I am still inclined to think so; but I don't know how much of this uncritical feeling is just a nostalgic memory of my lost youth. I can still read the old book with hysterical screams of laughter, however; I did it only last week when I found my own first copy of the tale in an attic, up a crooked flight of stairs, in an old house in Toronto. The sequel was there too—"Three Men on the Bummel," it was called in the London edition—which I read with only moderate enjoyment when it came out, and found just a little tiring last week. It is an amiable enough travel book, but as a sequel to a masterpiece it simply didn't come off.

Other books up that climbing stair belonged to members of my father's family half a century and more ago. It was a curious jumble, that old bookcase at the head of the stairs, and my pulse stirred at certain memorable titles—"Under Two Flags," "Lady Audley's Secret," "Ships That Pass in the Night," "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "The First Violin." [No "East Lynne," I was disappointed to note.]

U. S. DIPLOMACY IN CIVIL WAR TIMES

Lloyd Wendt Writes Tale of Farming

"BRIGHT TOMORROW," by Lloyd Wendt. [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

The idea behind this novel [by a navy lieutenant and former Chicago Tribune man] is very fine: a young South Dakota farmer who, in an unfriendly community and in the face of intolerance and bad temper, makes a life for himself, even against the cries of "yellow" shouted at him when he is classified 4-F because of a hunting accident.

There are a very warm and alive sense of the wheatlands of Dakota, a solid statement of the problems the farmer has in any kind of weather, including the shrewd realization that his biggest problem is often himself, and an exact feeling for the characters of the men who made the farms. Here they are as they are—tough, independent, suspicious, willing to work hours and days beyond understanding, and unwilling to understand men who won't.

One of the best things in the book is the story of fight against grasshoppers, of the sudden compulsion to coöperation which that menace brings to the individualistic farmers of the county. Another admirable section is concerned with a celebration where there is some high-class riding. The description of horse and rider is handsome and close and moving.

The basic conflict of the novel is right and good. The manner of working it out in event and character is often exciting, and at no time can the end be predicted.

The weakest part of the novel is the prose in which it is written. Too often the danger to which all novels about farming are exposed is not overcome—what should be clear, clean description of the land falls away into the falsely poetic.

This is what I mean: "A time of harvest when the high-riding sire of endlessness, flushed by the might of his loins, kisses with complacent mien the soft, multitudinous bosom of the field . . . when the prairies stretch their tawny thighs, and plume themselves with verdant glow, and smile the sweet, wise, virginal smile of the ineffably blessed."

The same manner of writing is often a disaster to scenes otherwise strongly realized. When Mark looks forward to a date, "an evening with Gerda, of all the girls he had ever known, propounded more exciting possibilities and made nonprovocative conflicts than he could conjure in his wildest of imaginings." This seems an inflated way to represent the mind of a young farmer.

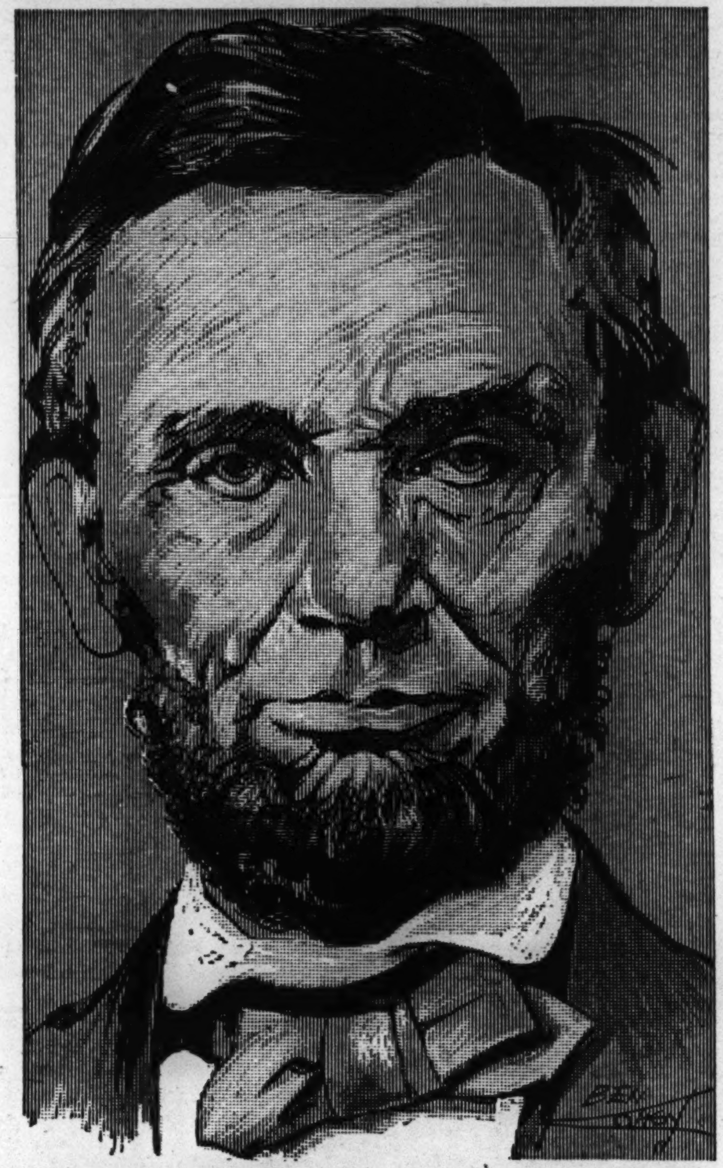
As a record of the agitations of many people in America before this war the book is excellent. As a study of the struggle of one man it is admirable. As an account of many young men it is often good, often bad.

It seems hard to believe that a farm hand as powerfully built as Ab would have such curious doubts that the army would take him. It seems most unreal to read that Mark, a farmer, thought of himself as an "irresistible knight, a warrior home in triumph." Nor can I really think of a coffepot on a range in a farm kitchen as a "smoking censer before a vestal virgin."

But it's a warm book and confident one. The author should write many more. But with one tough eye on his prose.



From a photograph taken in Washington Nov. 15, 1863, four days before Lincoln delivered the Gettysburg address. Original is in the collection of Oliver R. Barrett of Chicago. Sketched by Ben Cohen.

Santayana Continues Story of Background of His Life

"THE MIDDLE SPAN," by George Santayana. [Scribner's, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Continuing the record which he insists is "the background of my life" rather than an autobiography, George Santayana, now 81 years of age, bridges the "middle span" of his years, and the span between factual events and the more exciting interpretation of them which is the natural course of the philosophic mind. To many college generations at Harvard he was an unforgotten professor of philosophy. To the world he was, besides a philosopher, a poet, and aesthete.

Of his official career at Harvard he says, "When I resigned my professorship my name had figured in the Harvard catalog, in one capacity or another, for 30 years. Yet that long career has been slow and insecure, made in an atmosphere of mingled favor and distrust. My relations with President Eliot and with other influential persons had always been strained. I had disregarded or defied public opinion by . . . writing pessimistic, old-fashioned verses, continuing to range superficially over literature and philosophy . . . attacking Robert Browning, prophet of the half-educated and half-believing . . . neglecting the intelligentsia, frequenting the society of undergraduates and fashionable old ladies, spending my holidays abroad.

"At the same time, in private, I had breathed the pleasantest airs of sympathy and friendship. My philosophic colleagues had supported me, my old friends had been faithful . . . my new friends had multiplied in numbers and influence, my books, tho received coldly at first, had attained a certain reputation. I was still disliked but I was swallowed."

That brief looking backward is a scenario of the book's contents. Because that paragraph is a part of the chapter on his "Official Career at Harvard," the emphasis is on his relations with Harvard, which remind the reader of the conjugal relations of a man who, voluntarily tied to a not wholly sympathetic wife, remains happily so for a lifetime by spending as much time away from her as possible and by philosophically reminding himself of her excellent care of him.

Monaghan Examines Career of Lincoln from New Angle

"DIPLOMAT IN CARPET SLIPPERS," by Jay Monaghan. [Bobbs-Merrill, $4.]

Reviewed by Walter Trohan

One of the delights of an inquisitive life is the discovery of curious facts, and one of the happiest of these discoveries is that if one mentions the American Civil war in almost any room where 10 men are assembled, he will find a fellow enthusiast and a pleasant exchange of views or a spirited debate.

The interest in the American conflict is universal, it would seem. This reviewer pondered within a month [early in 1940] the strategy of Sherman's march to the sea with the two British generals in Lord Beaver-Brook's home in the pitch of London's black-out, and Sheridan's valley campaign with members of President Roosevelt's peace envoy, Sumner Welles. More recently I pleasurably discussed Mosby's and Forrest's operations with a Chinese general against the hubbub of a Washington cocktail party.

Perhaps, if military men, historians, and more casual students are reaching a common understanding on a conflict, which unlike other civil strife was featured by chivalry rather than bestiality, greater things may come from even more universal interest in Abraham Lincoln, the common man of the people, whose thoughts had the majesty of angels. This is the promising theme of the closing pages of a narrative told with great skill by Mr. Monaghan and one which deserves mature reflection of all, and it is to be regretted that they cannot be quoted here in full.

However, "Diplomat in Carpet Slippers" is not remarkable or alone in this thought; nor is its value alone in the interpretation of the character of Lincoln and the chronicle of his diplomacy. It is a good book—time could do worse than adjudge it a great book—and one which should have been written long ago. Yet, it is not enough to say that it fills a gap in the heavily weighed shelves of Lincolniana. This book examines the career of a great American from an entirely different angle with reverence, scholarship and ability. Lincoln, of course, towers over the scene, but the description, understanding, and delineation of the subordinate and even the incidental figures are amazingly well done. Moreover, it is written at a pace and a degree of skill that make its 433 pages turn as fast as those of Stevenson or Dumas.

Checking the above as it left the typewriter, it is obvious I have gone overboard for "Diplomat in Carpet Slippers." I acknowledge it. Perhaps, Mr. Monaghan receives some small favor because his work fell into the hands of a fellow enthusiast for the period, but I defy any one to dig into such chapters as the diplomacy behind the release of the Emancipation Proclamation, the Mason-Slidell affair, the sad adventure of the ill-fated Maximilian and Carlotta, and winning the end of British enmity, without acknowledging that he was hugely entertained and at the same time highly informed.

The parade of characters is as astounding as they are facilely presented. One can search long in the heavy definitive lives of the period and the heavier tomes on the Civil war before he comes up with a better portrayal of such a wide variety of types as William Henry Seward, Charles Francis Adams, Edwin Stanton and the mysterious, irascible Adam Gurowski [to say nothing of the diplomatic set of that day in Washington and abroad] who are almost given the racy treatment of gossip columns of this era.

James River Valley Rich in History

"THE JAMES: From Iron Gate to the Sea," by Blair Niles. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

"The James" as it was originally published seven years ago was an appealing and illuminating book; it dealt with the tidewater section of Virginia and it presented that gracious and history laden background in an engrossing way. According to the original editorial plan of the Rivers of America, that was the book's province. But the Rivers series has evolved a distinct pattern since then, and this new edition of the James presents the entire river and a story of Virginia's development that flows uninterrupted from John Smith's landing to today's convoys forming off Hampton Roads.

Blair Niles

Mrs. Niles, who has traveled most of the great rivers of the world and observed their civilizations, brings to the river of her native state a remarkable cosmopolitan understanding. Yet she sees it with affection that warms every page of her book. She emphasizes that tho the James is confined to Virginia it is an All-American river; so much of significance has happened in the James river watershed that this river must belong to all the states, as indeed it does.

The James is formed at Iron Gate, in the mountain rimmed Valley of Virginia, where the swift Jackson river and the tranquil Cowpasture come together. These mingled strains of vigor and tranquility it retains on all its beautiful way to the sea, and in the life that has flowed thru its valley can be found the same two strains. Vigor came with the first venturers from England three and a third centuries ago, and tranquility still lingers about its old plantation houses.

There have been many James river men in American life—so many that it would be hard to conceive our nation without them. They appear here, John Smith, William Byrd, Patrick Henry, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Edgar Allan Poe, Robert E. Lee, and others, in warm and living colors. What they strove for, Mrs. Niles finds dramatized today in the great convoys of war gathered at the river mouth. The book is superbly illustrated by Edward Shenton.

Last Chance for Fashion Show Entries

By Norma Lee Browning

Attention fashion designers everywhere! This is the last call to mail in your designs for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's nation-wide American Fashions contest.

All sketches must be in the contest office by midnight next Tuesday, May 1, in order to be considered for any of the prizes.

Contestants should remember to wrap all entries securely and to make sure the entry blank is filled out according to rules and regulations of the contest.

Already the contest office is piled high with entries from all over the country, from cities and small towns and villages, and from overseas. And within these huge stacks of brown bundles lie the dreams of hundreds of young hopeful designers, some of whom will, as in previous years, gain recognition in their chosen field of fashion designing thru successful participation in THE TRIBUNE's contest.

Mrs. Crane Pickering, director of the contest, declared: "The entries will include sketches from many noted professional designers, as well as those by amateurs of as yet untried talent. We notice, too, that requests for entry blanks show many names of foreign origin. This is interesting, for these contestants, altho long residents of this country, will bring to the fashion show the ideas and tastes of many nationalities."

As soon as the last entries are received the contest selections committee will begin the task of choosing the 40 or more designs from which the grand prize winners will be picked next fall at the annual fashions show which climaxes the contest.

Between now and show time these designs will be made up into actual garments with the finest materials available and at the expense of THE TRIBUNE.

Mrs. Pickering will supervise the execution of these chosen designs into finished garments.

The costumes will be modeled by professional mannequins at the fashion show and at this time the grand prize winners will be selected by vote of the audience. The prizes are $2,000, $1,000, and $500 in the general contest and $500 for the best costume designed especially for a teen-age girl. All others whose designs have been chosen for the fashion show will receive awards of $50 each.

The American Fashions contest, outstanding in the whole field of fashion, was originated by THE TRIBUNE five years ago, shortly after the fall of France, for the purpose of advancing and stimulating the creation of American fashions for American women.

It has grown consistently in scope and importance until today many leading designers praise THE TRIBUNE's successful efforts in helping America to become the fashion center of the world.

The contest has uncovered new fashion talent and has inspired others, already professional, to even higher pinnacles of success.

This year, for the first time, it has expanded into a new field, the importance of which has long been neglected. This is the teen-age contest.

The response to this year's American Fashions contest has been greater than that of any other year. It is the belief of the selections committee that it will disclose a wealth of new talent, thus adding immeasurably to the history making progress of the American fashion industry.

[Have you some household help that lightens labor or conserves on materials? Is there some comfort you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Frank G., Chicago—To waterproof a new clothesline I rub it with white wax. This also is a help against soiling the line and lessens danger of clothesline marks on garments.

Mrs. Fred W., Lima, O.—To untangle strands of a floor mop which sometimes get wadded together, I twirl handle of the mop or duster between my hands. Mop will work better after this treatment.

• • •

Mrs. Ted H., Des Moines, Iowa—I'll pass on my mother's method of treating water-spotted mohair. Wipe it with a cloth wrung out of very cold water and then sponge with equal parts ether and alcohol, mixed.

• • •

Joyce H., Springfield, Ill.—If soap and water won't remove dirt or stains from an alabaster accessory I try alcohol, acetone or benzol. I never use an acid to clean alabaster. It can dissolve it.

• • •

Emily G., Rochester, N. Y.—I watch my leather covered furniture when the house gets damp in the summer and keep rooms well ventilated. As an added precaution I wipe leather occasionally with a damp cloth and then dry thoroly. This helps to ward off mildew.

Eastern Star Will Lead Radio Bond Rally on Saturday

The Order of the Eastern Star in Illinois will conduct a seventh war loan bond rally program over a radio broadcasting station at 2 p. m. Saturday. There will be orchestra music and singing, and the admission fee to the broadcasting studio, located in the Wrigley building, will be thru purchase of a war bond.

Members of the society also plan to man the war bond booths at 80 Chicago theaters during the drive. Fashions and Fancy

Another of those wonderfully generous gestures that have made Chicago famous for its hospitality to members of the military services was chalked up recently by the Service club. When 200 WACs were quartered at 66 E. 11th st., the club decided the girls deserved something in the way of lounges more colorful and comfortable than usual G. I. issue. The rooms were opened recently with a tea, and brought repeated exclamations of approval from the WACs and other guests present. "If only the parents of the girls stationed here could view the layout," said Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding general of the 6th service command, "they would be wonderfully reassured as to their daughter's welfare." He referred not only to the lounges—charmingly done by the club in blond woods combined with coral, yellow, and chartreuse upholsteries and hangings—but to the entire quarters, including a spacious and modern kitchen, dining hall, and dormitories. Mrs. Reynolds was among those assisting Mrs. E. Payson Smith, the club president, in the reception line. The latter's forward tilted hat of black straw was narrow brimmed, and from the tip of the high crown

May Day to Mark Opening of Baby Week

By Thalia

May 1st, May day, has for centuries been a day of special rejoicing, symbolic of the renewal of life. Maypole dances were traditional in an England uninhibited by war. In France on May day every person, lowly or great, gave and received muguet, the flower of friendship, the lily of the valley. In my young days as a country child it was also traditional to hang May baskets on neighboring door knobs. Perhaps it was the innate urge to the renewal of friendship that made labor all over the world choose May day as its own. It is the upsurging or the hope for a better, friendlier world that made May day also Child Health day and the beginning of National Baby week.

The babies to whom this week is dedicated will soon be the men and women who will have to see to it that the world is a better place to live in and that the plans now being drawn up in San Francisco toward that end are carried out and, when necessary, readjusted to insure permanent peace.

There are many charitable organizations in Chicago which concentrate on building America's future of health and prosperity by giving its babies the best possible start in life. The appeal of a child is irresistible and Chicago's most fortunate women are leaders of those to whom that appeal is never in vain.

It is appropriate that the members of the White Elephant Rummage committee of the Children's Memorial hospital should have chosen May day for its spring stock raising. The demands of the hospital have been greater this year than ever in the past with the wives and babies of service men to care for. The success of the Rummage shop, which supports the charitable work of the hospital, has also been greater and the recent spring dress sale practically cleaned out the stock, for no woman can resist any bargain, even tho she intended buying only a dress. That dress sale broke all records.

The attractive young sales force might have had something to do with it. They were all members of the junior auxiliary of the hospital: the lovely Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr., Mrs. Roy Flannery [its chairman], Mrs. John B. Morse, and Mrs. William Borland among others. One reason why that particular sale was so successful was because some of the older members of the committee, who saw among the dresses and coats which had been donated many which could not be duplicated today, bought them and had them shipped directly by the shop to the United Nations Clothing collection. The bright red and white invitations to the movie at the Esquire theater on Tuesday afternoon went to every one in the social register, as well as to many others interested in the hospital. The movie will be the hospital's May day bouquet in exchange for articles to replenish the stock of the shop. It is always one of the spring's gala events. Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, chairman of the committee, will entertain members at luncheon in the Casino before the movie, while the invariably charming Mrs. William H. Mitchell will act as mistress of ceremonies for the surprise excitements at the movie.

Fresh from the Hills . . . Walkin' Editor

By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"YOU ought to thank the Lord for letting you live in such a good country as this," wrote Tom Shiras, editor of the Baxter County [Ark.] Bulletin, in one of his 1907 editorials. At that time Editor Tom was referring to northern Arkansas, and today that same thought is echoed in every issue of this county weekly. And Editor Tom should know. For 40 years he has roamed thru 10 or more mountainous Arkansas counties getting news items, selling subscriptions, and soliciting printing jobs. For 15 years he covered this region on foot, averaging 300 miles per month. Even editors of rival county weeklies referred to him as the "walkin'est editor in the world." And I'm willing to bet that reputation still holds good.

Even now, good roads are scarce in much of the back country of northern Arkansas and a lot of walking must be done if the territory is properly covered. And Editor Tom is the fellow that can do it. The hard-as-nails physique he brought to the hills back in 1904 is still rugged. He still can climb steep mountainsides that would have a less hardy person puffing and wheezing. He still wades casually across creeks that swirl around his knees, still strides along leafy mule and cattle trails with such tireless ease that squirrels stop chattering in the chinquapins and peer down at him, just as other squirrels peered down at his red head long ago.

For 40 years the stories this excellent writer has uncovered or made up as he tramped along back country trails have delighted not only the readers of his own paper, but those of the Kansas City Star, Arkansas Gazette, American Magazine, Munsey's, Collier's, and many, many other publications. In fact, he had 16 mentions in the Anthology of Ozark Writers, a record second only to a writer who had been dead 50 years.

Many a tempting offer to become a big city newspaper man has come to Editor Tom, but he has never wavered in his devotion to Baxter county. It was practically love at first sight. As a young newspaper man, he came into northern Arkansas on a vacation trip with his stepfather. Quite by chance they camped one night on the bank of the White river. Next morning when young Tom went down to the river for water, he found a lively stream teeming with black bass. In the woods of the steep hills about him he heard the gobble of wild turkeys and overhead the chatter of squirrels in countless numbers. Up on a cliff, just above his head, two does and a buck looked down with friendly interest. He went back to his stepfather's camp.

"Maybe you're going back," he said. "But I'm going to stay here."

Stay he did, and by the time he was writing that 1907 editorial, he and his brother, Ennis, had become the owners of the Baxter County Weekly, which they still own and publish. Now it is printed on modern presses. But even in the days when the complete newspaper plant was a 10x15 job press [on which the paper was printed], one stand of type, a pine table, and a kerosene lamp, the stanch little paper was shouting progress for northern Arkansas.

"The farm you sell today for $5 an acre will be worth $40 an acre," wrote Editor Tom. "We will have a railroad. Big industries will come in and use our water power. Our mines will cover miles of territory. Our fruit will be the talk of the world."

Those predictions have largely come true. Today you're lucky to find a farm at $40 an acre. A railroad has come into the county, and altho it is 11 miles away, a ribbon of paved road lies between the station and town. Big industries have not yet rushed into Baxter county, but give them time! The dam across the north fork of White river was completed a few months ago. One big industry of which Editor Tom never dreamed, the tourist trade, will speedily get under way come peace time. Baxter county, with its excellent fishing, hunting, and beautiful scenery, will be the hub of many a post-war motor trip. During World War I., Baxter county provided thousands of tons of zinc and lead, and it is possible that many untouched veins lie beneath those rugged hills. Arkansas strawberries, blackberries, and dewberries are tops for jams and jellies, and when sugar is again plentiful, they will be given wider opportunities for fame.

The files of the Bulletin and Editor Tom's personal files of stories and photographs are a veritable history of this region of our country, actual Americana at its vigorous best. One of the early pictures shows a gay picnic crowd in a wagon drawn by a yoke of young oxen. "Only way we had of getting any place in those days," explains Editor Tom. Other pictures show the wildcat, deer, and wolf skins which any good hunter could acquire in those days. Those photographs and stories show the progress, too, in which Editor Tom always had a hand and voice. He was present with his trusty camera when the governor of Missouri and the governor of Arkansas, in overalls and work shirts, met to pitch the first spadefuls of earth in the good roads movement.

When the railroad was actually in work, Editor Tom wrote with great respect of the steam shovel that held three yards of dirt at a load. When the railroad was finished, a great celebration was planned for the two trains that would come into Baxter county simultaneously. But the newspaper story dwindled to a scant two inch item. The train from the north was stopped in its tracks by a landslide in southern Missouri, and the train from the south was held up by a washout. Eventually, the trains were on fairly regular schedules and Editor Tom published a story about the big wages earned by railroad men; section men, he noted, got $50 a month and the conductor drew the princely sum of $125.

Bulletin files tell briefly of the early social life of the region. Greatest space was given to the list of a popular couple's wedding gifts, down to an embroidered corset cover. Another society story tells of a young lady who entertained her friends with a rag tacking [sewing strips of cloth end to end in preparation for weaving a rag carpet], and due mention is made of the season's gayest party, when the guests "simply had a picnic and stayed until nearly 11."

Hunting and fishing were more important in Editor Tom's life and these sports got excellent play. Every time Lem Redus shot a wild turkey it made a news item. "Lem gets so many wild turkeys the neighbors believe he has a flock penned up and just picks one off whenever he wants fresh meat," joshed Editor Tom.

Every time a new find of lead or zinc was reported to Editor Tom, away he tramped to see it, no matter how remote. Perhaps that is why, in recent years, Editor Tom was the logical man to be sent to Washington to promote the construction of the North Fork dam. This tall, soft spoken Arkansan stood up and told congress that Baxter county wanted the government to come down and corral its 750,000 wild horses that went tearing over its fields every spring. He was referring, of course, to the damaging floods, and the wild horse speech was written into the Congressional Record.

But back home, Tom's wife and daughter still blush at the memory of Editor Tom going off to Washington in his big old wading boots and pants patched at the spot where they had been snagged by a wild blackberry briar. [Even today the editor's tweeds are not worn thin by chair seats.] Certainly Editor Tom is not the dressy type. That's just as well. No dressed up dude could ever have found the true stories that Editor Tom will put into that book he is planning to write when he gets time.

In that book, Tom Shiras will tell of the father of a famous Ozark artist who couldn't stand the whistle of locomotives. When the railroad came thru, the old gentleman mourned that civilization was crowding in on him. He packed a few belongings and moved into Hemmed-In holler, where cars or wagons cannot penetrate to this day, and there he lived. Two or three times a year his wife, dainty as a Dresden figurine, would go to see how he fared, making the trip by train, hack, team and buggy, and finally muleback. Editor Tom crossed her path on many of these trips, and they became good friends, but the public never knew this story of a great one's parents.

In his book, Editor Tom also will tell of John Hollingsworth, who discovered a diamond mine in Arkansas and sold it for $39,000. He will even include a photograph of John, pointing a long, bony forefinger to the exact spot where he picked up that first diamond. Certainly this story will prove that truth is stranger than fiction. Where is the fiction writer who would dare permit his hero to find a diamond mine in his back yard? Editor Tom also will tell of the days when pearls of superb quality were found in mussel shells along the bottom of White river, and of whole families that quit their farms and camped along the banks of the river making what might be called an uncomfortable living from occasional finds. Most of the pearls were small, but some were large as garden peas. These brought perhaps $500, the same income as a year of farming and without the back breaking work. No one seemed to mind that the pearls would eventually sell in Paris or New York for a hundred times that price.

• • •

You'll find the epilogs to famous Ozark stories in that book, probably even the truly happy ending of the famous Connie Frank trial. In that trial four men were tried for murder, but the victim, Connie Frank, or a reasonable facsimile, was in the courtroom. The trial hinged on the true identity of that person. Years after the defendants were freed, Editor Tom ran across one of the four living in a tiny log cabin far back in a holler where the fishing and hunting were fine. The chap recognized the newspaper man, and they sat down on a log to talk over the trial.

"I've always wondered what it cost to beat that case," said Editor Tom.

"It was $1,900," replied the bearded mountaineer.

"How in the world did you four fellows raise all that money?"

"Well, now that it's all done f'r, I'll tell you," replied the onetime murder suspect. "I had some cousins down in Texas that said they'd give me $1.25 a gallon f'r all the whisky I could make. I made 2,500 gallons and got enough to pay the cost of that trial and to buy me this log cabin. And I ain't made airy drap since."

Forty years of life in a fishing and hunting paradise! Forty years of work that never lagged in interest, excitement, and variety. Forty years of watching the spot one had chosen out of all the world becoming more important to the state and the nation. Forty years of health and happiness, with many years of activity ahead. Editor Tom, this is a career any man might envy. May those future years bring you more stories, swell fishing, and excellent walking! All northern Arkansas hails the Walkin' Editor as one grand guy!

ful work which that organization does in caring for babies and expectant mothers. Last year they helped over 11,000 mothers and children. The Infant Welfare society has also found that rummage sales are gold mines and two of the centers maintain year round sales, the Beverly Hills and the Kenwood Social Service club shops. Mrs. A. King McCord of Beverly Hills presided at the luncheon, which was addressed by Mrs. Pope Dodge, president of the woman's auxiliary, and Miss Jeannette Townsend, extension secretary of the society. Among the women members of the board of directors of the society present were Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot, Mrs. Herbert Mayer, Mrs. Andrew McNally, and Mrs. Telfer MacArthur.

Mrs. MacArthur had just returned from New York where she attended the fifth biennial conference of the heads of Women's Committees of Symphony Orchestras. Mrs. MacArthur is chairman of the Chicago group responsible for the increase in the number of sustaining members of the Symphony. It was in Chicago last year under her direction that the new by-laws were drafted which were ratified in New York last week.

Mrs. Lytle Hull, first vice president of the New York Philharmonic society, the only woman to hold that position, was the official hostess of the conference. She is also chairman of the woman's committee of the Philharmonic. Among the social events of the conference was an evening as guests of Mrs. Arthur Lehman, whose father presented the city of New York with the great Lewisohn stadium where city dwellers enjoy fine music thruout the summer. It was in the midwest, however, that the first conference of women's committee chairmen met, in St. Louis, 10 years ago.

Among the groups represented at the conference this year, besides New York and Chicago, were Philadelphia, which, I hear, has the most successful woman's committee in America; Cleveland, Detroit, Rochester, N. Y., and Toronto, Canada, where the next conference will be held two years hence. Conspicuously absent was a representative of the woman's committee of the Boston Symphony for the incredible reason that there is no woman's committee in Boston.

Mrs. MacArthur missed the annual concert and reception which the Chicago Symphony gives to its sustaining members. The afternoon's hostesses were Mrs. John Paul Welling and Mrs. Cyrus Adams. Mrs. Adams was responsible for the charming urns of apple blossoms and white snapdragon which adorned the stage and for the snapdragon filled vases on the tea table. About 1,700 enjoyed the concert, were cheered by a message from Edwin L. Ryerson, president of the Orchestral association, and shook hands with Desire De Fauw and Hans Lange, conductor and assistant conductor of the symphony. One of the numbers played was "Pines of Rome," by Respighi, in which the native nightingale's part is played by a phonograph record. One well known concert-goer offered to present the library with a new record—the nightingale has developed a slight case of laryngitis.

Speaking of birds, Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith of Lake Forest, a volunteer worker at the Chicago Natural History museum [we still automatically call it the Field museum], arranged the very interesting exhibit at the museum of rare books illustrated with color plates of birds, which have been collectors' items for centuries. The exhibit was opened with pleasant ceremonies on the 160th anniversary of the great ornithologist, John James Audubon, on Thursday.

An invitation to a tea party, one for the sheer rejuvenating pleasure of seeing old friends instead of for a cause, is as rare and precious these days as a pat of sweet butter. Mrs. Donald McPherson recently gave her oldest and closest friends one of the pleasantest afternoons of the season when she invited them to tea. Her two daughters, Mrs. Willard Drown and Miss Sally Anne, welcomed old family friends with their mother.

Mrs. Drown and Lt. Drown came up from St. Louis for the party which was, if not announced as such, the happiest possible informal introduction to society of Miss Sally Anne. Mrs. McPherson just wanted her friends to see her "girls," she declared—they were very much worth seeing—and chose this felicitous way of linking the older and the younger generations. One never saw happier faces on tea party-goers.

There was precisely the right number of people to give the party an air of great gayety without losing its intimacy. Everybody knew everybody else and everybody had a good time. I even overheard one husband, usually a revolter against tea parties, declare for the idea of "more such."

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Among the improvements you can give your house now are combination windows. . . . If you need screens these combination windows include storm windows with interchangeable screens. . . . One manufacturer offers these in genuine redwood with metal weather strips and controled no-draft and no-rain ventilation. . . . When changing seasons demand a change from screens to storm sash there will be no need for ladders to climb for the change is made from inside the house, and comfort and ventilation will be afforded this summer as well as fuel saving next winter.

Also the season is here to seal out summer dust and dirt by adequate weatherstripping and caulking. . . . Quality nonrust metal weatherstripping is available for all year round house protection while adequate caulking, done by experts, not only will be a help against cold and drafts but will prevent summer rains from seeping in around the window frames, eventually rotting them and even damaging interior decorations.

• • •

After the war plan to have the type of fireplace in your home which will draw cool air from the floor level, warm it and circulate it. . . . This type fireplace will be marketed as soon as building starts, but for now we have prepared a leaflet on some simple ways to cure a smoky fireplace and to start a cozy fire, for weeks are ahead when fireplaces will be used in many homes to burn less fuel in the basement heating plant.

Altenheim Auxiliary to Sponsor Benefit Show

As a benefit for the Altenheim [German Old People's home] in Forest Park, the affiliated Junior auxiliary will present Miss Olive O'Neil, soprano, in a miniature version of Romberg's operetta "New Moon" at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday night in the Michigan room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Tickets may be obtained thru the benefit chairman, Miss Marga Wohlers of 1454 Rascher av., or may be purchased at the door. Mrs. Joseph K. Narat is assisting Miss Wohlers as co-chairman.

Blind Service Group to Give Annual Report

Those less dauntless of spirit might wilt in these times, questioning the faith that persists in quiet, constructive service to the physically handicapped when each day sees the deliberate maiming of thousands. But to Mrs. Gottfried Bernstein, who has given more than half her life time to the volunteer work of the Blind Service association which she founded, and to the scores of women united with her in befriending the sightless of this city, the increasing need is a challenge that stimulates greater effort.

Mrs. Gottfried Bernstein

When the members and the many friends who share in the association's service thru contributions gather in the Drake hotel Wednesday night for the 20th annual report meeting, they will hear from Mrs. Bernstein not only a summary of last year's accomplishments, but her plans for expansion of aid to the blind.

The meeting will be keyed to a spring party mood. Mayor and Mrs. Edward J. Kelly and Gov. and Mrs. Dwight H. Green have been invited to attend, and among other guests will be Father Joseph G. Phoenix, Rabbi Louis L. Mann, Dr. E. V. L. Brown of Presbyterian hospital, and Judge Ulysses S. Schwartz.

Mrs. Nathan Goldblatt and Miss Henrietta Goldman have arranged the program. They will present Betty Browning Marshall, former Tribune writer, in a travelog on Guatemala. Mrs. Marshall will show color films to illustrate her talk. Ruth Kahn, soprano, will sing. Also on the program will be Sgt. Buddy Clark and Pvt. Henri Rose, who will sing and play. Gene Oxley of the navy will give a talk on his experiences in four European invasion actions.

Augmenting the board of directors on the host and hostess committee for the evening will be Mrs. Abraham Orwin, Mrs. Emanuel M. Schwartz, Mrs. Milton M. Zuckermann, Mr. Bernstein, Sen. George D. Mills, Mrs. Milton D. Smith, and Dr. Adolph Weiner.

A large benefit Saturday will be the annual card party of the Chicago Society for the Hard of Hearing, which is set for 2 o'clock at the Lake Shore club, Chestnut st. and Lake Shore dr. The society maintains a hearing aid bureau on the 9th floor at 410 S. Michigan av., conducts lip reading classes, and carries on an extensive educational program to prevent deafness.

Mrs. Alexander Steiner
[Youngberg Photo]

Heading the committee for the benefit is Mrs. Alexander Steiner, 6101 Sheridan rd. She is assisted by Mrs. Donald S. Boynton, Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mrs. Odbert Bennett, and Miss Rose Dickinson.

Harry H. Hagey is president of the society. Other officers, all actively participating in plans for the party, are Mrs. Phillip Miller, Miss Anna Juergens, Mrs. Melville Keim, and Robert C. Brown.

Next Sunday is the day set for the large matinee in the Civic Opera house for the benefit of La Rabdia sanitarium, convalescent home for children with cardiac disorders. The Variety club of Chicago will give the show, which is under auspices of the women's auxiliary of La Rabida. Radio, stage, and movie performers will participate in the program.

Mrs. Joseph T. Cochran is the chairman on management, and Mrs. Ben Berve is serving as her co-chairman. Others of the committee are Mrs. Clyde S. Benham, Mrs. John I. Duffy, Mrs. Earl Warren, Mrs. Stuart Colnon, Mrs. Robert A. Black, Mrs. Robert E. Spear, Mrs. William E. Thoresen, Mrs. Harry E. Schreiber, and Mrs. William J. Frazier.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 2, 1897.

Dear Julia: Will is getting out his golf clubs and polishing them in the hope that Sandy will permit him to go out to Wheaton soon to play. He reads every item about golf, of which our papers are already full—so popular is the sport—and Sandy encourages him in his enthusiasm, feeling it is good for him.

"Johnnie" Carpenter

A charming young miss of 16 is one of the attractions at the Chicago Golf club [Wheaton] and Will has asked her to play with him the first good day. He is immensely pleased that she has consented. This interesting young girl is "Johnnie" Carpenter, called the "mascot" of the club. Two years ago she won first prize in the women's golf tournament held in Wheaton. Blue eyed and blonde, with a disarming unconsciousness of her ability, she is loved by all the members.

"Johnnie" first learned to play while watching the men practice on the grounds at Belmont, owned by her stepfather, A. Haddow Smith, near Downers Grove. "Johnnie" took a liking to the new game and showed an aptitude for it so her stepfather, a Scotchman by birth who has played on all the fine courses in the old country, began to teach her to play. So did other members of the club, notably Charles B. Macdonald, one of our renowned players. "Johnnie" has played with the best of them and has shown herself a foeman worthy of their steel.

The match she won two years ago when she was only 14 has become historic. When the women's competition was announced she wanted to play and her stepfather entered her name, but some of the ladies objected, knowing she would be a formidable opponent. A decision as to her eligibility hung fire until the return of Mr. Macdonald, who had been playing at Niagara. He was national golf champion that year. Mr. Macdonald at once said she must be permitted to play. She had been made an honorary member of the club and she was one of the best players. Stuyvesant Leroy and E. W. Cramer added their voices and they carried their point.

I was out there with Will that day and I shan't soon forget the sight of the child of 14 in a short brown skirt, a white shirtwaist with sleeves rolled up, showing her muscular brown arms, a look of determination under her red Tam o'Shanter cap. She was clutching her clubs, one of them used by Tweedie, the great golfer, when he was a boy of 12. He had given it to her in admiration of her prowess and she was proud of it. A curious figure she was, compared to the fashionable women of Lake Forest who had entered the contest, too.

Mrs. Cramer, one of these ladies, played the round with her, and when "Johnnie" made the low score of the tournament, Mrs. Cramer congratulated her heartily.

The famous Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor came in second only five strokes behind "Johnnie." Since then "Johnnie" has steadily improved her game and a bright future is predicted for her. She was born in Kentucky and was named for her father, who died before her birth. Her stepfather, Mr. Smith, is very popular among sports loving people and the mother is a gracious southern woman. They live in Oak Park, but have a farm near Downers Grove where they spend the summer. It was in this farmhouse that the Chicago Golf club was organized, the house being at first used as a meeting place for the golfers. Among early members were James B. Forgan, J. A. Ryerson, and Captain Macdonald. The latter, a popular member of the Board of Trade, brought in many new members. Mrs. Ryerson and Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor joined very soon.

In a short time, the membership became so large that an 18 hole course was needed, but as land enough was not available near Belmont it was decided to move the Chicago Golf club to Wheaton.

Mr. Smith, "Johnnie's" stepfather, must be called the father of western golf, Will says, for he not only laid out the first grounds [at Belmont], but he laid out the Westward Ho club at Oak Park, naming it for a well known club in England. He also edited the first golf magazine west of the Alleghanies. Now Will is calling me and I must go. Your loving friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND

FOOTNOTES

"Little Johnnie" Anna Carpenter was runner-up in 1903 in the Woman's National golf championship tournament and in 1904 was runner-up in the Western Women's golf championship. In 1905 she married Prof. Vernon J. Hall of Northwestern university and played very little championship golf. Later Mrs. Hall became a graduate nurse of Wesley hospital. During World War I., she served 16 months with the army nurse corps. Owing to a weak wrist, she has not played golf for a number of years, except for a practice round, but there is talk of a game with Chick Evans for the benefit of the Red Cross some time this summer. Her address is now Mrs. J. Anna Carpenter Hall, Bismarck hotel, Chicago. Her mother, Mrs. Anne Carpenter Smith, is living at the advanced age of 92.

Mrs. Hall is a member of the Rebecca Bryan Boone chapter of the D. A. R. of Boone county, Ky., and seems prouder of her Revolutionary ancestry than of her phenomenal career in golf.

Life in the Elegant Eighties

We are disappointed in the number of letters received in response to the request for memories of the Eighties. The contest closes May 15. Subject for letters: "Why I'm Glad I Lived in the Elegant Eighties." Length: Not over 100 words. The prize is a box of "Elegant Eighties Note Cards" designed by your editor in collaboration with Lois Fisher, Tribune artist. You'll enjoy using these cards, with pictures and rhymes featuring scenes from the decade you enjoyed.

Resort Season Out West Ends with a Flourish

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Signal for the season's end in the valley of the sun is the annual Hasta Luego cocktail party on the sunny terrace at Camelback inn, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. This has been a busy final week at the inn, which is filled to capacity up to the very day of closing this year.

Ivan Dmitri famed magazine and calendar photographer, has been working on his next year's airline color shots in the vicinity of the inn, and the bright April weather, like that of July in Chicago, has seen the guests flocking to the inn pool. Thursday night Manager Jack Stewart was host to inn guests and Phoenix friends for an evening horseback ride and steak fry high on Mummy mountain. The night air, as is the case this time of year, was fresh and balmy. Even the cayuses seem to share in the exuberance of the occasion.

Chicagoland guests have been at the inn until the last, among them Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mons of Kenilworth, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vandercook of Wilmette, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hathaway of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Grunow of Chicago and Lake Geneva, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Herring of Ottawa, Dr. and Mrs. Harry C. Dooley of River Forest, Mr. and Mrs. John Groff of Highland Park, and Mrs. Thomas C. Crosby and son, Thomas, of Chicago.

The San Marcos at Chandler closed for the season last week as did also the Jokake inn. The Paradise inn and the Biltmore are closing this week, but the weather remains so seasonable that many Chicago folks in their own homes in various parts of the valley are planning to remain into May.

The Cinco de Mayo celebration down at the border and other events will provide diversion and interest for another month. After which Arizonians will start refurbishing their coolers and looking northward to the Yavapai Hills.

Child Chorus Will Give 32d Sing Sunday

By Irene Steyskal

Tunes to Lupe are like the strings that set a marionette dancing. Five year old Lupe has a voice as chirpy and sweet as bird song. "The little one is full of music" is the way folks in the South Chicago neighborhood put it. Her community is one of those districts of "steel town" classified, in the polite terminology of the social worker, as underprivileged, so, altho she has heard orchestral music on the radio, Lupe has never seen an orchestra playing. Next Sunday afternoon she will have the thrill of singing to a full accompaniment of strings, trumpets, and woodwinds in the biggest and most beautiful auditorium she ever has been in—Orchestra hall.

On the stage with Lupe will be some 300 other girls and boys. The smallest are her age, and the largest are 15 years old, and the national strains from which they derive are 18 in number. For weeks they have been rehearsing in small groups with Civic Music association teachers at 11 park centers and several orphanages.

They have learned to sing a Chinese lullaby, an English madrigal, a Polish dance, a French, a Bohemian, a Slavonic, a German, a Suabian, an Alsatian, and a Basque folk song. They know "America the Beautiful," and sing it with pride. They know "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and sing it with reverent fervor. And not even a chronic pessimist could suppress a smile when 300 exuberant youngsters swing into their favorite, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

Many a veteran concertgoer has confided to Miss Werra Schuette, who presides over Civic Music association headquarters as executive secretary, that he would forego a Metropolitan opera performance rather than miss the children's Orchestra hall concert, and Miss Schuette has a bulging scrapbook of clippings to show that the critics present a solid front in their enthusiasm for the annual sing. Next Sunday's concert, set for 3:30 o'clock, will be the 32d spring festival program by the Children's chorus under Civic Music association auspices. Marx E. Oberndorfer has conducted the chorus for 11 seasons, and Hans Lange conducts the Civic orchestra that plays for the children.

Surprising to many experienced in chorus training is the fact that the high quality of the Children's chorus performances are achieved with only one general rehearsal before the festival. For the smallest boys and girls in the ranks, like Lupe, the rehearsal in Orchestra hall the morning before the concert is such an adventure as Alice experienced in Wonderland. Sympathetic Mr. Lange and Mr. Oberndorfer make the most of it. For those who never have seen an orchestra in action, first they put the piccolo player thru his paces, which puts every one at ease and in a merry mood. Then all the separate instruments are demonstrated as single voices, and finally in the union of full orchestral harmony.

None of the fascinating novelty has time to wear off. The freshness of it is all there the next afternoon on the stage in the ascending semicircles of shining faces—faces lighted by the extra application of soap and conscientious rubbing, and by the bright glow that comes from singing together.

The children's concert signals the opening of the celebration of National Music week in Chicago. Plans are being made to fill the loop with melody and set the town singing. The Choral and Instrumental Music association, the State Street Merchants association, the Illinois Opera guild, and the radio networks have united to set up a schedule of noonday programs to emphasize the 7th war loan drive. Josephine Antoine, the operatic coloratura, is to be the soloist on Monday, May 7, and other singers well known in Chicago will be heard on succeeding days.

With Dr. Hans Rosenwald, dean of the Chicago Musical college as general chairman, the Choral and Instrumental Music association will hold a music week conference, Thursday, May 10, in Kimball hall. Downtown programs include concerts by the Paulist choir of St. Mary's church, Swedish Choral club, and the Mendelssohn club.

At the daily sings in the loop, Carl Craven will lead community singing. Some of the choruses giving programs will be the Chicago and North Western Railway Choral club, directed by Harry Slater; a mixed chorus from the Catholic high schools of Chicago and adjoining communities, which will be directed by Alex Zimmerman; the Monumental Baptist Youth Glee club, with Dr. Andrew J. Offord directing; the Chicago Christian High school choir, augmented by alumnae, directed by James Baar; the Pullman Choral association, with Dr. William Francis Bergmann directing, and the Alice Stephens' All-Girl Singers.

In Bowen hall at Hull House, the Hull House chorus will give a music week program at 4 o'clock next Sunday. The ensemble is directed by Theodore Harrison. Bessie Ryan will direct the 19th Century Woman's club chorus in a concert that evening in Oak Park.

The Mendelssohn club's program is set for Tuesday night, May 8, in Orchestra hall. Walter Aschenbrenner is the director. The Chicago Alumnae chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon will make its annual concert a music week event, presenting its program at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, May 9, in the Arts club in the Wrigley building.

Hans Lange will conduct the University of Chicago Chamber orchestra in a concert at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night, May 9, in Mandel hall on the Midway. Perry O'Neil, pianist, will appear on the program as soloist. The Swedish Choral club, directed by Harry T. Carlson, will give its concert at 8:15 o'clock Thursday night, May 10, in Orchestra hall, and there on the following night James Baar will direct the Chicago Christian High school and Alumnae chorus in a program.

Several programs are scheduled for Sunday, May 13. Father Eugene O'Malley will present his Paulist choristers at 3:30 o'clock that afternoon in Orchestra hall. The Alice Stephens' singers will give their recital at 8 o'clock that night in the Eighth Street theater. A 3 o'clock musical by the Swiss Male Chorus of Chicago will be given in the Lane High school auditorium. The Music Study Club of Chicago will present its annual MacDowell concert that afternoon in the Alliance Francaise suite in the Fine Arts building.

The Choral and Instrumental association will present as speakers at its Kimball hall conference on May 10: Mandel Sherman, professor of educational psychology at the University of Chicago, who will discuss "Music and Therapy;" Barrett Spach, director of music at Fourth Presbyterian church, who will talk on "Music in the Churches;" Mrs. Royden J. Keith, former president of the National Federation of Music Clubs and now treasurer of that organization, who will lead a forum on "Woman's Place in Music;" Maryum Horn of the American Conservatory of Music and the Hull House music faculties, who will talk on "Music in Leisure Time and in Recreational Organizations;" Rudolph Ganz, president of the Chicago Musical college, conductor, pianist, and composer, who will talk on "Music in the Home," and Dr. Rosenwald, the chairman, who will summarize the conference and discuss "What Music Can Do for Chicago and What Chicago Should Do for Music."

Dr. Ganz is chairman and president of the active committee for the Chicago music week observance. Members are Mrs. Keith, Dr. Edgar Nelson, George A. Kuyper, Mr. Craven, Max Targ, and others.

St. Anne's Parent Nurses Association Benefit Wednesday

The St. Anne's Parent Nurses association will sponsor a card and games party at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in Our Lady Help of Christians hall, Iowa and LeClaire sts., for the benefit of the student nurses at St. Anne's hospital. Organized in 1939 to provide comforts and recreation for students during their training period, the association has remodeled and provided a movie projector for the recreation room and has equipped a modern kitchen in the nurses' home. The organization's latest project is the refurnishing of St. Joseph's home, recently remodeled to care for the overflow of students from the regular nurses' home. This building will accommodate approximately 30 student nurses.

Patrick A. Bresnahan and Charles Kwiatt are in charge of arrangements for the Wednesday benefit. Officers assisting them include August Grabovitz, president; Richard P. Bluett, vice president; Sister Mary Willia, treasurer, and Miss Dorothy J. Lindsay, Mrs. George Mahoney, and Miss Mary M. Wise, secretaries.

City Club to Hear Talk by War Relocation Head

Dillon S. Myer, director of the war relocation authority, United States department of the interior, will appear as guest speaker before the City Club of Chicago at a luncheon meeting set for 12:15 o'clock tomorrow in the La Salle hotel. His topic will be "The Evacuation of Japanese Americans and the Democratic Processes."

4 Books Claim the Attention of Art Critic

By Eleanor Jewett

This could easily be a bookish art column today. Four books have come in for review in the last week. However, space being what it is and art events connected with juries, prizes, and exhibitions being thick on the card, the best we can do is to devote the top of the column to the books and then go on with our crowded Chicago calendar.

Frank Lloyd Wright, our famous American architect and iconoclast par excellence, is the author of "When Democracy Builds" [University of Chicago Press], a persuasive and forceful condemnation of the absurdities of our present centralization in building and a thrilling argument in favor of his plan by which the individual home owner will be really king of all he surveys in a home built on a piece of ground that is his and is large enough to give him the greater part of his living. These tiny individual ground and castle units are connected in Mr. Wright's scheme and constitute a democratic form of habitation that combines to give the individual the best in private and communal living.

Mr. Wright goes into detail concerning his "New City" in ways that make every feature clear and feasible, always granted that people of vision and patience and persistence undertake the job. He includes the coutryside, roads, landscape gardening, shopping districts, recreation—every feature that goes to making national housing—in his thesis. We will not live to see his plans take shape [it is the work of another generation, tho perhaps ours could enter a wedge] but if and when the Wright new city comes into being, we heartily envy those who shall live in it. There will be no poor man, no slave laborer, each man will be free and unafraid. The machine will not be the master.

The book is well worth reading. It is a challenge to the future and a crystal clear summing up of the limitations and dangers of regimented living as well as an open window to the possibilities that lie in our reach for true independence, if we have the courage to say: "This shall be."

Two delightful little books for children on the theme of music, "Mozart" and "Chopin," both illustrated in joyous fashion by Andre Dugo, the first written by Waldo Mayo and the second by George Ruttkay [the Hyperion Press], would make a charming addition to any one's music library. The "Chopin" is not, we regret to suggest, nearly as fascinating a story, tho it may be more true, as we find in the current Hollywood version of that great composer's life. Friendly old Prof. Elsner does not go with him to Paris, in the book, and is not always at his shoulder. Personally, I prefer the Paul Muni Elsner and the Hollywood Chopin. Nevertheless, the little Ruttkay Chopin is admirable and both he and Mozart take life in the colorful anecdotes and gay drawings that fill the two books.

The last book is a companion piece to the current Art institute exhibition of the pictures from the Encyclopaedia Brittanica collection of Contemporary American Painting, and is published under that same title [Duell, Sloan, and Pearce]. It is in truth a handsomely bound copy of the catalogue, written and edited by Grace Pagano, with an introduction by Donald Bear and contributions by Frederic Taubes and Daniel Catton Rich.

Many of the illustrations are in color. It is no more complete nor representative of modern American art than the exhibition, in fact the loss looms larger because sculpture has been entirely neglected, but it fits neatly into the ranks of other contemporary books which have presented material in similar fashion.

The influence of the war is seen in two exhibits which are among the new shows of the month. At the Findlay galleries, Van Buren and Michigan av., water colors by Laura J. A. Neese go on view today with a formal tea this afternoon from 3:30 to 6 o'clock, for the benefit of the Red Cross. Mrs. Neese is a pupil of Wayman Adams. This is her first exhibition in Chicago tho her work has been well received in the east.

The Chicago Historical society, North av. at Clark st., is showing an army arts exhibit, the semifinals of the national army arts contest, the winners of which will go to Washington to be placed on view in the National gallery. All sorts of art mediums are found in the current exhibit—oils, water colors, pencil sketches, cartoons, posters, photography, and even an architectural plan for a future home. The subject matter ranges from furloughs to active service. It is interesting and well worth seeing. Note "Expectancy," a water color and ink sketch by Lt. F. G. Gaylord, three soldiers crouched in the jungle, tense with anticipation. On the reverse side of the mount, the artist's note: "Done from the sketch I made on the spot in New Guinea; a few minutes after I finished, what was expected happened."

Another commercial art exhibit is current at the Art institute, "Modern Art in Advertisments," displayed in galleries 11 and 12 on the main floor of the museum.

Juvenile Play Centers Call for Volunteers

Adult attention will be spotlighted on activities of Chicago youngsters next week both at the Chicago Youth Week headquarters in the board of education offices, 228 N. LaSalle st., and the Volunteer Office of OCD, 53 W. Jackson blvd. At the former address, Nathaniel Leverone and his committee members are completing plans for Chicago's annual celebration of Youth Week May 7 to 13. Specific activities each day of the celebration will be designed to bring into focus the many ways in which Chicago's boys and girls are lending assistance to the war.

Approaching summer vacation months, which will find children whose fathers are in service and whose mothers are engaged in war work urgently in need of supervision, are the concern of the volunteer office.

This office, which operates jointly under the OCD and the Council of Social Agencies as a clearance headquarters for registration of volunteers to serve in all health and welfare agencies in the city, is enrolling volunteers to assist in Chicago's playground centers for a brief training course on the nights of May 8 and 10, and the afternoon and evening of May 12.

Mrs. Evelyn S. Byron, director, points out that a person need not have had previous experience in children's recreational work to qualify as a volunteer. Interest in children and the ability to be at ease with them constitute the essential qualifications for this type of service, she says. Eighteen to 50 years are the age limits for volunteers.

After completing the training course, the workers are asked to serve either three hours during one evening of each week or three to six hours one day of each week.

Calls for workers have come from 60 play centers, located in settlements, schools, neighborhood, and community centers, boys and girls clubs, Y. M. C. A.'s, and Y. W. C. A.'s thruout the city.

Spring Events Signal End of Club Seasons

Forecasting the close of the current season's club activities are the spring parties and annual meetings that appear with recurring frequency in program announcements of April and May.

Mrs. Franklin M. Miller [Moffett photo]

When the Daughters of the Colonial Wars in Illinois gather at 12:30 o'clock Friday in the Chicago College club for their annual spring luncheon, the program will be given by Mrs. Franklin M. Miller, who will read an original radio play, "The Scar," which won for her a national prize. The play was broadcast by Jean Hersholt and his company at the time the prize was awarded. Mrs. Charles R. Curtiss will preside.

The spring luncheon of Chicago colony of the National Society of New England, set for Thursday in the Drake hotel, also will be the occasion for celebration of the national society's golden anniversary. Contributions to the colony's various war service projects will be made at that time, and an anniversary gift of $50 will be presented to the Kern Hutton school fund. A program of music and readings of historic interest has been arranged by Mrs. Clayton B. Mead, who will be introduced by the president, Mrs. Harold E. Leopold.

The Woman's auxiliary to the Chicago Medical society will review the past year's activities at the group's annual meeting and luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Continental hotel. Mrs. Theodore Johnston will turn over the president's gavel to Mrs. Clyde R. Landis at that time. Other new officers to be inducted by Mrs. Rollo K. Packard, a past president of the national auxiliary, are Mrs. B. K. Lazarski, president elect; Mrs. James M. McDonnough, vice president; Mrs. Ralph O. Peterson and Mrs. Anders J. Weighen, secretaries, and Mrs. G. T. Buttice, treasurer. Music will be presented under the direction of Capt. George Campbell, director of music for the army's 6th service command.

The Indian Council Fire will close the season at 3:30 o'clock next Sunday with a special program that also will mark the council's 22d anniversary. Anita Sky Eyes has arranged musical selections for the occasion, and Mrs. D. E Kenote, as social chairman, will assume hostess duties. The annual business session and election of officers will precede the program.

At 1 o'clock Tuesday the Past Presidents' club of 1st district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will gather for a spring time luncheon in the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. George H. Nippert will preside and present as special guests Mrs. Burton A. Noyes, vice president of the federation's northern region; Mrs. David C. Slagle, retiring president of 1st district, and Mrs. George Thompson, president elect of 1st district. The program, arranged under the direction of Mrs. John Gately, will be shared by Pauline Esdale, whistler; Alberta Eikenberry, soprano, who will be accompanied by Josephine Stevenson, and Eleanor Schutz, lyric soprano, with Alice Mead as accompanist.

Mrs. George H. Nippert

The Daughters of Indiana this year decided to combine their spring luncheon, usually held in April, and their May installation tea. The party has been scheduled at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday in the La Salle hotel, with Mrs. John E. Condren presiding, and Mrs. George F. Vogt in charge of luncheon arrangements. Mrs. Truman F. Creager will introduce the program participants, Donn Gramm, baritone, and Doriss Briggs, harpist. New officers to be installed include Mrs. John E. Bernhardt, vice president; Mrs. Karl Pfeiffer, recording secretary; Mrs. M. A. Victor, treasurer. Members of the board of directors and committee chairmen also will be inducted.

History of that pioneer organization for professional women writers—the Illinois Woman's Press association under whose auspices the National Federation of Press Women was organized—will be reviewed by Mrs. Ethel Colson Brazelton, a member of long standing and former president, at a jubilee dinner party set for 6:30 o'clock Thursday to mark the society's 60th anniversary. The president, Mrs. Bernadine Bailey, who has become known particularly for her writings about Lincoln, will conduct the meeting and introduce the special guests. The program also is to include a talk entitled "Straws in the Wind" by William McDermott, and a group of songs by Mrs. Esther Curtis Ament of Glen Ellyn, who will appear in costume.

Mrs. Bernadine Bailey

Among those instrumental in founding the state society back in 1885 were Frances E. Willard, Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, and Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson. On its former membership lists appear the names of such distinguished women as Jane Addams, Susan B. Anthony, Julia Ward Howe, Edith Rockefeller McCormick, Harriet Monroe, Lillian Russell Moore, and Gene Stratton Porter.

Members and guests of the Woman's City club will consider several pending legislative bills at a 2 o'clock session tomorrow in headquarters. Among these will be a child labor bill designed to keep children in school until 16 years of age, instead of 14 as now provided. Provision is made that, should the bill become a law, it will not become effective until six months after the war ends. Support for the principle of the bill has been approved by the club's board of managers. Also slated for discussion are bills providing care and education for handicapped children, which were prepared under supervision of Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry, president of the club and chairman of the Illinois Commission for Handicapped Children. Mrs. Mulberry will preside, and Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, legislation chairman, will lead the discussion.

With a suit of gray wool, Mrs. John Clarke, another tea guest, wore a gray sailor adorned by a saucy little white feather. Still another who chose a two piece suit was the lovely, auburn haired Mrs. G. D. Crain Jr. Her costume was of navy wool, with a cape style coat that buttoned onto her crepe blouse of a chartreuse tone almost identical to one of the three colors repeated thruout the furnishings of the lounges. Particularly effective was the use of this color at the tall windows of the smaller of the two lounges. Black blinds, formerly used for black-out purposes when movies were being shown, were given an air of distinction with huge chartreuse pineapples and trailing leaves painted on them.

Young mothers searching for attractive and at the same time reasonably priced articles of clothing for their small children can gain some tips on making them at home from their own old clothes, or discarded garments of their husbands, by looking at the pretty dresses, suits, and undergarments members of Bundles for America have made for children of needy service men. Frocks, overalls, and other youngsters' apparel was on view in the Casino club recently when Bundles gave a benefit party. One of the most attractive boy's outfits consisted of a pair of overalls made from a man's summer suit of thin brown and white material. The shirt with it had been cut down from "daddy's" in the easiest manner possible, with the neck simply bound and buttoned high, instead of with the conventional convertible collar. The pocket of the shirt remained undisturbed, but in the recutting, it ended up high on the left shoulder, adding rather than detracting from the appearance. A stunning little girl's suit had been made from a blue and white seersucker dress and a white shirt. The skirt, of seersucker, was buttoned onto a blouse made of the shirt, and a smart little cardigan of the seersucker completed the outfit. Little girls' petticoats, recut from mother's worn slips, were finished with a narrow edging of lace around the neck and armholes, and others were finished with a wide binding of self material which then was embroidered in tiny flowers. The members also furnish layettes, and a sample one on view included a dozen diapers, several receiving blankets and sacques, and a cunning little knit jacket, cap, and bootee set. Mrs. Charles Smith, chairman of the Chicago branch of Bundles, wore a smartly tailored gray plaid suit and crisp white blouse to the benefit.

U. S. Women Represented at San Francisco

In addition to their one direct voice in the American delegation—that of Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve — at the San Francisco security conference, women of this country are having their say indirectly thru representatives of five nation-wide organizations working in education, government, or general welfare. The five are among 42 organizations invited by State Secretary Stettinius to send representatives to the conference to serve as consultants to the official American delegation.

Mrs. William A. Hastings

Last week the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which has a membership of more than 3 million, announced that its president, Mrs. William A. Hastings, would be its representative. Permitted two alternates, Mrs. Hastings named Mrs. J. W. Bingham of Palo Alto, Cal., chairman of the Parent-Teacher committee on post-war planning, and Mrs. J. J. Garland of Menlo Park, Cal., president of the California Parent-Teacher congress, to accompany her to San Francisco.

Mrs. Hastings and her alternates will work as conference consultants with the National Education association, the American Council on Education and other educational organizations. Upon her acceptance of the state department's invitation, Mrs. Hastings wrote to the members of the American delegation asking support for "some form of international agency concerned with child welfare."

• • •

At the conference representing the General Federation of Women's Clubs is the national president, Mrs. La Fell Dickinson of Keene, N. H., who is accompanied by Mrs. William Dick Sporborg of New York and Mrs. E. B. Shoesmith, from California. Mrs. Sporborg is chairman of the federation's department of international relations, and Mrs. Shoesmith is dean of state federation presidents.

Mrs. La Fell Dickinson

The National League of Women Voters has as its consultant at the conference Mrs. Anna Hartwell Johnstone of Washington, D. C., who was at one time secretary in its headquarters office in the capital and has headed its foreign policy department. Mrs. Margaret A. Hickey of St. Louis, Mo., is the consultant representing National Federation of Business and Professional Women.

• • •

Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, president general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is en route to San Francisco to attend the conference as an observer for her organization.

The American Association of University Women has sent Dr. Helen Reid, its international associate, from headquarters in Washington, D. C., as its representative.

Dean Gildersleeve is one of six women among the official delegates. Other countries seating women at the conference are Great Britain, Canada, China, and the Dominican Republic.

TO WED OFFICER

Miss Jeane Bates, whose engagement to Lt. Glenn D. Peacock of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Peacock of Glenview, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bates of Lincolnwood. Lt. Peacock is stationed in Big Spring, Tex., as an instructor.

Dr. H. T. Ricketts Head of U. of C. Settlement

Dr. Henry T. Ricketts was named president of the University of Chicago settlement at the settlement's recent 51st annual meeting. Vice presidents are Harry O. Rosenberg and R. V. Merrill, and secretaries, Miss Wilma Walker and Mrs. E. O. Jordan. Frank Covert is the new treasurer, and Frederic W. Woodward and Mrs. E. O. Jordan, honorary directors. The settlement, located "back of the yards," was founded by the late William R. Harper, first president of the University of Chicago, and a number of faculty members at the university.

Old Spanish Trail Dotted with Resorts

By Mildred Peterson

PASS CHRISTIAN, MISS.

Numerous are the resort communities which dot United States highway 90, the Old Spanish Trail, that connected Florida and California, as it winds its way along the irregular, scenic coastline of Mississippi, just east of New Orleans. Among these is Pass Christian [pronounced Chris-chan, with a decided accent on the last syllable], where are located some of the loveliest homes on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico and where for generations the wealthy old families of New Orleans have come to play and relax.

Outstanding among these homes here, facing the gulf, is the nine acre estate of former Chicagoan Rudolph Hecht, one of the leading bankers of New Orleans, and Mrs. Hecht and their two daughters. Since a recent fire, when East Gate was burned, only two homes remain [Middle Gate and West Gate], and these are surrounded by the finest gardens of their type in the gulf area and perhaps in the United States.

Oriental in aspect, the sunken and raised grounds are adorned with lovely trees, shrubs, and flowers; pools, fountains, and running streams; bridges, statues [one giant Buddha weighs two tons], and granite pagodas; tea and guest houses, and a miniature golf course. These have been developed since 1925 by the Hechts, who wished to perpetuate the memories of their oriental travels. When a visitor enters the guest house he removes his shoes and puts on slippers in true oriental tradition.

Near-by is the attractive home of Mrs. Caryl Spoor Broome of Chicago and Pass Christian, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. John Spoor, in Chicago. Mrs. Broome's daughter, Mrs. Robert N. Miller, recently arrived from Orange City, Cal., where she has been with her husband, Lt. Comdr. Miller. She and her baby daughter, Caryl, will be here or at the home of her sister, Mrs. Paul Vernon Marquez [Caryl Broome] of New Orleans, for some time. Mr. Marquez, who is stationed with the coast guard in New Orleans, and Mrs. Marquez are the parents of a second son, John Thornhill, born recently. The older son, Vernon, is now 2 years old.

Also located in this same vicinity is the beautiful white southern home, which was used one summer by President Woodrow Wilson.

Near aristocratic Pass Christian on the famous resort gulf coast are leisurely Bay St. Louis, pastoral Long Beach, exotic Biloxi, old Moss Point, traditional Ocean Springs, self-contained Pascagoula, and modern Gulfport. For 25 miles along the Gulf of Mexico stretches the attractive, as well as useful and protective sea wall, on whose stair steps will be found many sun bathers.

At Gulfport, located in the "heart of a fisherman's paradise," is a United States naval training center and advance base depot, as well as the army's Gulfport field which, along with nearby Keesler field, accounts for the huge number of service men and women and their families in this area.

Chicagoan C. A. Pattison, staying at Gulfport's Markham hotel, is one of the avid fishermen who for several months have been catching fresh water, black, and striped bass, bream, crappie, and speckled trout.

Between Pass Christian and Gulfport is Long Beach, the home of Gulf Park college, a junior college for girls, where is located Friendship Oak, a moss draped live oak tree with a spread of 117 feet and reaching a height of 80 feet. Among the Chicago area girls attending Gulf Park college, who enjoy picnicking here are Joellen Murdock, Jean Martens, Ruth Barnes, Nancy Cook, and Jeanne Sackmann.

If age, exoticism, and romantic tradition are the components of fascination, then Biloxi [pronounced Bluxi] is Mississippi's most fascinating city. Today, with the many surrounding army and navy bases, it also is one of the most crowded, altho reservations are obtainable for space in her numerous fine, up-to-date hotels. It is to this modern resort and world famous fishing town, located in an old world setting, that many Chicagoans come year after year.

Confined to the low ridge of a narrow, fingerlike peninsula, Biloxi, which was the first permanent white settlement in the Mississippi valley, stretches long and slim between the Mississippi sound of the Gulf of Mexico on the south and the Bay of Biloxi on the north.

One of the most popular resorts with townsmen, service personnel, and visitors alike is the Spanish atmosphered Hotel Buena Vista, where food and music are high spots. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pollock of Wilmette, Mrs. Alfred Stresen-Reuter of River Forest, and Mr. and Mrs. James Vance, Mr. and William Adams, and Francis McCabe, of Chicago, have been staying there this season.

French Canadian Mme. Bernadette Gauthier of Chicago and Quebec, who is an annual Buena Vista guest, enjoys the lovely old trees with their moss hangings.

Lady of the House

"'Tis the last can of the summer
Left standing alone,
All her juicy companions
Have soured or gone."

Trilling this naughty travesty on one of my favorite old ballads, Aunt Ella came thumping up the cellar stairs muttering, "Why did it have to be tomatoes? . . . could stand another can of apple sauce, but tomatoes! What can I do with them I haven't done a thousand times," as she spied me.

"Just ignore them," I suggested, "or make believe they're pomegranates."

"Maria, you know very well you can't ignore or disguise a thing as evident and blatant as a tomato. It just keeps on looking like a tomato."

To comfort Aunt Ella I suggested she try this: Butter—O, excuse me, please—skimpily spread a bit of margarine, bacon fat, or oil on a baking dish and cover the bottom with lightly toasted rounds of corn or wheat bread. Gently lift a tomato, season and sprinkle with a pinch of basil or your best herb blend, and sort of nestle it on a round of toast. Put a nice plump mushroom, gill side up on each tomato; a bit of salted butter or margarine on that. Pop into the oven and call the girls for a game of bridge.

Several friends have started their annual hunt for edible wild mushrooms. One, who has a great fondness for puff balls, secretly hopes she may find one like the giant, four feet across and five feet high, once found in New York. Big enough to supply 500 persons with sizable "steaks."

The Too Good Housekeeper

Each day she sweeps and scrubs the shining floor
And searches out each particle of dirt,
Then shines the windows that were bright before,
And spider webs can never lie inert.
Each week she probes her cupboards to their soul;
Dust cannot lie in peace in her domain,
With mop and broom she's always on patrol,
For cleanliness she vows she will maintain.

It matters not a whit that April waits
Outside her door. That springtime birds convene;
This is the time of year that she locates
Some furnace smoke and makes her woodwork clean.
She scrubs and shines without a reason why—
And lets a wealth of beauty pass her by.

Velen Virden

Grape Hyacinthe

Little fairy belfry
Chiming elfin tunes,
Are your bells the echoes
Of fairy honeymoons?

Did you drop in clusters
From a bluebird's wing,
Splashing in my bird bath,
First cold spray of spring?

Or did you just remember
My flowering almond tree
Could not smile its pinkest
Without your blue to see?

And how could fluted daffodils
A sunny picture make Without your azure sweetness
To be their sky and lake?

Esther Lloyd Hagg

Reward

My day has just begun
So many, many tasks which must be done,
And later then perhaps a little time
To do the things which make life seem worthwhile;
Music and books, a social hour or two,
Besides the homey tasks which I must do.

The day is nearly done,
And evening shadows lengthen thru the room;
A little figure nestles in my arms,
And tiny loving hands so soft and warm
Confidingly clasp mine.

Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce

This evening prayer, No. 731, is the companion piece to the morning prayer, No. 732. The floral sprays around both petitions may be done in lazy daisy stich, while the prayers are embroidered in satin stitch. Both hot iron transfer patterns measure 9 by 12 inches.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of either of these items send 15 CENTS in coin [wrap coin securely—30 CENTS for both] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

A sleepy smiling face peeps up at me,
A drowsy little voice says, "Wasn't this a happy day?"
And then I know that even tho 'twas filled
With just the homey things which must be done,
A happy baby's smile has made my day worth while.

Edna Krakel Clifton

The Feud

A broken cookie jar and vase,
[That household styles tabooed]
Adorned a darkened attic space
Where cast-off objects stood.

The cookie jar mused sad and low:
"I was the family joy;
The treasure hunt of long ago
For many a girl and boy."

"O, ho!" the haughty vase replied,
"I graced the old front room.
For I once was the family pride;
O! would they knew my doom."

That made the broken jar and vase
Glum foes forever more,
As, filled with scorn, they boldly face
Each other on that floor.

Because the jar said: "Listen here!
I cost much more, you see;
They bought you with old tea checks, dear,
But paid real cash for me."

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

The couturiere, striving for perfection when she dresses a woman, always considers the whole, not just the fragments of a dress, hat, or accessories individually. It's the point of view that achieves perfection in good grooming, too. You shouldn't concentrate on a new make-up, and let your hairdress slide along as usual. Nor should you have a single vanity, your hands perhaps, or your hair—on which you concentrate to the neglect of all the other pieces of the mosaic that constitutes the physical You.

It seems somehow appropriate that a couturiere, and a noted one, who recently has turned her skill to the creation of cosmetics, should be the one to launch a product for which there has been a crying need. It's hand AND body cream, and the very name will give you an idea of its tremendous usefulness.

This is a frothy cream that smooths and softens, and its value in helping to keep hands presentable is impressive. It oils the skin delicately, and feels very fluffy and soft on the flesh, but it disappears almost instantly, carrying with it a lot of the parched, dry look that makes hands seem older than they ought to be.

But we particularly recommend this as a body cream. Too many of us will oil the skin of our hands and our faces, but we never give a thought to elbows that are rough, or leg skin that's like corrugated board. If we can acquire the good, good habit of creaming the skin of the body as automatically as we do that of the face and neck, we'll be ever so much better off.

You can use this, after your bath, over the entire body, slathering particularly generous amounts on the skin areas that are especially beset by roughness—the upper arms, the elbows, the legs, even the feet. It will help that skin retain the satiny texture essential to that picturesqueness of the whole. You'll not have to start in on a big corrective campaign when the first hot weather brings out bathing suits and backless, sleeveless dresses.

• • •

This comes in half pound jars—another inducement to use it generously. And it's scented with one of the loveliest fragrances that's been launched in many years.

[For information telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0200, or write her in care of the Chicago Sunday Tribune. Please inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for written reply.]

Hints for the Housewife

In measuring molasses you will have no trouble from molasses sticking to the measuring cup if you first fill the cup with flour, and then empty it. This leaves a coating of flour inside the cup which prevents the molasses from sticking, and every last drop will come out cleanly.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Mothers Need Occasional Bit of Recreation

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A change of scene or occupation, outside diversion, or being with persons other than your immediate family, no matter how dearly you love them, is refreshing to body and soul. After such an interlude, no matter how short, you go back to your home and tasks with renewed zest. When my family was young I didn't follow this advice as much as I believed in doing, but I recommend it to others!

Often, far too often, all that is making a mother and a housewife nervous and irritable with the children, and even exhausted, is nothing, more or less, than the fact that she has "gone stale."

Every woman who has the 24 hour job mentioned above, with the insistent small daily duties and large responsibilities that inevitably accompany it, needs a break occasionally—a change of some sort. If she has any adult family living, they should be willing to help her out in this way. If not, perhaps by a system of taking turns with her neighbors, she could manage it. Or her husband might "hold the fort" for her sometimes in the evening while she visits friends or goes to a concert or movie, tho, of course, the ideal thing would be for them to go out together.

I feel extremely sorry for those young wives who are alone in a strange city while their husbands are overseas and who are bound, day in and day out, to their little apartment and their babies, with no chance for even the littlest bit of physical freedom and amusement.

Men, I think, coming home from a day in different surroundings and often one of variety and interest, don't realize how close a woman is to her duties, and how much she needs to, as my grandmother used to put it, "get away from the house." Homemaking and motherhood are among the most worthwhile careers in the world, but they have their drudgery and monotony [what inspired job hasn't?], and a woman needs to get away from it all, just once in a while.

In this connection I have before me a letter which I am sure many families will be interested in:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"Your daily articles are so inspiring that I naturally turned to you with my problem.

"My two sons, now 8 and 12 years old, are normal, healthy youngsters with the usual scraps among themselves. The younger boy does manage to get into more trouble than the older one in his vibrant enthusiasm with other boys outdoors. Both children have a remarkably high scholastic standing, and are quite responsible. Until two years ago I always had a maid to assist me in caring for the boys. Our house is situated on the outskirts of town in a section not too thickly populated.

"A problem has arisen which my husband and I agreed to submit to you and to abide by your decision.

"On rare occasions it is necessary fore me to leave home before lunch time, and regularly twice a week I do leave immediately after lunch, sometimes to shop, an occasional meeting or bridge game, or to bowl in my league. I always return before 5 o'clock or earlier. My husband maintains that it is my duty to be at home always at lunch time and at 3 o'clock when the boys return from school, to be there to intervene when the younger lad is in a fight.

"My premise is that knowing that his mother is there to guard him, the 8 year old will continue to get into mischief, that both boys are old enough to have learned to live and play with boys of their age, to give and take without injury to themselves or others. I feel it is my responsibility to allow them to be on their own at the most two afternoons a week, to have their lunch alone—at the most once in two or three weeks, a lunch which I have prepared in advance for them, besides giving me that necessary recreation and freedom away from daily routine and chores which I consider vital to my own morale.

"I would greatly appreciate your verdict at your earliest convenience. Please do not use my name or initials if you do refer to this letter in your column."

Altho I always am reluctant to act as referee in a dispute, and I am asked very often to do so in letters from wives or husbands, daughters or sons, I did so in this case. I wrote this mother that I thought she was quite in the right, and that the more devoted the mother, the more she needed a change.

Patterns by Clotilde

Looking ahead to summer, these two patterns carry a guarantee of fashion plus comfort at small cost. One may double for sportswear and social occasions, and the other is a comfortable, cool trifle with feminine detailing.

The bare backed model adorns its low neckline with a bow of the dress material. The lines of the frock are princess topped with a brief but functional bolero to convert the dress into a street costume. Both stripes and plain colors are effective mediums.

A touch of lace or ruffling at the surplice neckline and around the sleeves of the side buttoned dress lifts it out of the class of the ordinary cotton wash dress. Dainty prints and plain colors both are smart choices.

Style No. 2864 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material for dress; 1¼ yards for bolero.

Style No. 2901 is designed for sizes 12 to 44. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 35 inch fabric with 2½ yards of ruffling.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The spring edition of The Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions now is on sale at the Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower lobby for 15 cents. The cost is only 12 cents if the book is ordered with a pattern from the address in coupon.

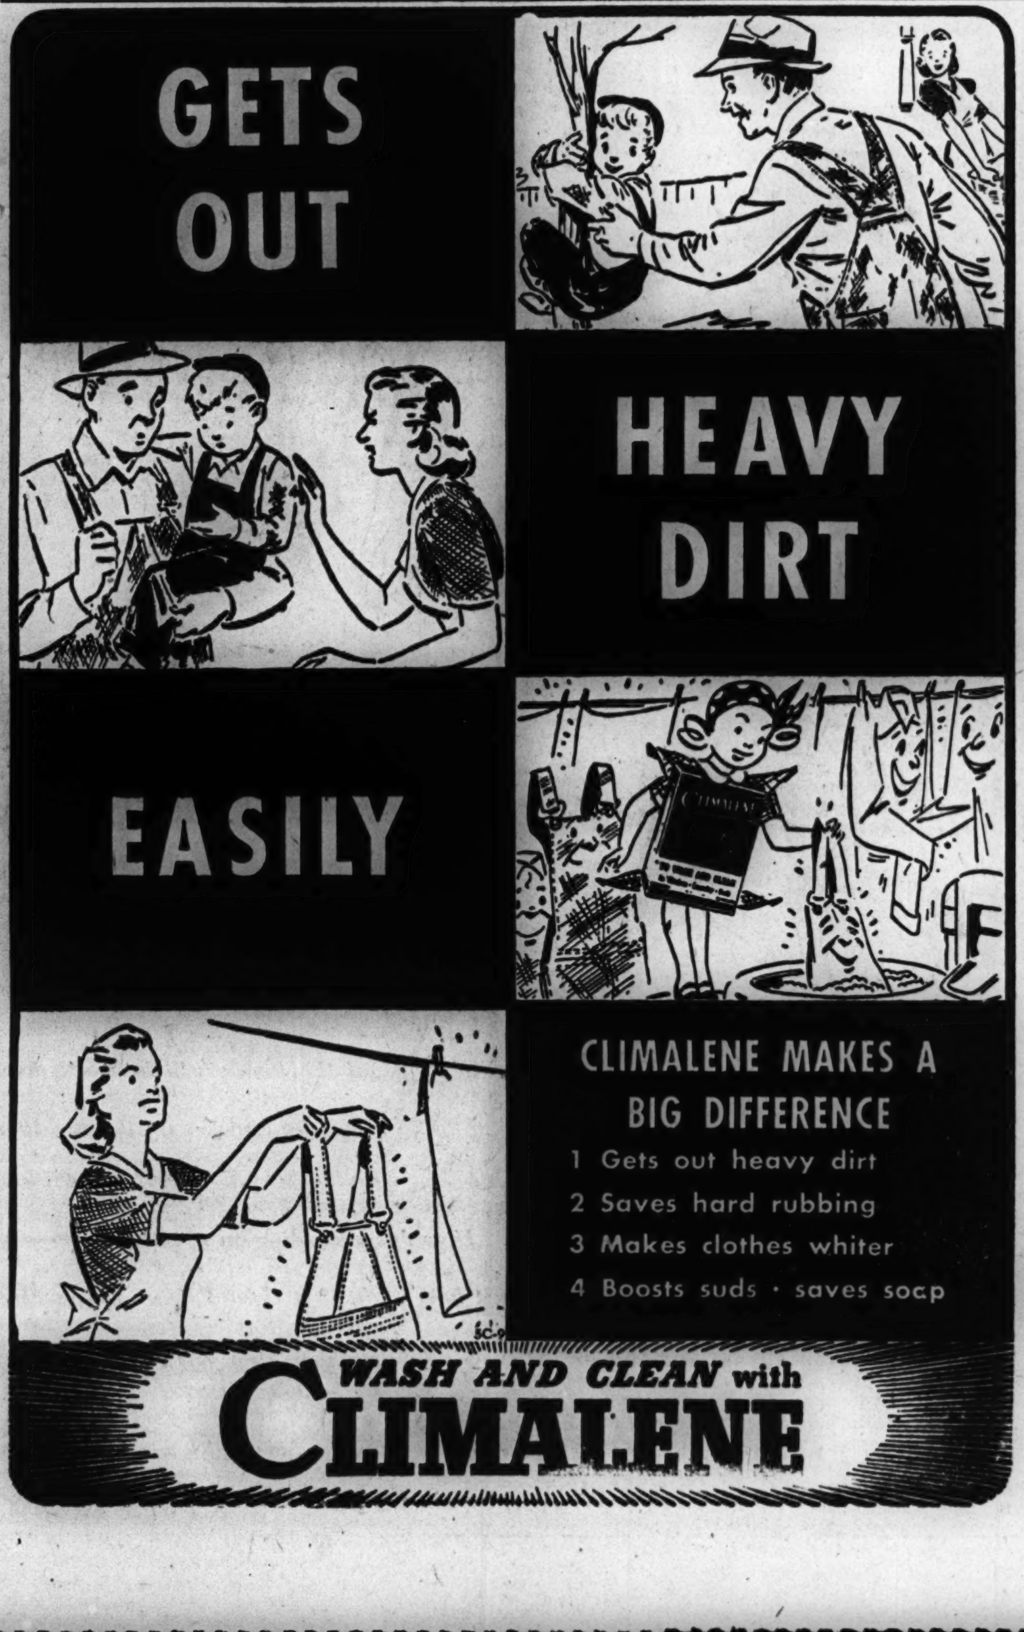
Beta Sigma Phi to Hold Initiation Rites Tomorrow

Beta Sigma Phi sorority will conduct initiation ceremonies for 140 new members preceding its annual founder's day dinner at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel. Beta Sigma Phi, founded as a book club some 14 years ago by Walter W. Ross in Abilene, Kas., has grown to an organization of international scope for business and professional women, with chapters in the United States, Canada, Hawaii, Alaska, Mexico, and Australia. The membership totals more than 30,000. There are 400 members in the 18 Chicago chapters.



Enliven Your Color Schemes with New Rugs

By Edith Weigle

A clever little invention now enables the home dressmaker to become a craftsman and create attractive wool rugs. Four different types can be run up quickly and easily on your sewing machine if it's equipped with this new gadget.

You can make a monotone tufted rug, decorated with an off-side flower spray design for your bedroom or bathroom, or a similar rug that is modern in appearance, a large diamond design being worked out in varying pile depths, giving a luxurious effect. Still another type is an unfringed yarn rug in the traditional staircase design, or zig-zag pattern running diagonally. This is done in two colors with black yarn outlining the central motifs.

For an early American room you can make a hooked type of rug. An attractive floral pattern combines deep wine toned yarn for the border and pink for the oval center that frames a conventional flower spray in gay hues.

The regular sewing machine stitcher is used to anchor the uncut fringe of yarn in straight, row after row formation. With the handicraft guide attachment the loops may be cut automatically as the work progresses by means of a cutting blade that is part of the guide.

These rugs can be made of twine or rags as well as yarn, but all are stitched on a "backing," and for this a burlap is best, if you can find any. However, any tough, strong material that is washable will be suitable. Discarded awnings, feed bags, sailcloth, heavy unbleached muslin make good substitutes for hard-to-get burlap.

Every beginner seamstress can fashion these pretty rugs and local sewing center experts will furnish instruction on working out designs with the aid of a transfer pattern. The nice feature about such floor coverings is that they are washable, and by using colors that match the room's color scheme they will have all the beauty that custom made articles contribute to a decorative plan. Yet their cost is so reasonable.

This smart modern rug can be made at home on your sewing machine.

BUY-LINES • by Nancy Sasser

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 29th—Did you know that the International Red Cross gives a kit containing food, warm clothing and cigarettes to each American captured? Certainly the cigarettes must be like a friendly greeting from home to our boys! Realizing this, it's easier not to mind when your tobacconist says—"No cigarettes today!" But keep on searching... maybe you'll even be rewarded with one of those filter tip VICEROY cigarettes! It's the SMART smoke for the SMART woman,—because its unique filter tip checks resins, tars and other throat irritants... keeps tobacco crumbs IN the cigarette rather than untidily flecking onto teeth, lips, or spilling into your purse! And now on to other BUY-LINES...

Today I want to tell you about Oriental Pearl Replicas at their loveliest,—lustrous, perfectly simulated and matched LAGUNA PEARLS! When you see them nestled like a Queen's ransom in their satin-lined box, I promise you'll wax poetic about them! Don't DARE to try them on unless you're set to treat yourself,—for you couldn't possibly bear to take them off when you see how their exquisite beauty lights up your face! If you're that most charming of all women—the kind who gives to others what she would like most for herself—then LAGUNA PEARLS are your perfect gift offering, come Mother's Day; and they're certain to thrill that extra-special girl-graduate! Want to know the prices of these royal gems? Neptuna Quality, $30; Oceania Quality, $20; Marina Quality, $10 . . . and for an added touch of elegance, LAGUNA PEARLS with diamond clasps, from $50. Ask to see LAGUNA PEARLS at any fine Jewelry Store—or write Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Avenue, New York 16, N. Y., for name of Laguna dealer nearest you.

If Mother's Day on May 13th will catch you with a tax-depleted budget,—DON'T WORRY! Here's a way to give the most endearing gift at practically no cost! Just get a bottle of famous DJER-KISS Sachet by Kerkoff and from it make dainty sachet bags that will lend Her personal possessions the haunting fragrance of "the world's most romantic scent"! Cut and stitch pieces of dainty material into clever designs and then stuff with wads of cotton into which you've sprinkled a small quantity of this fragrant DJER-KISS Sachet. Make sachet hearts for clothes hangers, pillows for lingerie and linen drawers, tiny sachet packets for stationery, handkerchief cases and hat boxes . . . and many other lovely sachet gifts from just one bottle of DJER-KISS! Cost is 69c and $1 at Cosmetic, Drug or Department Stores.

Newest Fashion for Baby!

Calling all Mothers . . . calling all Mothers! Here's a "bonanza" prize now obtainable for the first time . . . Waterproof BABY PANTS made of a sensational new development in the field of plastic chemistry! The material is PLASTI-CLEER, crystal clear and light as a feather . . . soft and non-chafing as the finest silk! It is odorless, sanitary and as tough and durable as leather! There's absolutely no rubber in it . . . and yet it is guaranteed waterproof, and pliant enough to stretch over baby's diaper easily. This new PLASTI-CLEER by Goodyear Rubber Sundries Inc., in New Haven, is ideally suited for babies' pants . . . odorless, pliable, acid and oil resistant, and heatproof. It washes easily . . . is transparent as cellophane . . . comes in small, medium and large sizes at Chain and Department Stores. Act NOW . . . supply is limited! Baby will love PLASTI-CLEER Baby Pants!

Taste-Magic!

Want to show your butcher just who is boss? Then improvise a little taste-magic with the not-too-choice cuts of meat he spares you . . . and add a taste-titillating "meatiness" to egg, cheese and fish dishes! How? Why it's easy. Make your heartiest and sauciest sauce as a taste-challenge! You'll need mustard, of course,—but why not go one step further and choose Mustard-with-Horseradish that rolls TWO favorite flavors into ONE? BEST FOODS makes it and your Grocer has it for you... neither too strong, nor too mild. Remember the name,—BEST FOODS Mustard-with-Horseradish! Ask for it!

Don't Break Dates Because of Bad Skin!

GOURIELLI Sulfo-Collodio Cream can work wonders for you in controlling troubles caused by oily-disturbed skin . . . just the specialized help you need for externally caused pimples, blackheads, scaliness and surface-clogged pores! Dates won't wait these days! So get after those pesky skin eruptions that make you want to say "No" to invitations you'd otherwise accept . . . or cause embarrassment if you do accept. SULFO-COLLODIO CREAM has a vanishing base and is helpful as a powder base as well as for night use. Men and boys like it, too, because it doesn't have a "cosmetic" odor and doesn't show! Cost is $1.50 at smart shops; or at GOURELLI, INC., 16 East 55th St., New York 22, New York.

I still think that DR. SCHOLL'S Foot Powder is one of the most appropriate gifts for a man or woman in the Service. It helps their feet "take it" . . . refreshing and soothing when feet burn, perspire or are sore, tender and chafed. It's a great help toward safeguarding against athlete's foot, too,—helping keep feet dry as well as giving protection against embarrassingly odorous feet. You can buy DR. SCHOLL'S Foot Powder in a handy, ready-to-mail carton. Send it as a gift today . . . a gift that will be appreciated far out of proportion to its cost!

A FREE Report . . . For You Who Take Pride In Your Home!

Rumor often viciously distorts the truth . . . that's why I'd like to send you the FREE report on how toilet bowls may be kept shiningly clean by a method that does NOT injure septic tanks nor their action! This report is neither an advertiser's message nor hearsay . . . but a scientific study prepared by independent research authorities who thoroughly investigated the efficiency of SANI-FLUSH as a toilet bowl cleaner that CANNOT injure traps or tanks. Everyone who has such a disposal system needs this FREE report—so send for yours today . . . and request copies sent to your suburban friends! Address requests to Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Avenue, New York 16, N. Y. Know WHY it's wise to use SANI-FLUSH!

Yardley Face Creams!

It's hard to "soft-pedal" my praise of YARDLEY'S high-quality Cleansing Creams because I'm truly so enthusiastic about them! Do try the one suited to your complexion and you'll see what I mean! Liquefying Cleansing Cream tenderly cleanses the pores of an oily skin without adding extra lubrication. Dry Skin Cleansing Cream contains beneficial oils to help lubricate and soften a dry skin at the same time it does its cleansing job. Both creams come in $1 sizes . . . the finest complexion Cleansing Creams I can recommend!

"Bumptious" curves can quickly ruin your figure's beauty! So follow the simple AYDS diet plan enclosed with each box of AYDS . . . and eat AYDS before meals according to directions in the box. This AYDS Reducing Plan has been proven by medical clinic tests,—a wonderful help in slimming down without laxatives, drugs or added exercises! AYDS are Vitamin-Fortified and cost $2.25 for a month's supply (money back on the very first box if you don't get results!). Economy triple size is $5.50. So if overweight . . . ask for AYDS at Netcher's Boston Store, The Fair, Mandel's and leading Drug Counters.

11 COLOR SAMPLES FREE!

Again, here's your chance . . . 11 large sample swatches of the SPRED wall colors Preferred 3-to-1 by America's leading decorators sent to you FREE! SPRED, the new Glidden wall paint formula, is so easy to apply that even children can help you. It goes on over wallpaper or painted walls . . . one coat usually does the job and it dries in 30 minutes without unpleasant "painty" odor. One gallon, ($2.98), mixed with water, does the average 10 x 14 room . . . guaranteed by Good Housekeeping! Send for these sample color swatches and Color Harmony Chart,—invaluable in planning Spring decorative schemes! Address request to Nancy Sasser, 271 Madison Avenue, New York 16, N. Y.

Manicuring Time-Saver!

Have you tried NAIL-DRI yet? It's that brand new miracle liquid I've been telling you about . . . a miracle liquid that dries fingernail polish in a flash! Glory be . . . what a wonder-worker it is! Apply your polish . . . smooth NAIL-DRI right on top . . . and Z-Z-ZIP . . . your polish is completely dry! NAIL-DRI ends time-wasting waiting, prevents smeared-up fingertips . . . and it's so thrifty! Only 50 cents a bottle . . . less than 1 cent a manicure! Apply NAIL-DRI over any kind, or color of fresh polish, and quick-as-a-flash your polish is dry! Ask for NAIL-DRI at Drug and Department Stores, or Beauty Shops.

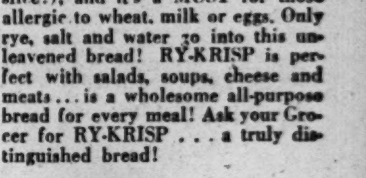
Want the make-up "mate" that goes with HOUBIGANT'S "Translucid" Face Powder? It's the "Translucid" Lipstick . . . toned in true reds to give accent to the sheer, delicate beauty "Translucid" Face Powder can bring to your complexion. The lipstick smooths on easily and stays right where you put it! It's creamy . . . without annoying drying properties. You can get it in seven brilliant shades to harmonize with the seven shades of Face Powder. Cost is $1 at finer Drug and Department Stores. Why not try this SHEER Make-up for SHEER Beauty?

100% Good! . . . but NOT Fattening!

Ever hear of a rye nut? NO . . . but if it existed I'm sure it would taste exactly like RY-KRISP! The thin, flaky RY-KRISP wafers give the full flavor of hearty rye in an appetizing nut-crunchy form. This 100% whole grain bread is particularly popular with those who are normally overweight and trying to reduce the RY-KRISP way (only 23 calories to a slice!), and it's a MUST for those allergic to wheat, milk or eggs. Only rye, salt and water go into this unleavened bread! RY-KRISP is perfect with salads, soups, cheese and meats . . . is a wholesome all-purpose bread for every meal! Ask your Grocer for RY-KRISP . . . a truly distinguished bread!

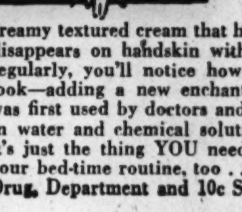
Save on Ration Points!

Want to multiply your ration points for the butter you really must have for good cookery? Then let WELCH'S Grapelade and Orange Marmalade help you out! They're marvelous substitutes for butter in many cases, so you can save ration points for butter you really must have. Serve either one or both of these "fruit gems" to your family on the morning's toast, with hot biscuits, rolls or muffins for dinner, on the luncheon sandwiches, or on waffles and pancakes for Sunday night suppers! They'll hardly realize there's no butter, for the tantalizing flavor of luscious Concord grapes straight from the vines, and FRESH oranges right from the trees, make butter unnecessary! Ask Grocers for both of these products, NO ration points needed!



The tragic fact that so many young Americans will soon be graduating from schools straight into the frightening interlude of War should make us all the more anxious to make their Graduation Day happy and gay, normal and remembered. So let me nominate a gift that's simply bound to captivate any sweet girl graduate . . . a stunning 5" VOLUPTE Compact with the beautiful circular shield of sterling silver engraved in scroll leaf pattern. Cost is $10 (plus tax) at better Department Stores. Inside there's a circular mirror large enough to reflect the whole head,—a sifter for loose powder and a gentle-to-your-skin puff of fine VOLUPTE quality! All in all, this is a lovely gift for any girl . . . you'll want one, too!

Do Your Hands "Belie" Your Costume?



The whole effect of your Spring wardrobe will be spoiled if your hands look neglected. So get busy if they're not as young-looking or as "caressably" smooth and white as nature intended! If your handskin is roughened from housework or chapped from exposure to weather or frequent washings, you need PACQUINS Hand Cream . . . a fragrant, snow-white and creamy textured cream that helps soothe and smooth your hands. PACQUINS disappears on handskin without leaving traces of stickiness. If you use it regularly, you'll notice how much lovelier and smoother your hands will look—adding a new enchantment to your charm for Spring! PACQUINS was first used by doctors and nurses whose hands are roughened by dipping in water and chemical solutions from 30 to 40 times a day . . . so, surely, it's just the thing YOU need! Don't forget to make PACQUINS a part of your bed-time routine, too . . . you'll be proud of the results! Cost is low at Drug, Department and 10c Stores!

Spring Dinner Dresses Long and Dramatic

By Rea Seeger

Late spring and early summer dinner clothes are indicative of a new trend; they're all floor length, extremely decorative, and assuredly feminine and dramatic. Fine detailed handwork also is apparent. Sometimes it is worked to accentuate a sheer yoke, again there is an all-over pattern resembling a brocade effect, because the motifs are embroidered in the same color as the material of the costume. The results are especially lovely. Spring and summer fabrics are used: Thin, suavely draped crepes, equally thih satins, and the printed crepes. But this spring you'll find gowns that have the stateliness of a winter creation.

But the simple gathered skirts attached to fitted, demure, short sleeved bodices are available, and since these have a definitely youthful charm, they are appealing to youthful shoppers. For in these young models the wide skirts [made of materials not under the ban of the L-85 rulings] are pleasurably wide, thereby accentuating small and neat waist lines.

The sleeves are short, the longest only reaching a line well above the elbow. Most of them are just cap sleeves over the shoulders, or elongated inches of an elaborate shoulder seam. Self-material belts are tied in small, perky bows at the back, or fasten directly in front with a buckle either of the same material as the belt or of plastic. Some belts have simulated jewels. Of course, alternating belts of other colors are used easily for contrast.

Long dinner gowns of devastating sophistication are the models that reveal the figure lines. The bodice is cut low, the skirts clinging to break forth in knee length dramatic fullness in front or back. Huge bows of material accent the beginning of such fullness, or simulate controled bustle effects at the back. The bodices all are extremely daring in outline, and some just cover one shoulder. The like of these siren gowns has not been seen since long before the limited showings of war time fashions.

Shimmering satin is especially charming when the satin is soft and clinging. You'll find pastels and vivid tones, unusual combinations of bright or pastel colors, as in one model, and all the fascinating striped satins boasting stripes in many widths.

Stripes are precise patterns, and the most effective models are those that use the striped material for contrast, such as in dresses with bands of the vertical stripes used against the same fabric with the stripes horizontal.

Crepes that cling closer than skin are ravishing creations in spring pastels and the high fashion grays, ranging from palest gray to deep steel gray.

Long fitted sleeves are excitingly new and different for summer or spring gowns. They are fitted and are really long, sometimes reaching well down over the hand. Such gowns have a distinguished sleekness, especially with the models of long clinging skirts.

Sketched are four new spring time dinner gowns. They are part of a smart collection to be found in a Chicago shop. For further information call Superior 0200.

Fashions

By Angela

Already warm week-ends have brought out our sun worshippers in their briefest and most colorful play clothes. Those not prepared to absorb the sun's ray would do well to look over the beautiful sun styles in gay plaids, stripes, and solid colors combined with embroidery, checks, or plaids. Outstanding features of the two suits illustrated are the quality of the materials and ideal cut and fit of both shorts and tops.

The bright red plaid gingham shorts have two deep side pockets and two unpressed front plaits, yet they are cut in back like little boys' pants to allow a smooth, snug fit. The bra with its halter neck, beautifully cut to fit like the proverbial glove, has a tailored bow at the center and buttons across the back. It is available in assorted plaids.

A soft blue chambray is a "must" in the leisure time wardrobe, and this set of short and bra top has red and white checks for contrast. The neat fitting bra has a halter neck line edge with checks and a bow of the same material. A heart shaped pocket is set above one of two inverted front plaits. The back is straight and narrow. A zipper closing at the side allows smooth fit over the hip line.

Expert Replies to Questions of Home Canners

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

More canning questions are coming in these days as homemakers try to catch the spring fruits while they're available, and anticipate the big canning jobs that will face them later this year.

"I have a dozen large pineapples. How shall I can them?" asks a Michigan reader.

Twist out top of pineapple and cut off both ends, using a sharp knife. Slice crosswise and pare slices, cutting out eyes. Remove core from each slice. Pineapple slices may be cut in halves or in wedges, or may be sliced thin. Be sure to capture all the juice. Make a sirup in the proportion of 3 or 4 cups water to 1 cup sugar. Bring to boil, add pineapple, and cook 10 minutes. Pack fruit hot into sterile jars and fill to within ½ inch of the top with the boiling sirup. Seal two piece covers [metal lid and screwband] completely; tighten three piece covers [glass top, rubber, screwband], then loosen a quarter turn. Place jars in boiling water bath. Water should boil over tops of jars. Keep water boiling for 25 minutes. Remove jars from canner [not to a cold surface, or they may break] and tighten seals on three piece caps.

"How can I substitute corn sirup for sugar in canning pineapple?"

Make your canning sirup using 1 cup of corn sirup for 2 cups of water. Pineapple may be canned without any sweetening at all, by using plain water instead of sirup for pre-cooking and filling jars.

"Can you tell me how to can rhubarb juice without sugar?"

In canning any kind of fruit juice, work with small amounts and have everything ready so that the juice needn't wait between steps. Oxidation causes deterioration in flavor and food values.

Wash rhubarb, cut into pieces, and add ½ cup water for each pound of fruit. Heat covered until completely soft and juicy. Strain thru strainer, pressing some of the pulp thru for better flavor and color. A tablespoon or two of sugar may be added for each pint of juice at this point, if sugar is available. Heat the plain or sweetened juice in the top of a double boiler to 170 degrees, or until thoroly hot. This step is called pasteurization.

Pour hot juice into sterilized jars or bottles and fill to within ½ inch of top. Remove any foam from surface and replace with more juice. Seal immediately and process in boiling water bath for 5 minutes.

• • •

Another method is to grind the rhubarb, strain the juice thru a jelly bag, heat it to simmering, fill jars, and process 20 minutes in boiling water bath. Canned fruit juices should be kept in a cool dark place.

"I'd like to know how to cold pack strawberries and raspberries."

The hot pack method is more successful, and prevents fruit from floating in juice or sirup. For strawberries, wash berries, hull, and add ½ cup sugar [less, or none may be used] for each quart of berries. Place in kettle, heat slowly to boiling point, remove from heat and let stand covered, overnight. Bring berries to boiling point quickly, pack at once into hot sterile jars, cover with hot juice, seal and process in boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

For raspberries, drop prepared fruit into thin boiling sirup [3 or 4 cups water for each cup of sugar] and pre-cook for 5 minutes. Pack hot into sterile jars, fill with hot sirup to within ½ inch of the top, seal, and process in boiling water bath 15 minutes. If you don't wish to use water, proceed as with strawberries, omitting the standing overnight. Heat fruit until juicy, sweeten to taste, fill jars, seal, and process 15 minutes.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead, five of spades.

The defense of a hand at contract bridge can hardly ever be conducted by precept. Such stray bits of advice as "cover an honor with an honor" and "second hand low," "third hand high," etc., may have application to a large number of cases, but they cannot be resorted to independently. Defense is not a question of handling certain combinations of cards. A particular play is almost always part of a campaign to defeat the contract and the hand must be viewed as a whole.

Let us see how this applies to East's play in today's hand. The bidding requires no comment, being strictly in accord with current practices. West's opening lead of the five of spades was natural and East's conduct at the very first trick controls the fate of the deal. The 10 was played from dummy and, in an effort to prevent that card from winning the trick, a vast majority of players would reflexly play the queen. A hasty analysis should make it clear that such action cannot, under the present circumstances, gain. South's opening bid and subsequent jump to two no trump clearly mark him with either the ace or king of spades, which makes it impossible to prevent declarer from winning two tricks in that suit. The important consideration, however, is to see to it that one of these two spade tricks should not be won in dummy later in the play when it will become important to find an entry across the table.

East's plan was to prevent, if possible, the running of the diamond suit. This could be done if declarer held only two diamonds. The first part of the defense involved permitting dummy to hold the first trick with the 10 of spades. Declarer then entered his hand with a heart and led the queen of diamonds, which East permitted to hold. [This would have been on time for West to reach prematurely for the trick, as so many players are in the habit of doing when they see declarer trying a finesse which they think is about to lose.] Declarer continued the suit, finessing the nine in dummy and East could wait no longer. A spade was returned and the suit cleared to the great discomfort of South.

Note that if East had played the queen of spades on the first trick there would have been no way to prevent the declarer from entering dummy, to cash the good diamonds.

It is seldom a day passes without our receiving plaintive appeals for aid from aged persons who are tragically alone and handicapped with the varied illnesses of their advancing years.

Mrs. V., who lives on the north side of the city, is supported by an old age pension. She has been disabled for years with a crippling ailment, but a recent improvement in her condition has made her hopeful of further recovery and eventual self-support. She believes a daily walk, weather permitting, will further her physical gains, but she lacks a light weight coat, size 40.

Mrs. X., a widow, 75 years old, who lives in a suburb west of Chicago, explains her situation in her letter:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a shut-in, confined much of the time to my rented room. My greatest pleasure has been reading. Failing eyesight imperils that pleasure unless an adjustable desk lamp, which can be brought nearer the printed page can be procured for me. A friend will be glad to call, if such an offer can be found among your readers."

• • •

Mrs. H. is alone and on relief. Some time ago she had the great misfortune to have both legs amputated. She spends much of her time in a wheel chair which was supplied by one of our readers. Because of her size, it has been difficult to supply her clothing needs, the most important of which are aprons or house dresses in sizes 48 or 50.
